Tam Valley Shop Yields Dope Find

By RICHARD BOYLE

A $350,000 cache of LSD, hashish and marijuana was seized and eight suspects arrested yesterday in a raid by narcotics agents on a Tamalpais Valley antique shotp said to be fronting for a narcotics dealing operation.

Three other suspects who, agents said, flew from New York to make a purchase of the drugs were arrested on Wednesday in a San Francisco motel. About $150,000 worth of narcotics was seized in this raid, bringing the total "street resale value" of drugs seized in the raids to a half-million dollars.

After the three New York suspects were arrested, state undercover narcotics agent Myron Gilbert set up a "buy" at the Resh Gallery, 267 Shoreline Highway, said by agents to be a "head shop." (A head in hippie slang means marijuana user). The agent reported arranging a $75,000 buy for seven pounds of hashish, about 17 pounds of marijuana and 1000 tabs of LSD, whereupon a joint force of 17 agents of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau, state and federal agencies and the San Francisco Police made the raid. After the raid, an additional five pounds of hashish, six pounds of marijuana and 700 capsules of LSD were seized.

The seven men and one woman, arrested for possession, sale and transportation of marijuana, were: Linda Jean Shack, 21, 265 Morningsun Avenue, Mill Valley; Frederick Martin Engelhardt, 28, of San Francisco; Richard Conrad Pace, 24, 438 Camino Del Canon, Mill Valley, who operated the antique shop; Charles Noeil Hess, 26, of Oakland; Gregory Lewis Mason, 21, 751 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo; Jeffrey Lynn Forcier, 20, of Belmont; Richard Raymond Argento, 21, 520 Canal Street, San Rafael, and Robert Franklin Black, 27, 3 Lincoln Avenue, Sausalito.

Lt. James C. Schwedhelm, of the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau, who directed the raid, said other charges would probably be added later.

The three arrested in the San Francisco motel were David Rocco, 22; Eugene DiGeromino, 21, and John A. Parisse, 18, all of New York.

Schwedhelm said the shop, which sold hippie-type clothes and other items, was a major source of traffic in marijuana, hashish and LSD. He called the long-haired suspects real "pros" in narcotics dealing. He also said the hashish came from Beirut, Lebanon.

Schwedhelm noted the three New York suspects paid only $5,700 for the drugs they purchased, but could have "bankrolled" that investment into a $150,000 sale in New

Corte Madera Marsh Plans Voted Down

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A $1.5 million plan to develop more than half of a 96-acre marshland parcel at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek was rejected yesterday — apparently for the last time — by the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Developer Frank M. Burke of San Anselmo, who always managed to look cheerful after his first three unsuccessful attempts to get a fill permit, glumly said, "This was Burke's last stand.

COST DECRIED

"You can only go so long," he told the Independent-Journal, adding he already had spent enough on planning the project "to retire on." Burke said his option on the parcel, owned by W. J. Heerdt of San Francisco, expires next month, and that he knew of no one else planning to develop it.

The commission, meeting in the State Building, voted 11-11 to approve Burke's plan, which would have dedicated 44 acres to the Marin Conservation League for a permanent marsh preserve, with the rest to be developed into a marina, bayside park, motel-restaurant-shop area, fishing pier and 33 acres of light industrial sites.

AUGUST VOTE

In August, the commission voted 12-7 to approve his plan and grant a fill permit, but that was one vote short of the 13 required for approval.

It was the proposed light industrial development that defeated Burke's plan. Several commissioners noted that the long-range master plan for the bay and its shoreline, adopted in September by the commission, allows filling "for bay-oriented commercial recreation and water-related" purposes, and that the industrial sites in Burke's plan thus violated the commission's own plan.

Burke, however, had previously argued that the industrial sites were necessary to make his project financially feasible.

The commission's staff, which recommended approval of the fill permit in August, yesterday recommended that it be denied. Executive Director Joseph E. Bodovitz of Mill Valley ex-

Burglar-Plagued Area Vetoes Police Hiring

Residents of the Panoramic Ridge area above Mill Valley last night ruled out hiring special patrolmen to protect them from burglars and decided instead to adopt a program of neighborhood cooperation.

At the meeting of the Muir Woods Park Improvement Association, members were "less interested in even finding out the cost of a special patrol than in getting together in neighborhood groups," reported association president Anne Woolridge.

The association's membership area, which comprises about 300 homes, according to Mrs. Woolridge, has been plagued with a mounting wave of burglaries.

To combat it, members decided last night on a program to include advising neighbors when a household is to be empty for an extended time, to arrange for stickers for residents' automobiles and to develop an alert procedure based on a burglar alarm system.

The alarm system, Mrs. Woolridge said, would not only include the silent alarm which alerts police only, but would

High-Gear Start At Peace Talks

Four Parties Ready To Begin Business

PARIS (AP)—With an astonishing burst of speed, the four parties to the new Vietnam peace talks reached full agreement today in their first session on all procedural matters. They cleared the way to begin discussion early this week on the search for a settlement of the war.

The announcement, after a meeting of five hours and 15 minutes, was all the more dramatic aganst a background of eight harrowing months of conversations that got nowhere and which for the past two months had bogged down in what seemed a hopelessly snagged quarrel over procedure.

This sudden show of speed could suggest the combined persuasive efforts of the two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union, on their respective allies. But, a U.S. spokesman warned, there is a long way to go.

"It is always a mistake to take rapid progress at one meeting as an indication of rapid progress over-all," said the spokesman, William J. Jorden.

"We have many difficult and delicate matters to be dealt with. I would not make a forecast on progress."

U.S. DELIGHT

However, the U.S. delegation obviously was delighted with the day's work.

"I am happy that we are getting down to the serious business of making peace in Vietnam," said U.S. Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, deputy chief of the U.S. delegation, on emerging from the meeting.

Jorden said: "This has been a pretty good day, and I think I can speak for the entire delegation. We wrapped up all procedural arrangements in a little more than five hours. There was a great deal of give and take, and probably more back and forth discussion than at any other meeting I've attended here."

AGREE TO DISAGREE

In an atmosphere described by the participants as courteous and businesslike, the four delegations got over all the procedural hurdles, in some cases by simply agreeing to disagree.

The conferees remain sharply divided on whether this is a two-sided or four-sided conference, but the U.S.-Saigon group will consider it two sides to deny recognition to the National

Viets May Speed GIs Homeward

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today top South Vietnamese and U.S. military leaders are set to draft plans for the withdrawal of some American combat forces from Vietnam this year.

Such a program "can now be implemented," Thieu said, because of improvement in the strength and quality of South Vietnam's armed forces.

Still to be worked out are the timetable and the number of troops to be withdrawn. There was speculation that a gradual pullback might begin with 20,000 men and that it could reach 100,000 by the end of 1969.

Key American officers confirmed contingency plans for "redeployment and withdrawal" are being developed by the staffs of several American brigades and divisions.

Among ordinary soldiers, rumors are that one or more major veteran units may figure in a scaling down of the U.S. force of 532,500 men in the near future.

This is particularly true in units that have been in the country the longest—the 173rd Airborne Brigade, the 1st and 25th infantry divisions and the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

All of these units, plus the 3rd Marine Division, arrived in Vietnam as part of the main

Twin Slaying, Strike Cloud College Scene

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Two Black Panther members were shot to death on the University of California at Los Angeles campus as a week of student demonstrations built to violent proportions at three California schools yesterday, and teachers union officials called a statewide strike.

Coincidentally, the Justice Department yesterday announced it was turning its attention to college campuses, specifically to San Francisco State where the latest round of student revolt began, in order to learn the cause of violence.

In the East, a rally was scheduled for today at Waltham, Mass., to gather support for 60 Negro students who have been barricaded in a Brandeis University building without incident for nearly two weeks.

PANTHERS ARRESTED

While detectives investigated a possible link between the UCLA shootings and a black activist leadership struggle on the campus, police raided the home of one of the victims and arrested 17 Black Panthers, many of them heavily armed.

The shooting took place in a classroom building on the campus within hours of violent outbreaks at San Jose State College and at University of California at Berkeley.

The UCLA victims, John Jerome Huggins, 23, and Alprentice Carter, 26, had been accepted for UCLA's "high potential" program for minority students who do not otherwise qualify academically for admission.

TWO SHOT

Police said the two, one a Black Panther "minister," were shot while leaving a meeting called to discuss a "black studies" program school officials planned to propose Tuesday. It was the first incidence of student trouble on the campus of the 29,000-student school this school year.

Nixon Gets Set For His Inaugural

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon, tanned and relaxed after four days in the Florida sun, sent his wife and daughters to Washington for some preliminary celebrations today and made last minute preparations for his inauguration.

Mrs. Nixon, daughters Tricia and Julie and Julie's husband of less than a month, David Eisenhower, were scheduled to arrive in the capital in early afternoon for the beginning of the three days of celebrations.

Mrs. Nixon was to attend a reception for distinguished women and return to New York tonight. The youngsters were to stay overnight in Washington, attending a Young American's inaugural salute during the afternoon and the Inaugural Gala tonight.

Nixon planned to remain in New York until midafternoon tomorrow, flying to Washington in time for the Inaugural Concert that evening.

He returned here last night from a four-day working vacation in the seclusion of his bayside hideaway at Key Biscayne, Fla., just south of Miami Beach.

Working alone and in the sunshine, he completed his inaugural address and relaxed with his neighbor and long-time friend, C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo.

Second Landing Successfully Ends Russian Space Adventure

Volynov's space capsule landed 130 miles from the town of Kustanai, in the Soviet central Asian republic of Kazakhstan, Tass said.

"The program of scientific research of both spaceships Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5 has been completed," Tass said.

Volynov landed following his 50th orbit of the earth and 24 hours after the twin spacecraft Soyuz 4 landed with its pilot and the two spacewalkers who Thursday accomplished the world's first transfer from one space capsule to another.

Volynov's spaceship landed 403 miles west of where Soyuz came down, 25 miles from Karaganda which is also in the Soviet Republic of Kazakhstan and 1,700 miles southeast of Moscow. Observers speculated the Soviets changed the landing site because of bad weather in the area Soyuz 4 landed.

Soyuz 5 was brought down one orbit later than Western space experts in Moscow had expected. There was no indication the extra orbit meant there had been any trouble in bringing it down.

Soyuz 4 landed in a snowbank yesterday and temperatures in the desolate wind-swept steppes near Karaganda were 31 below zero.

BARRAGE FOR REAGAN — Eggs splatter Gov. Ronald Reagan's limosine as it leaves a University of California regents' meeting in Berkeley yesterday.

(UPI Telephoto)

Gas Tax Increase Pressure Mounts

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Despite Gov. Ronald Reagan's insistence on no new taxes, pressure was beginning to build up today for a two cent a gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

About 20 representatives of the oil, auto and trucking leaders met with key legislative and administration leaders today and said the money was needed for new road construction.

The gasoline tax is now seven cents a gallon, plus a federal tax of four cents.

The legislative leader at the meeting, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, reminded industry representatives of Reagan's pledge to avoid a tax increase in the next two years.

"The administration has reiterated time and time again 'no new taxes'," he said.

But industry spokesmen said they hoped a forthcoming state report on highway needs — a report they helped revise — will rally public support for the tax hike — without making it appear that the push was coming from industry.

"We'll get a million of our members in Southern California in this and it won't be 'ours,'" said Joseph Havenner, executive vice president of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

He indicated that he believed that there would be opposition if it appeared that auto, oil and trucking industries wanted taxes raised to improve the highways they use.

"We would just raise all the ivory tower thinkers and they'd be on television and just pull the rug from under us within 30 minutes," said Havenner.

Attending the meeting for the Reagan administration was James A. Moe, director of public works.

Sirhan Prosecution Takes Surprise Tack On Jurors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A surprise prosecution maneuver may make it possible for a jury to be seated as early as Tuesday in the Sirhan Bishara Sirhan murder trial.

Chief Deputy Prosecutor Lynn Compton startled the packed courtroom yesterday afternoon by announcing the state would relinquish its right to dismiss the 11 tentative jurors.

Grant B. Cooper, the chief defense attorney, then asked that the trial adjourn until Tuesday.

"We need time to assess the acceptance of this jury as it is now constituted," he told Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker.

Jury selection had been expected to take weeks.

Sirhan's three attorneys said they will decide over the weekend whether to yield their peremptory challenges—as the prosecution has done — or continue exercising them against jurors it finds objectionable.

If the defense waives the challenges, it would mean the 11 tentative jurors would be permanently seated.

"Don't be surprised at what happens Tuesday," Cooper told newsmen. "We just might have a jury."

The 12th seat in the jury box, however, remains vacant.

Federal Suit Against IBM 'Monopoly'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Justice Department filed suit yesterday against the International Business Machines Corp. (IBM), charging the company is monopolizing interstate trade in computers.

The civil antitrust suit, filed in New York federal court but announced in Washington by Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, charged that IBM fixed prices, discriminated among customers and pursued policies that made it impossible for other manufacturers to compete effectively.

A spokesman at IBM headquarters in Armonk, N.Y., said the suit was "unwarranted and without foundation." He said the company had produced "evidence of strong and increasing competition" in the data-processing industry in the course of nearly three years of talks with the Justice Department.

The department is seeking a court order to require IBM to end its alleged monopoly in the general-purpose digital computer field.

The suit said IBM is the world's largest manufacturer of information-handling systems, with a gross of $5.3 billion and a net of $561.5 million in 1967.

The government estimated that $2.3 billion of the 1967 gross came from the sale or lease of general-purpose digital computers—about 74 per cent of the total revenue in this field compared to 5 per cent for its nearest competitor.

Put On Probation

Theodore Henry Pilat, 30, of Novato, was placed on three years of probation in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for joyriding and petty theft Dec. 27 in Novato.

Pickets Hurl Taunts, Eggs At Reagan

BERKELEY (UPI) — University of California regents held their regular meeting yesterday amidst hundreds of militant students who gathered to demonstrate their support for strikers at San Francisco State College.

The demonstrators paraded around the building where the regents met and carried signs reading "Solidarity with S.F. State Strike" and "Mickey Mouse regents go home."

For the most part, campus police kept the students away from the building but some demonstrators pounded on the locked doors, kicked in a pane of glass in one door, and tossed eggs at Gov. Ronald Reagan's car as he departed.

Peter Stone, one of the organizers of the protest, said the effort was "directed specifically at 'bayonet' Reagan, but also at the regents. It's not just the trustees and Hayakawa that are coming down on the strikers, but the whole California ruling class, of which the regents are a part."

As part of their regular agenda the regents moved to revise the handling of the university's $660 - million investment portfolio.

The investment practices came under attack earlier in the week by Berkeley student body president Charles Palmer, who charged the portfolio was earning only "moderate" returns.

Attention had been focused on the investment program earlier, however, when regent Norton Simon complained about the handling of the fund. A five-member committee of investment experts was appointed to study the entire portfolio.

The regents declined to take final action on the committees recommended changes, but did put the matter on the agenda for their next meeting.

Although the regents' session yesterday was closed to the public, Reagan told newsmen he was concerned about "the question of credit for some of the newer courses"—an apparent reference to the Hayden lectures at Berkeley.

Chancellor Roger W. Heyns of the Berkeley campus said earlier that the Hayden lectures were not being offered for credit. But under questioning by a regents' committee he admitted it was possible for some students to obtain credit for attending the talks.

The establishment of black studies departments at state colleges and the university was also an issue at the regents' meeting, although an unofficial one.

Governor Reagan, speaking to newsmen on his arrival at the meeting, said he had "no quarrel" with the establishment of such courses.

However, he said, the militants' demand for autonomous control of the departments "just doesn't make sense."

"These phony dissidents are confusing the issue. They shouldn't have control of a black studies program any more than any other part of the curriculum," Reagan said.

U.S., Paris Differ On Mideast Peace

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

France has called for a Big Four conference aimed at settling the Middle East crisis, but the United States is reported backing a peacemaking plan which would include provisions for direct talks between the Arab states and Israel.

The Washington Evening Star, in a story following the French announcement yesterday, quoted qualified sources as saying Secretary of State Dean Rusk outlined a form of two-track negotiations in a note handed to Soviet Charge d'Affaires Yuri N. Tcherniakov.

The Star said Rusk's note proposed talks between the United States and the Soviet Union, and separate talks between Israel and the Arab states under a U.N. "umbrella."

The talks between the two big powers, the newspaper reported, would be to help U.N. special envoy Gunnar V. Jarring mark out "the perimeters" for detailed Arab-Israeli negotiations. Jarring reportedly would mediate the talks between the Arabs and Israelis.

The French proposal, issued at the United Nations and in Paris, suggested that France, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union meet at the United Nations to discuss ways to end the Middle East dispute.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel said yesterday the Soviet Union's latest plan for peace in the Middle East displayed "a low level of thought, politics and expression."

The plan reportedly calls for both sides to declare in writing unconditional acceptance of the U.N. peace formula.

Garrison Switches, Asks Shaw Trial Delay

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has asked for an indefinite delay of the trial of Clay L. Shaw, 55, charged with conspiring with Lee Harvey Oswald and others to murder President John F. Kennedy. The trial was scheduled to start Tuesday.

Garrison claims that federal secrecy has crippled his case.

Asst. Dist. Atty. James L. Alcock filed a motion for postponement yesterday with Criminal District Court Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. A hearing was set for Monday.

The motion marked an abrupt reversal by the prosecution. A few weeks ago, Garrison said only his death could stop the trial.

Alcock's statement in announcing the new motion carried a strong hint that the Shaw case might never reach the courtroom.

Alcock's action—opposed by the defense—came shortly after a Washington hearing in which Court of General Sessions Judge Charles Halleck rejected Garrison's subpoena of autopsy photographs and X-rays of Kennedy.

Halleck told New Orleans Asst. Dist. Atty. N. V. Bertel Jr. that he would have to show that the autopsy records are necessary to the case and that "this is something more than a fishing expedition."

Saying he wanted to be sure Garrison was not simply trying to "obtain what surely must be sensational photographs," Halleck gave Bertel two weeks to produce evidence.

The conspiracy case contends that Kennedy was fired upon from at least two directions and that the autopsy material would prove it.

The autopsy photographs and X-rays were placed in the National Archives by the Kennedy family, with the stipulation that they not be made public.

Alcock criticized U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark for releasing Thursday night a report by a panel of four medical experts who checked the autopsy materials and backed up the Warren Commission.

Pacifica Resident Denies Lanes Holdup

Daniel Thomas Stathos, 22, of Pacifica, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge that he stole $1,500 at gunpoint Oct. 28 from Greenbrae Lanes, Larkspur.

Preliminary hearing on the charge was scheduled for Jan. 27.

York, where illicit drugs bring a higher price.

Mason was released this morning, but the other seven suspects were held in lieu of $10,000 bail. They will appear in court for arraignment at 2 p.m. Monday.

In another incident later last night, two Berkeley men were arrested by Marin sheriff's deputies on the beach near Inverness on suspicion of being under the influence of a dangerous drug. Donald Frederick Walker and Anthony Wicher, who was found without his pants, told deputies they "were tripping out on acid."

peacefully at San Francisco State yesterday while meetings were held to discuss that school's continuing student-teacher-administration standoff.

In San Jose, the president of the teachers union's state college council has called for a one-day, state-wide strike at California's 18 college campuses Wednesday in response to the firing of striking professors at San Jose State College.

The angry strike call by Dr. John Sperling came yesterday after officials at the San Jose campus ruled that 25 striking teachers had automatically resigned their positions by staying out for five days.

The administration indicated the attendance records of another 100 teachers were being checked with an eye toward termination of their employment.

The issue sparked a brief outburst of violence and vandalism at the campus after a noon rally called to voice support for the striking teachers. A city police officer was shot at but not injured and a band of militant students went on a rampage through several buildings.

At the rally Sperling said that if the state-wide strike does not persuade the state college trustees "to negotiate on the real problems then we will take them out again . . . that's what this strike is all about."

The San Jose teachers left their classes in support of the faculty-student strike at San Francisco State College, 50 miles north.

Owners Fight Houseboat Curb

The attorney for three houseboat owners has asked that Marin Municipal Court be stopped from taking action under Marin County's new ordinance requiring occupancy permits on the grounds that it is unconstitutional.

Carl B. Shapiro, who represents Alexis Tellis, Joan Buys and Douglas McCoy, maintains that the ordinance is unconstitutional on four grounds. He said that the boats are under federal jurisdiction and state jurisdiction and that the ordinance denies the right of protection against unreasonable search as well as the right of equal protection.

Shapiro's request for a writ of prohibition will be heard at 2 p.m. Feb. 3 by Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating.

Schools Art Show

Staff of the San Rafael City Schools is displaying many forms of art work in the board of education room of the administration building, Third and E streets. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays until Friday.

Houseboats Restrictions On Agenda

A new chapter in the Marin County Code to provide zoning regulations on floating homes and houseboat marinas will be discussed by the Marin County Planning Commission Monday morning.

The all-day meeting starts at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

Other morning items include a continued hearing on a plan for a system of trails across Tiburon Peninsula, rezoning of 48 acres south of Gnoss Field from planned industrial to resort and commercial recreation, and a proposed planned residential project on 2.6 acres at the intersection of Erica Road and Trillium Lane in Mill Valley.

At 2 p.m. the California Conference Covenant Church will present plans for a social hall, classrooms and church offices on five acres of land on Ellen Drive in Marinwood.

The First Congregational Church of San Rafael will seek rezoning to build 60 to 70 units of apartments at the southwest corner of San Pedro Road and Merrydale Road, Los Ranchitos. The church owns 4.56 acres, of which 3.3 acres is vacant.

The planning commissioners will also discuss new sign regulations.

Volynov is safe and well," Tass said. "The cosmonaut feels fine."

As in the case of yesterday's landing of Soyuz 4, Tass said, a huge orange parachute and jet engines broke the fall of the spaceship for the soft landing.

The Soviets hailed the space feats of the Soyuz mission as the first actual space platform put together in orbit.

Western space experts said what they did, however, was create more of a space bus than a true manned orbital platform.

December Crash Fatal To Man

Salvatore Aiello was thrown from a pickup truck which hit a curb and overturned, according to California Highway Patrol officers. The other occupant of the truck, Joseph V. Scott, 49, also of San Francisco, died soon after the crash. It was not known which man was driving.

Aiello's death was the first traffic fatality in Marin this year, compared to none at this time last year.

Aiello was the 49th person to die as a result of traffic accidents occurring last year in Marin, compared to 38 fatalities in 1967.

Novato Given Grant For Downtown Study

A $31,020 grant to the City of Novato to study its downtown has been approved by the federal government.

The city applied in May to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the planning grant. The study is to be made by the San Francisco planning firm of Sedway and Cooke.

Liberation Front. The Hanoi front side, attempting to assert the NLF's independence, will call it four-sided.

They disagreed, too, on the name of the conference, although the North Vietnamese spokesman said this was of "no importance." It seemed of importance to the Americans and South Vietnamese, who will continue to call this "The Paris Meeting" while the other side insists on "The Conference of Paris on Vietnam."

The reason for the allied stand, Jorden explained, was that the term meeting, while it means something more formal than the "conversations" of the past, does not imply all the formality of "conference," which would suggest a meeting of sovereign governments.

The Hanoi-front camp suggested Tuesday for the first meeting on matters of substance regarding Vietnam. However, W. Averell Harriman, the U.S. chief of delegation for the last eight months, planned to leave for home tomorrow, giving way to President-elect Nixon's appointee, Henry Cabot Lodge.

Vance said he would have to confer with Washington before he could definitely agree to a specified date, but he indicated the date would be soon.

There were two breaks, one of 35 minutes and one of 45 minutes, during the day's session. The delegates used them to repair to the offices assigned them in the International Conference Center, the former Hotel Majestic. But there were contacts during the breaks, including one between the North Vietnamese and an American delegate.

Fall Seriously Injures Girl

Karen Jacobsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jacobsen of 316 Golden Gate Avenue, was reported in fair condition today with multiple fractures in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital.

Belvedere firemen brought up the child by stretcher from the bottom of the 100-foot rocky cliff. Firemen were unable to report how far down the cliff the girl was when she fell.

Search Fails To Find Body Of Painter

The body of Harold Laereman, 47, of San Rafael, a painter who apparently fell off the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge Thursday afternoon, had still not been found today, Coast Guard officers said.

Fellow workers said they did not see Laereman fall, but they sighted him swimming in the swift current 60 feet below. They threw a large sheet of plywood and a timber barricade to Laereman but the strong tide carried him toward the Golden Gate before he could reach the wood.

Baha'i's To Observe World Religion Day

Baha'i's of Marin will observe World Religion Day with an opening meeting at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the American Legion Hall, 469 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Special speakers will be Dr. Megha Shayn and Ambrose Mason, discussing the building of a "new world."

Second Museum Aide Quits

Lack of support from directors of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science in San Rafael was blamed today for the second high-level resignation in five months.

David Cavagnaro, education director at the museum for almost two years, left his post Wednesday, less than five months after Clara Evans, museum director resigned. She said she "did not have the support of the board."

Cavagnaro, hired to develop an education program at the museum, said he regularly submitted plans and programs but "all of it fell on deaf ears."

For example, he said about 18 months ago he asked that the room used for classes be remodeled for that purpose "for a couple of hundred dollars." The board, he said, promised the changes immediately, but remodeling is just beginning now.

Cavagnaro said when he began, two or three classes were offered per quarter and now there are 15 to 18 — all filled. "The response from the public has been outstanding," he said.

Cavagnaro, a 1960 graduate of Tamalpais High School, was an assistant at the California Acatemy of Science before taking the Marin museum job. He is now a photographer for the natural science division of the Oakland Museum.

His wife, Margie, naturalist at the museum, will probably continue working there for a couple of months, Cavagnaro said.

The couple plans to continue living in Marin's San Geronimo Valley and remain active in natural science education in the county.

plained the shift was because Burke's plan now clearly violated the commission's plan, but in August it still was unknown what the plan would allow.

"Certainly it would be hard to imagine an applicant with more tenacity" said Bodovitz of Burke.

San Mateo County Supervisor Robert B. St. Clair, during the one hour debate before the vote, warned that rejection of Burke's plan would make the commission's master plan "a receptacle for lawsuits in the future."

He also warned that if the commission expected the Legislature to adopt the plan and keep controls over bay fill, then "reasonable compromises" such as Burke's plan should be approved. Otherwise, he declared, "our plan is in great danger."

"Maybe our plan isn't quite right if we can't have this kind of compromise," agreed commissioner Melville Owen of Kentfield, who voted against the fill permit.

Dr. William F. Upton of the Marin County Planning Commission joined Owen in the negative vote, while two Marinites were among those favoring the proposal, T. Fred Bagshaw of Mill Valley and Edward J. Slevin of San Rafael.

Summer Home Is Scene Of Burglary

Fred N. Wood of Portola Valley reported to sheriff's deputies that someone had stolen a wallet containing about $35 and credit cards as well as a small television set from his summer home at Bolinas.

The burglary occurred last Saturday, he said.

Premier Tran Van Huong has expressed belief the Americans could pull out 10,000 men a month without compromising the allied combat effort. But a spokesman for Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander, said today "too many intangibles" are involved to consider concrete figures at this time.

Each of the American Army's line divisions numbers about 15,000 men, the airborne brigade about 5,000, and the Marine division about 22,000 at full strength.

Discussing the contingency plans, officers said that even if a full American unit was withdrawn, colors and all, it would not necessarily mean that all of its members would go along.

Men with six months or more of Vietnam service probably could accompany their unit from the country while those with less than six months would be transferred into units remaining behind.

At the same time, veterans from remaining units might be transferred into a departing one to flesh out its strength.

sound out and summon neighbors to the home attacked.

This kind of neighborhood involvement has been called for in recent weeks by Marin police chiefs and by Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, whose department Mrs. Woolridge credited with recently providing "the best service we've received in years."

She said the ridge area has in the past "been lightly patrolled, as have all outlying areas," but is now checked from time to time by an undercover patrol.

In other action, the association directors voted to petition the county public works department to place reflectors on the center line of Panoramic Highway and to paint white lines along the shoulders.

Variances Sought

Two side yard and one front yard setback variance will be considered by the Tiburon Board of Adjustments at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

Runoff Vote Monday At Novato High

Runoff elections for the president and commissioner of student affairs for the spring semester at Novato High School will be held Monday, after a close election for these offices yesterday, according to Asst. Principal Edward Kraft.

Of the 1,544 students in the high school, 1,286 voted, 152 were absent and 106 did not vote, Kraft said. This was the largest turnout ever recorded at the school, he said.

The vote count for candidates and offices, however, was kept secret in accordance with school administration practice.

Judi Painter and Steve Loegering will run off for the presidency. These two headed a field of six for the office. Others running were Phil Emswiler, Ron Federick, Dave Luc and Greg Rockwell.

Mike Koehler and Marc Ream will be in a runoff for commissioner of student affairs.

Mike Ahern won the vice presidency over Chris Arent and Becky Nordstrom. Pam Clark beat Sue Swabacker for secretary and Laurina Parr was unopposed for treasurer.

Kevin McDowell won the commissioner of social activities from Lynn Leonelli. Three commissioner positions were unopposed. They were: Chris Rohrer for commissioner of justice, Bob Koehler for public relations, and Glenn Holsclaw for athletics and awards.

Tam Valley May Lose Its Library

The Tamalpais Valley branch of the county library should be closed because of declining patronage, County Librarian Bruce D. Bajema recommended yesterday.

The recommendation will go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors Tuesday morning.

Cost of maintaining the branch, at Poplar and Locust streets in Tamalpais Valley, is $243 per month, including $100 for rent.

Bajema will recommend that a public meeting be held on Jan. 29 at the branch library to explain the closing and that the branch be closed by March 1.

Circulation of books at the Tamalpais Valley branch went as high as a thousand books a month back in 1966, but it declined steadily since then and hit a low of 182 books last month, the county librarian reported.

Burglary Sentence

Richard Lawrence Holstrom, 21, was sentenced to six months in jail and placed on three years of probation in Marin Superior Court yesterday for burgling a Bevedere home Aug. 5, 1967.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Elise Pedrusci Dies At 70

Elise Pedrusci, retired registered nurse and wife of former restaurateur Steve Pedrusci of San Anselmo, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 70.

Born in Gorduno, Switzerland, where she was reared and educated, she came to the United States in 1920, settling briefly in Modesto, then moving to San Francisco.

She received her nurse's training at San Francisco County Hospital in the late 1920s and pursued a nursing career until about 1944, when she retired. She was for many years a member of the Ross Art and Garden Center.

In 1937, she married Pedrusci, who in 1933 had established Julius Castle, a restaurant noted both for its cuisine and as a San Francisco landmark high on Telegraph Hill. He sold the restaurant in 1958.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Pedrusci is survived by two sisters and a brother in Switzerland.

A Mass of Requiem will be offered Monday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Rita's Church, Fairfax. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Memorial gifts to the Marin County Heart Association would be preferred by the family.

LOUISE FREELAND HARRINGTON

Memorial service for Louise Freeland Harrington of Sausalito will be held on Monday at 10 a.m. at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Harrington died Thursday of burns suffered in a fire Jan. 9 at her home at 34 Curry Avenue.

A graduate of Vassar, she lived in Marin coumty for 11 years. She was a volunteer at Sausalito Salvage Shop and the Easter Seal Society's adult recreation group.

She was born in Rochester, N.Y., and she lived in Illinois and New York before coming to California.

She is survived by her sons, John T. Ponting of Larkspur and Michael R. Ponting of San Francisco, and a stepson, Jonathan D. Harrington of Ossining, N.Y., and five grandchildren. Her parents were the late George Freeland and the late Edna Percy Riley of New York.

MISS ANN WIDDERSHOVEN

Ann Widdershoven, 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. Phyllis Widdershoven of 31 Leafwood Circle, San Rafael, died yesterday at a local hospital.

The child suffered brain damage at birth and was also a victim of cystic fibrosis.

A few years ago more than 100 community volunteers, many of them strangers to the family, assisted in daily patterning exercises to try and help Ann use her arms and legs.

Mrs. Widdershoven is the executive director of the Marin Easter Seal Society and has served on the board of directors of the Marin Aid to Retarded Children.

Survivors are her mother, and a sister, Elizabeth Widdershoven.

Private funeral was held today at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Inurnment was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to the donor's favorite charity.

Burglary Admitted

Bradley M. Zappa, 19, of San Rafael, pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to burgling the Western Boat Shop in San Rafael Oct. 23. He was told to return to court Feb. 17 for sentencing.

Inaugural Festivities Underway In Capitol

By MOLLY MARIN

In Washington, D.C. for the inaugural activities scheduled today through Monday are Congressman William S. Mailliard and his wife, along with Judge Janet Aitken, a frequent visitor to Belvedere; the Victor Levits of Belvedere and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwab of San Rafael. Mrs. Mailliard served as a hostess at the Distinguished Ladies Reception this afternoon at the National Gallery in Washington. Also participating in the inaugural activities are Congressman Don Clausen and Mrs. Clausen.

The Michael Goldwaters of Mill Valley received an inaugural ball and activities invitation but decided not to make the trip. Michael, of course, is the son of Sen. and Mrs. Barry Goldwater.

A 1966 Hamilton Air Force Debutante will watch the inaugural parade with more than passing interest Monday. Karen Traverso's fiance, John W. Martin Jr., cadet colonel and wing commander of the Cadet Corps at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, will lead cadets in the nation's capitol.

John's home town is Montgomery, Ala. and the couple met when he was assigned as Karen's escort to the Debutante Ball at Hamilton Air Force Base in 1966. She is the daughter of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Normand Traverso of San Rafael.

A YEAR-LONG tour of North America is planned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boat, longtime Tiburon residents, who leave next week. They will tour by travel trailer, heading first for Mexico, where they will spend two months. The tentative itinerary then calls for a northern trek up the Pacific Coast to Canada, crossing Canada and traveling down the East Coast of the United States for a stay in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Schleiger honored Bob and Dorothy at a dinner party Friday night and on Saturday the D. W. Billings home in Tiburon will be the setting for a party when many friends and former neighbors on Old Landing Road will wish the Boats bon voyage.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT F. MacKay have returned to their San Rafel home after a trip to Australia and the Fiji Islands. They spent 10 days on a sugar farm in Bundaberg, Queensland, Australia as the guests of a friend of Mrs. MacKay from her native England, who is married to an Australian. The MacKays then flew to Fiji, where they spent two days.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl Tells Of Restrictions While Being Helper At Home

DEAR HELEN:

I have a part time job, buy all my own clothes, even shoes; I pay for my school lunches, cosmetics, etc. I even pay my own dentist and doctor bills. I also give my dad three dollars a week to drive me to work.

At home I clean, iron, babysit, cook sometimes, and do all the dishes. How old do you think I am? Sixteen, 17? No, I'll be 15 this month.

Don't you think these things prove I'm not a baby any more. My parents don't believe so. They won't let me date or even know boys. At school the kids talk about dances and guys and I don't know what to say. I'm gradually losing my friends. Boys seem interested, but — they can't even call me.

If my folks trust me enough to leave the house to me and let me earn my way, why do they feel I'll get in trouble with the first date? I do love them, but I'm beginning to hate them a little too. Tell me what you think Helen.

— NOT OLD ENOUGH?

DEAR NOT:

If you assume all these responsibilities, you certainly are old enough to date. Parents who veto normal boy-girl friendships are either paranoid or else they balk at letting loose of a good thing. Perhaps yours think you don't have time for boys — because they'll take you from "more important' 'matters like housework and paying your own way at age-15. Let's hope they're merely scared, and that they outgrow it soon. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My problem is I'm living a rerun. My former boy friend, "A", is older than me. My new boy friend, "B", is a little younger. Everything "A" went through in school, "B" is now going through. They both hate the same subjects and teachers. They even look alike, and their families remind me of each other.

The difference is "A" was a rat who cheated on me and finally dropped me. He hardly ever took me any place. "B" treats me like a queen. So why, Helen, am I beginning to like "A" again, when "B" is so much better? I see "A" a lot because we hang around with the same crowd. Help, before I do something stupid — LIVING A RE-RUN

DEAR LAAR:

My I.G.A.P. (I'm Guessing Again Perception) tells me "A" is unfinished business. What you think is attraction for him is perhaps a subconscious urge to prove he can't do without you. . . . This so you won't feel "dumped." You chose "B" because he was "A" minus faults, remember?

Don't let a get even complex turn off a good boy friend. In your case, A plus B equals Zero. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 20-year-old wife and mother of a beautiful baby girl. Three months ago my husband and I started a joint checking account after the bank thoroughly investigated us. We were given personalized checks, but Helen, it's almost impossible to use them. We both look younger than we are, and sales clerks, even bank tellers, refuse to cash our checks. I guess they think we're trying to forge our parents' names. We'll be told it's against the policy of the store to cash checks, and then along comes an older person who gets her money or purchase with no trouble at all.

A few times we have even had lectures on "irresponsible youth." Any advice for us? — NOT REALLY TOO YOUNG

DEAR NOT:

Wouldn't your picutres on your drivers licenses help? Or why not trade at a few key stores where you'll soon become known? Most young people go through a period of mild distrust before they establish themselves and their credit. Someday you'll remember back and wish those too-young days were here again. — H.

Petaluma Miss Takes Honors, Is First Californian To Win

For the first time in the history of the Make It Yourself With Wool contest, a California girl has placed in national competition. Debra Ann Kuck, 14, of Petaluma was named alternate Thursday evening in the junior division of the contest which is sponsored by the American Wool Council, a division of the American Sheep Producers Council, and the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Association.

Debra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kuck of Petaluma and a freshman at Petaluma High School. She is one of the youngest girls to compete in the MIYWW contest and will assume top responsibilities if, sometime during the year, Karen Craft, 16, of Edson, Kan., is unable to complete her duties as first place winner in the division.

Named top seamstress in the senior division was Laura Kittrell, 17, of Archton, Miss. First place winners receive an all-expense paid trip to Europe this summer with all competitors being the recipients of numerous awards and prizes.

Debra's ensemble was of one-hundred per cent wool as required. It is of moss green, a two-piece vest and pleated skirt combination, which she wears with a white blouse and a green, orange and off white tie. The outfit compliments her brown hair and eyes and peach and golden complexion. She has entered the MIYWW contest for three years.

Along with sewing, Debra is a 4-H member, a Candy Striper and belongs to the National Holstein Association. She has been treasurer, recreation leader and sergeant-at-arms in 4-H clubs.

Compeition was held at the San Francisco Hilton hotel where girls, representing 20 Sheep Councils from throughout the United States, modeled their garments for the judges and the public.

The Winners were chosen from 42 finalists from 45 states who were selected previously from 19,481 girls in district and state competitions based on the girl's ability with 100 per cent wool loomed or knitted in America.

Tinkerbelle Skipper Calls Trip 'Ultra-Togetherness'

By BETTY FROST

Unusual voyages on small yachts are the trademark of Robert Manry, the Cleveland newspaperman who first gained international fame with his single-handed Atlantic crossing on the 13 and a half foot sailboat, Tinkerbelle.

"What," friends had asked Manry, "are you going to do now to top that?" In the program presented yesterday, the third in the A.M. series, given under the sponsorship of the Family Service League of Marin, the sailor-writer gave the answer.

"A Landlubber's Dream," the talk topic, gave details of the voyage of Manry; his wife, Virginia; their daughter, Robin; son, Douglas; German shepherd dog, Chrissie; and the family cat, a girl named Fred. The 8,000 mile voyage from Cleveland back to Cleveland aboard the 27 ft. yawl-rigged yacht, the Curlew, took the family a year.

"Living in a space about the size of a family bathroom for that length of time was ultra-togetherness," Manry told the audience. "It's a wonder we're still speaking to one another."

"After the taste of adventure that our family has had with the Tinkerbelle, we wanted more," he said. Mrs. Manry and the children had met the yachtsman in England when Tinkerbelle arrived and stayed in London for a month.

Exploring North American waterways, the Manrys left Cleveland a year ago August, went through the Great Lakes, from Lake Huron to Lake Michigan, to Chicago, down the Illinois River to the Mississippi, down the Mississippi to New Orleans. They went across Florida entering the Caloosahatchee River, traveling through Lake Okeechobee and connecting canals to the Atlantic. Their route took them to the Bahamas, back up the inland waterway on the Atlantic Coast, past New York City, and into the Hudson River thence to the St. Lawrence waterway and back to Cleveland.

Colored slides emphasized the more idyllic parts of the long voyage. "When it was rough we were too busy to take pictures, and when we were arguing, we were too busy to take pictures," Manry quipped.

The children studied by correspondence course, with Douglas completing his eighth grade work. "Midway in her course, my daughter decided to take the advice of her high school principal, to consider the voyage itself an educational experience," Manry remarked. "I guess this makes her a correspondence school dropout."

Mrs. Manry continued a routine of household chores, and constantly had a bit of washing out to dry in the rigging. "The first thing you look for on a long voyage like this when you come into port is a place to take showers, next, a laundromat, then a good restaurant and the post office," the author said.

The famous yachtsman admitted that he had never sailed on San Francisco Bay, but regretfully turned down invitations from members of the audience to meet Bay sailors at Marin yachting centers. His tight schedule, he explained, calls for him to be in Portland tomorrow.

Miss Grant Engaged To Joe Costarella

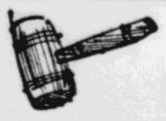
FONCINE GRANT

An April 12 wedding at Hope Lutheran Church in San Mateo is planned by Foncine Grant of Belmont and Joseph A. Costarella of San Mateo. The announcement is made by the future bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rober W. Grant of Novato.

Foncine was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin. Ronald W. Grant is her brother. She is employed by United Airlines as a ticket agent at the San Francisco International Airport.

Joseph is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Costarella of San Mateo. He is a graduate of Cubberly High School in Palo Alto and San Francisco State College, where he is now studying for a master's degree in industrial management. The future bridegroom is a communications staff assistant for United Airlines. He is the brother of Marlene Costarella of San Mateo and Dr. Robert Costarella of Albuquerque, N.M.

ON THE AGENDA



Harold Allison Offers 'Glimpse Into Future' At P-TA Meeting

Harold Allison, principal of Sir Francis Drake High School, will present a program on "Education Now for Tomorrow's World" at the Tamalpais High School library at 8 p.m. on Wednesday.

Allison's presentation for the Tamalpais High School Parent-Teacher Association is a result of his work as a regional chairman of the California Association of Secondary School Administrators' subcommittee on curriculum objectives, 1970-2,000. The committee was formed to meet the need for an updated statement of secondary school curriculum objectives, to equip the student for the world of the future.

The committee studied and assessed the works of long range forecasters, such as those of the commission on the year 2,000, the Rand Corporation, "Report on Long Range Forecasting Study'' and predictive works by scientists, sociologists, government commissions, economists, political scientists and industrial researchers. These were summarized by the committee to form a picture of the world of the future.

A statement of educational objectives was developed by seeking out the views of secondary school administrators throughout the state on how schools can prepare youth for the world of tomorrow.

"The committee feels,'' Allison said, "that the world of the future is going to be very different, and it will demand many adjustments in people. It is also becoming apparent that time is short to prepare the citizens of tomorrow."

Mrs. Richard Jessup, president of the Tamalpais High School P-TA, urges parents, students and members of the community to attend.

"This will be one of the few opportunities for parents to take advantage of this glimpse into the world of the future," she said. "Rather than merely feeling uncomfortable about change, we must become aware of what the future is likely to bring, and what we must do to provide an education which will enable our children to cope with complexities far beyond any we have encountered."

MILL VALLEY Bethel 119, International Order of Job's Daughters, will hold its initiation-inspection Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Mill Valley Masonic Temple. Laura Finzen will be the initiate.

The new Bethel Guardian Council members are Mrs. B. A. Pixley, guardian; Edward Windsor, associate guardian; Mrs. Dolph Jaeger, guardian secretary; Mrs. Roy Everett, guardian treasurer; Mrs. Stanley Grant, director of music; Mrs. Theresa Puharich, promoter of sociability; Mrs. William Maxwell, custodian of paraphernalia; Mrs. John P. Riedel, director of finance; and Mrs. William Howard, director of epochs.

The world is yours.

Beaded Trimming Is Source Of Concern For Seamstresses

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,
I had a frustrating experience with some beaded trimming I bought. It was so stiff it simply wouldn't bend to fit the neckline of my dress.

I had to go out and purchase some more making this a costly mistake.

MRS. C.E.R.

DEAR MRS. C.E.R.:
This is one of the little things we often tend to forget when we are purchasing trimming of any kind. There is a large variety of both the flexible and the rigid trimmings to choose from, but you must choose the right kind for your own particular application.

We have experimented with beaded trimmings to see if it was possible to use them on a scoop neckline since this kind of neckline would not involve quite such an extreme curve that you would find on a regular jewel neckline. We dipped some trimmings in very hot water which removed the sizing from the backing used for the beading. It did soften up quite a bit and was more adaptable than before.

Another solution was to use your zipper foot and stitch a line of machine stitching very close to the last row of beading. Carefully pull up the lower thread until you find a curved edge that eases in enough for some necklines.

Perhaps you can use the trimming you bought on another dress. If it is still too stiff, use it as a trim for welt pockets, edging sleeves or a tab at the center front of your dress. It can also be used on a true mandarin neckline.

MRS. BERNICE HYATT, Norfolk, Va., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion:

You can use an invisible zipper foot to stitch cording on dresses and jackets. Just run the cord through the same slot that you use when you place the teeth of the zipper in it. Keep the edge of your fabric on the seam guide line of your sewing machine and sew. The zipper foot will guide the cording.

DEAR EUNICE,
I just made a simple sheath style dress out of a brocaded taffeta material and have discovered it pulled out at the seams.

MRS. L. McM.

DEAR MRS. L. McM.:
You gave me the clue to your problem when you mentioned that your dress was made of a taffeta fabric. Taffetas, silk shantungs and similar fabrics which are very closely woven, have a tendency to pull at the seams since there is absolutely no "give" in these fabrics.

I would always recommend underlining this kind of fabric. With the two layers of fabric treated as one, there isn't much of a chance for pulling out. If you are using this kind of fabric in a fitted dress, it is advisable to attach an inside belt of grosgrain ribbon at the waist, making it slightly tighter than the dress thereby causing it to take the strain.

DEAR EUNICE,
Why is it that some dresses wrinkle so badly and others don't?

MRS. L.R.S.

DEAR MRS. L.R.S.:
I imagine that you will find almost any fabric you purchase today will have a finish on it that keeps it almost wrinkle-free. This finish is used on linens and silks, as well as synthetics and doesn't change the physical aspects of the fabric; it just makes it much nicer to wear.

I never press my clothes between wearings since all the fabrics I work with are as wrinkle-free as you can get. If some of you are using fabrics that you have stored for a long time, you will find a big difference in the way they hold up compared to today's fabrics. I would also recommend underlining almost everything as an additional help.

ART REVIEW

Driftwood Artist's Works Inconsistent

The natural beauty and sculptural richness of driftwood's bleached grays, charred blacks, pocks, twists and burls, have not been lost on artist Hidi Flandor. Her show this month at the Unitarian Church, 240 Channing Way in San Rafael, has many exquisite specimens, reassembled or grouped into wall hangings and sculpture.

When Miss Flandor leaves the wood in its natural state it is lovely. She shows taste and sensitivity in combining chunks of differing shapes, grain and color, in adding things such as an old carved wood angel or in perhaps painting a deep hole bright red so that a barnacled plaque rises in space.

FINDS HUMOR

She finds the wood's own humor in "The Ark" whose natural form already has an amusing boat-like shape and also when she adds antlers to create a "God of the Forest."

In all of these Miss Flandor is totally sensitive to the wood's innate richness. That is why it is so strange to see her almost total disregard for it when she coats it with paint and sticks disassociated bits of junk in meaningless patterns across the surface or when she uses it as a ground on which to draw.

The drawings she does on these usually involve figures, often childlike black-lined forms against dreamlike patches of colors or suggested landscapes. The greatest mileage she gets by using driftwood surfaces comes from the irregular shapes some of them provide.

ORDINARY PLANKS

However, many are little more than ordinary planks. Further, she makes little use of the qualities the wood might have in itself. Only occasionally does it become an integral part of the work as it does in "Dance in the Rain," where slanted, eroding streaks of paint are brushed with color giving a soft rainy atmosphere. And there are few times where the drawings are as powerful as the thick-colored "Party," and as able to hold their own.

More often the drawing and the natural driftwood ground have nothing in common. Instead of becoming a unit, they are two incompatible parts, each awkwardly trying to project its own identity over the alien strength of the other. The natural poetry of the wood is lost, the light fresh quality of Miss Flandor's drawing is overpowered and you wonder if the trick was really worth it.

Marin City Asks Clinic To Return

Marin City residents asked for the return of a county family planning clinic to the community after County Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht said Thursday that 41 per cent of Marinites using the clinic were Marin City residents.

The Marin City Community Services District and Marin City Council heard Dr. Albrecht explain that the removal of the clinic to San Rafael last month was because four women had been accosted outside the clinic at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, and two cars of clinic volunteer workers were broken into.

The district board set a meeting for 8 p.m. Feb. 6 at the Manzanita Neighborhood Center to discuss moving the clinic into the Manzanita Center, providing better police protection, and getting a health department aide assigned to Marin City to teach sex education.

Dr. Albrecht will meet with the district and council boards, Manzanita Director Charles W. Story, sheriff's officers and members of the County Economic Opportunity Council staff.

Thursday's joint meeting of the council and district board was only for the discussion with Dr. Albrecht. The district board went on to the two other items — a proposed second access road to Marin City and better postal facilities.

County Public Works Director Donald B. Frost said the proposed access route to Tennessee Valley was the most feasible of several suggested. Board members, however, feared the road might end up as a congested shortcut for Mill Valley commuters heading for San Francisco.

Frost said other routes studied linked to Rodeo and Spencer avenues above Sausalito, but would be useful only for San Francisco-bound traffic. Those routes also would cost $500,000 instead of the $300,000 estimated for the Tennessee Valley route, he said.

CONCERT REVIEW

Opera Workshop Not Ready For Public?

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

There were bright spots in the College of Marin Opera Workshop scenes from 20th Century operas last night in the studio theater of the fine arts building, but in general they were more like class exercises and not up to public performance.

Nor did the reason appear to be just problems caused by illnesses, for only one or two substitutions were required together with musical director Scott Merrick's having to sing two roles from libretti.

SCANT STAGING

There was practically no staging, very little suggestion of costume and lack of dramatic skill, with some exceptions. Very distracting was the stage background consisting of two huge blown-up photographs, one of a man's sad, clownish face and the other of a galaxy whirling in space. The black curtain would have been better.

The most favorable comment on the work of the students as a whole was that they evidently had done some hard work on their roles and really knew them.

Outstanding among the scenes was the one from Menotti's "The Medium" in which contralto Florence Bierman showed great promise as Mme. Flora, both in her singing and acting. The light, sweet lyric soprano of Sylvia Hyde was very good, too, in the role of Flora's daughter Monica.

Deserving most commendation throughout the evening was John Graulich, who did a fine job of reading of brief notes on the composers and their style of writing and of introducing scenes. He had a good, strong bass voice and dramatic talent, heard and seen in Milhaud's "The Poor Sailor," Bartok's "Bluebeard's Castle" and Britten's "Albert Herring."

AGILE SOPRANO

Janice McDonald's soprano was agile and expressive in Weill's "Street Scene" and "Albert Herring," and soprano Sonya Lawson was better in the excerpts from Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief" than in "The Poor Sailor" and Prokofiev's "The Duenna."

Though she has an essentially good mezzosoprano, Marjorie Broughton's work was not up to what we have heard her do previously, especially with the Dominican College Opera Workshop. Static hand and arm positions were flaws in her roles in "Bluebeard's Castle," Menotti's "The Consul" and the prologue of D'Allapiccola's "The Prisoner."

POWERFUL BASS

Clay Roni used his powerful bass effectively and was the only one attempting to act in "The Duenna."

Other workshop members performing with varying degrees of success were sopranos Karen Poston, Christina Jacqua and Ardith Anderson, baritones John Marshall and Tom Sheffield and tenor John Fitzmaurice.

Phyllis Murphy did her usual highly professional accompanying at the piano.

The program was much too long. It would have been better to spend more time on fewer scenes.

Other scenes will be presented tonight at 8 p.m.

Threat Of Bomb At Tam High

A telephoned bomb threat at Tamalpais High School delayed the start of classes until shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday, principal Robert Prather said.

Prather said "a male voice" called the school at 8:10 a.m., 20 minutes before the scheduled start of classes, and said "there's a bomb set to go off at your school and you'll never find it."

Students were kept outside while police, firemen and custodians searched the buildings. No bomb was found.

"There were a lot of cold kids," Prather said, but no complications in the search. The school followed search procedures worked out for such threats, he said.

Many Seek Aviation Board Seats

Applications are pouring in from residents interested in serving on the Marin County Aviation Commission, County Clerk George H. Gnoss reported yesterday.

The terms of four commissioners expired on Jan. 1. They are chairman Tris M. Coffin, Benjamin R. Ostlind, Douglas M. Christensen and Melville Dickson. The seven-member commission serves without pay.

As of Friday, the following 18 candidates, including one woman, all with aviation experience, had applied:

Al Hansen of San Rafael, business representative of Operating Engineers Local 3, San Francisco; Sinet Maurice Simon of Lucas Valley, employed by a pharmaceutical sales firm; Ray M. S. Swenson of San Rafael, employed by TV station KPIX; Mrs. S. W. Straw of Kentfield, housewife; John Merrill of San Rafael, vice president for Chevron Research Corp.; Landon J. Reid of San Rafael, real estate man; Lu Hurley, owner of Commodore Helicopters at Waldo Point and traffic director for KGO; Howard F. Hall of San Anselmo, an airlines pilot; William Charles Hasler of San Rafael, an airline pilot;

Edward R. Warner of San Rafael, furniture buyer for Macy's; John M. Strong of Novato, lithographer and part time rancher; Gordon C. Wright, Tiburon attorney; David B. McConnell of Novato, employed by Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Theodore N. Preovolos, Greenbrae dentist; Donald W. O'Neil, Corte Madera real estate man; John L. Baczynski of Novato, first officer for an airline; Joseph W. Burton, San Anselmo engineer; Jack Irwin, Bolinas aeronautical engineer.

County Clerk Gnoss said he has received dozens of telephone inquiries, and more applications are expected this week.

BIG AND BEAUTIFUL
High on a hill in Los Ranchitos, this one owner custom home gives complete privacy for a very large family or for two families living together. Entire first floor is for recreation or whatever fits your needs. Flexibility is the key. Most unusual atrium is the focal point of the living areas upstairs which include five bedrooms with four and one-half baths. A balcony encircling the outside takes advantage of fantastic views for every room. There is plenty of room for a pool, for horses — whatever you wish. Need we say more? $69,500.

JUST REDUCED $5,500
Now you can afford country living at its best in a moving area of Santa Rosa. Thirty usable acres that you might wish to subdivide in the future, surround this unusual three bedroom, two and one-half bath home. There are three fireplaces for winter warmth and three large decks for summer sun. Most cooperative owner said reduce the price to $97,500.

TO BUY AND BUILD
May we show you this lovely homesite in Sleepy Hollow? With more than one wooded acre, there is plenty of room to build your home and make a profit on the remainder. The street is paved — shops, transportation and school are nearby and you will like it! $15,000.

Everyone wants a view of Mt. Tamalpais and these two and one-half acres has just that. Suitable for two custom homes, a private road leads to the property. Owner is willing to cooperate with financing. $21,250.

INCOME ANYONE?
This valuable R-3 property is ready for a 15 unit apartment dwelling in an established apartment area in desirable Strawberry. Small existing cottage will provide income to cover taxes until you are ready to build. Come in and discuss it with us. $34,950.

NORTH BRIDGE — OUR FEATURE ATTRACTION
Offering a fine residence ideally located for San Francisco & East Bay commuters. The site is 79 ft. frontage and over 100 ft. in depth and completely level. The residence, ranch style in design is in tip top condition. Almost new luxurious w/w carpet has been installed over hardwood flooring. Three bedrooms are all good size. Modern family kitchen with closet & storage space galore, new coved linoleum, breakfast room all in sparkling condition. Separate dining room, 2 full ceramic tiled baths. A lifetime heavy shake roof. Entire grounds are landscaped including sprinkler system. Offered at $36,950.

$43,950 IT'S THE LIVING END!!!
A charm & character of it's very own with the utmost in privacy. Natural luxuriant growth prevails with large oaks & bays to enhance the setting. Residence uniquely designed to fit the setting. Sunken living room with quarry tiled flooring. Fieldstone fireplace and cathedral beamed ceiling. New England kitchen completely modernized adjoins separate family room. Three bedrooms, 2 full baths, an 18x40 heated pool bathed in sunshine for delightful outdoor enjoyment. Shown by appointment.

$42,500 FORSAKING ALL OTHERS
This is a ⅔-acre setting unlike anything else in the entire County. Included is an extra building site worth $8000 on its own. The grounds are mostly level with a gentle downslope complemented by a dozen stately and beautiful oak trees. More fruit trees than you can count. Exotic and mature shrubs & plants, winding garden paths, numerous patio areas plus outdoor deck and cookhouse with stove, refrigerator & wet bar provide a setting that will entrance you.

The residence offers FIVE bedrooms, all good size, a 12x33-ft. living room, a 14x22-ft. dining room reminiscent of the Hearst Castle on a smaller scale. Three full baths, family room. A little loving care could transform this small estate into a showplace. By the way, oceans of privacy.

Fairfax Girl Sought By Her Parents

Patricia Elaine Cooper, 15, of 300 Olema Road, Apt. 1, Fairfax, is missing from her home, her mother, Margaret, has reported.

The girl was last seen Jan. 11 on Fourth Street in San Rafael. She is described as blonde with blue-green eyes, five feet, five inches and weighing 100 pounds.

Tax Appeals Expert Loses Own Appeal

Attorney Julius H. Selinger, who has been presiding over tax appeals by property owners for the past two years, switched hats yesterday and himself appealed for tax reduction before his colleagues on the Assessment Appeals Board.

Selinger's appeal, based on a novel legal point, was rejected by board members David G. Cohn, James F. McConnell, and Edward P. Morphy.

Selinger owns five parcels of land in the East San Rafael Assessment District, on Belvedere Street near Alto and Tiburon streets. The total market value is $227,000.

Street improvements in the district were financed by improvement bonds. Since he still owes $32,861 in unpaid principal on the bonds, Selinger contended this amount should be deducted from the $227,000.

"This is double taxation," he charged. He argued that the Constitution makes a distinction between mortgages and bonds so that mortgages should be taxed but bonds should be exempted.

After an hour and a half of discussion, members of the appeals board said they see no double taxation and ruled that the $227,000 market value should stand.

Unity Leader To Give Talk

Rev. Louis E. Meyer, chaplain of ministerial training of the Unity School of Christianity, Lee's Summit, Mo., will be guest speaker at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Unity-in-Marin.

Meyer has been associated with Unity for many years first as a minister in Kansas City, before taking his present post.

His subject of discussion will be "Jesus Christ, the Mainstream of Life."

BOYS WEAR DRESSES IN PROTEST

Apartment Hit For $1,500 Loot

Two men took more than $1,500 worth of items from the apartment of Michael Ricciardi, 15 Charlotte Street, San Rafael, Thursday afternoon, police reported yesterday.

A neighbor told police she heard noises in the Ricciardi residence, downstaris, and saw a heavyset man with wavy hair carrying a stereo set out of the apartment. Another man was waiting in a car, she said, and they quickly sped off.

Ricciardi told police a shotgun, 22 cal. rifle, a color television, and stereo system were missing. Police said the door knob was twisted off and this, they believe, was the method of entry.

$50 Award For Litterbug Act

A $50 reward will go to Kenneth M. Burge of Nicasio for spotting illegal rubbish dumping on San Geronimo Road last August.

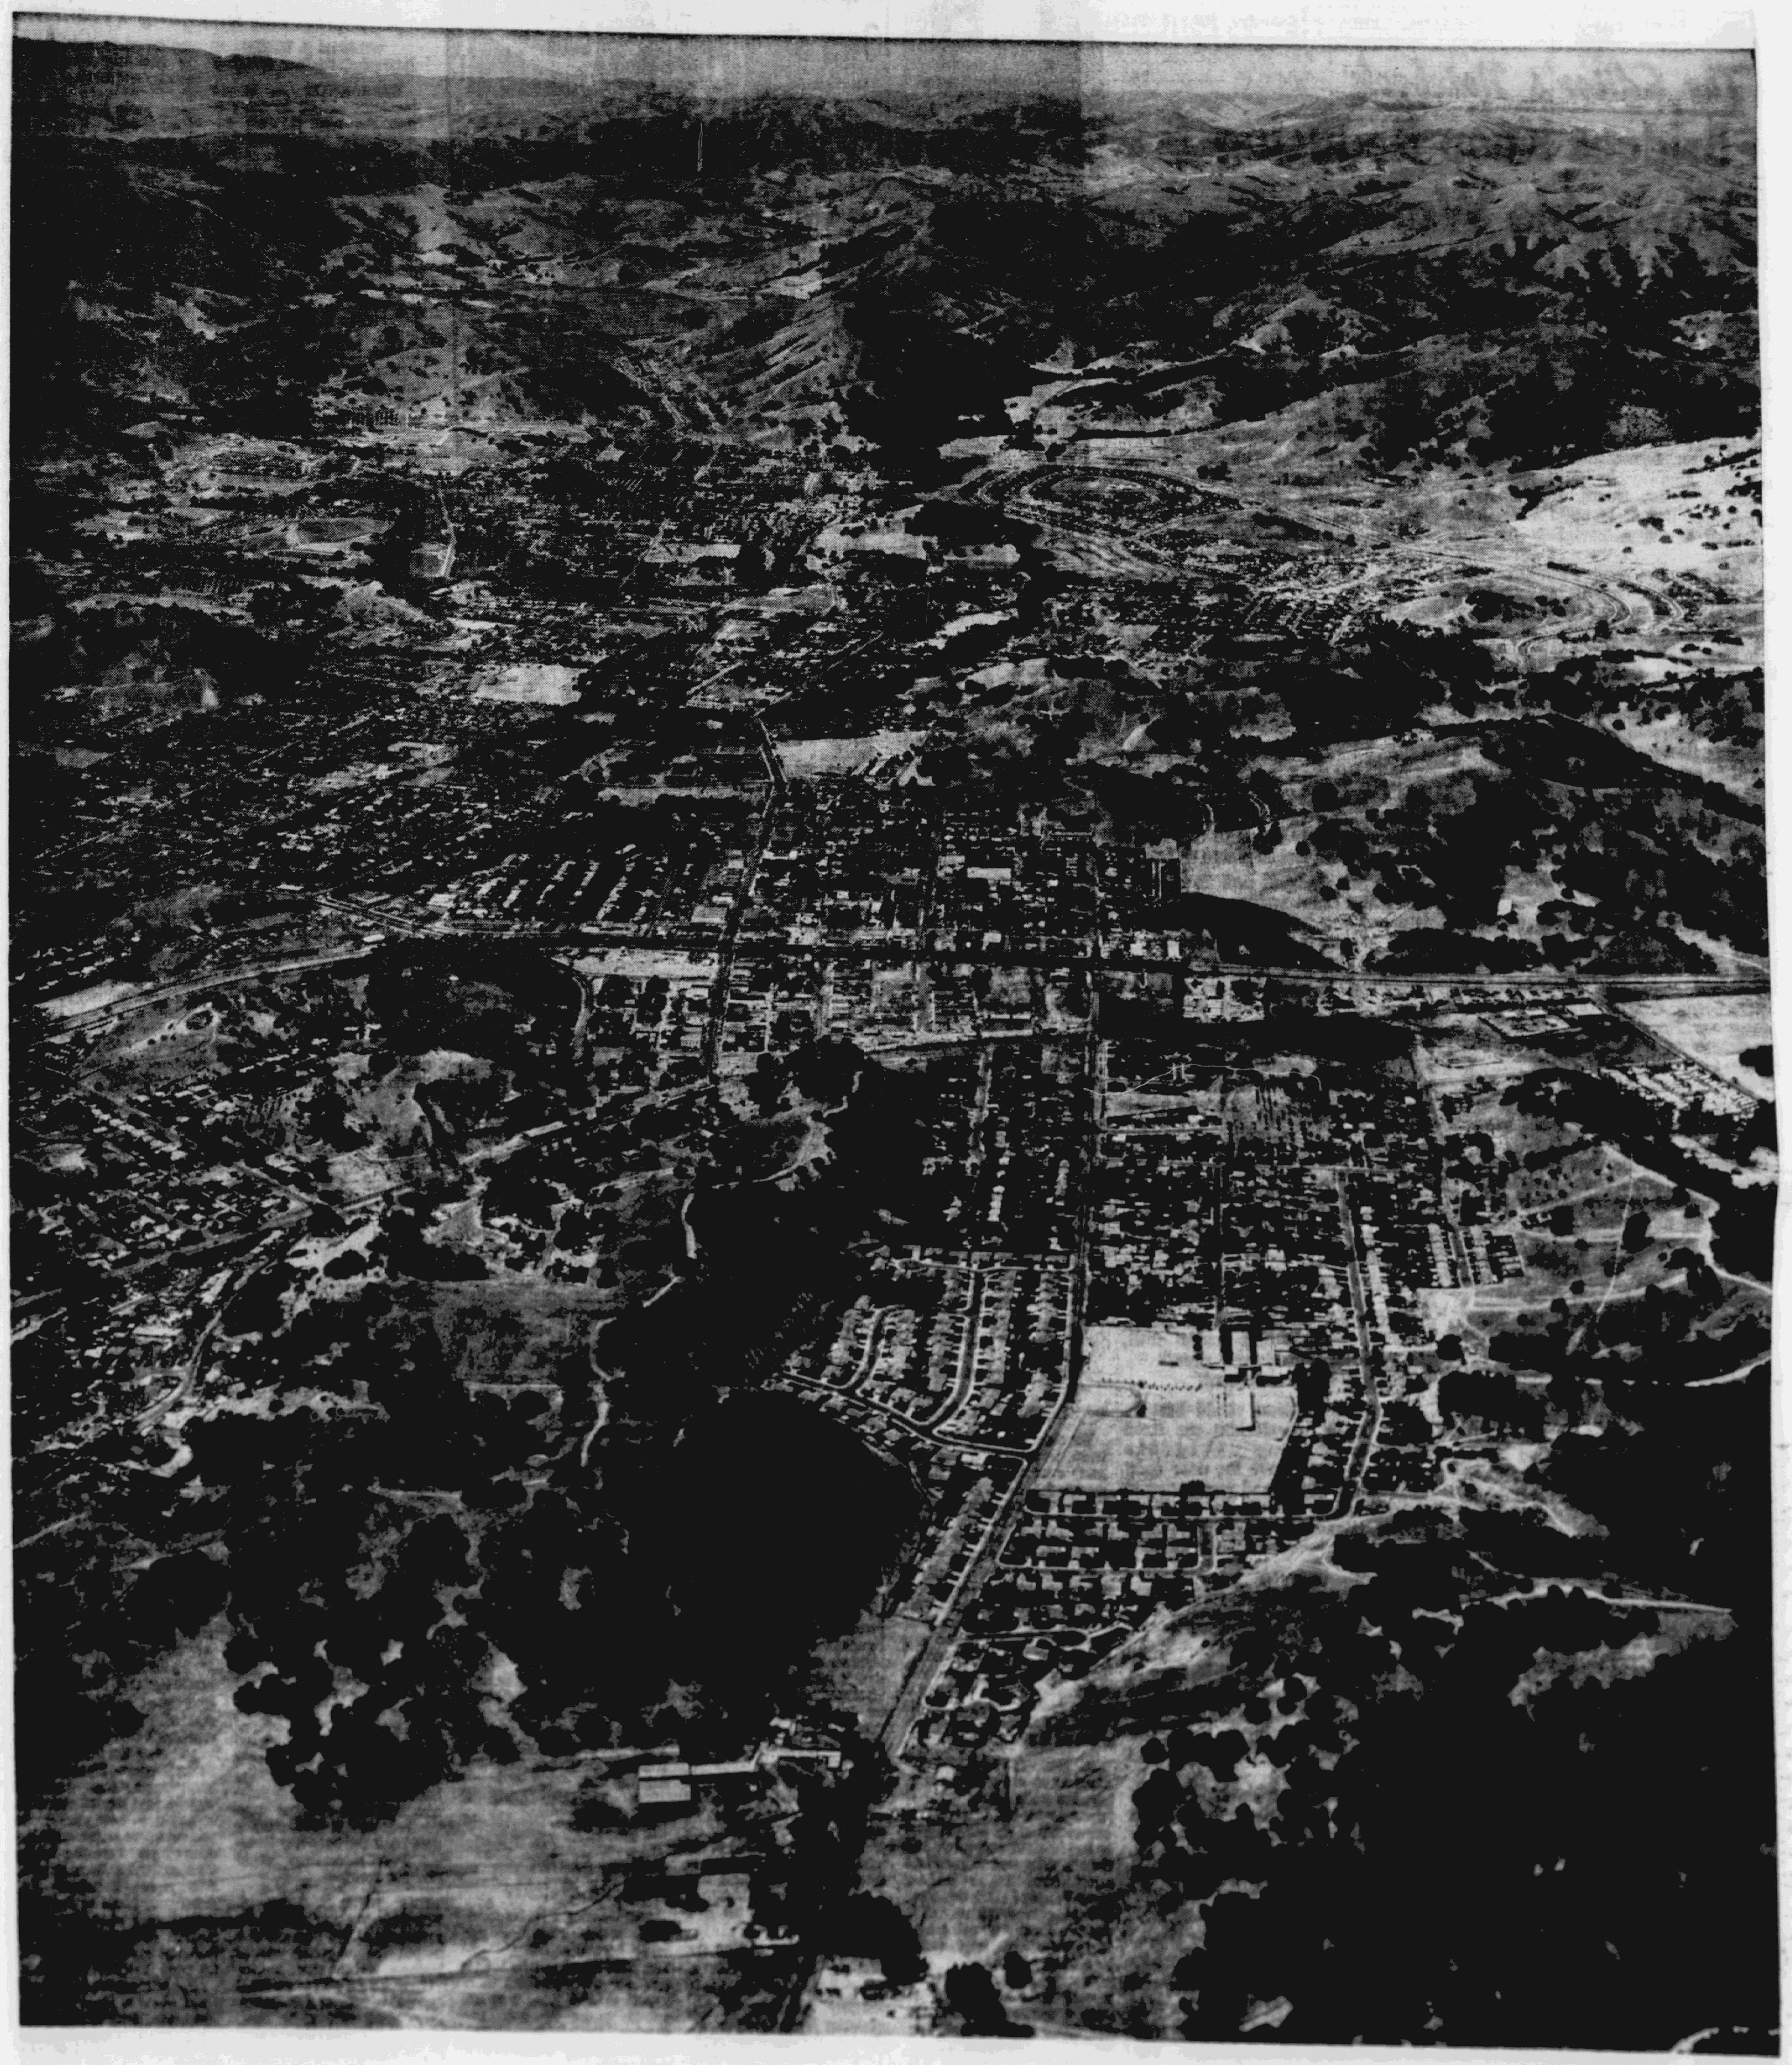
"This is the first such reward ever made since the county's antilitter ordinance was passed in 1954," said County Auditor Michael Mitchell, as he wrote out a $50 check for Burge yesterday.

Mitchell said he received certification from the district attorney that Burge was responsible for spotting illegal dumping by Thomas Z. McNicholas of Lagunitas last Aug. 8. McNicholas pleaded guilty on Aug. 29 and was fined $100.

County Ordinance No. 962, prohibiting illegal dumping, provides that a reward will go to any person giving information leading to the arrest and conviction for illegal dumping. Anyone found guilty may be fined up to $500 and jailed up to six months.

Special Guests

Ardon and Pat Lockyer, gospel singers and evangelists, will be special guests at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the North Marin Assembly of God Church in Novato.



Novato—Marin's Busy Northern Portal

The City of Novato, once an Indian village, is one of Marin's fastest growing communities. Incorporated only nine years ago — the anniversary is Monday — Novato has nearly doubled in population since 1960 and now is 29,700. Once abundant with deer, elk, quail and other game. Novato reportedly has the oldest recorded history of any community north of San Francisco. In 1776, when the Spaniards established Mission Dolores and the Presidio of San Francisco, an exploration part ywas sent north into Marin County. The groups met a hospitable band of Indians at Olompali and helped the Indians build an adobe — the first in the North Bay area. But Novato's face has changed from primitive to plentiful, as shown by the sprawl of civilization in this aerial view of the city and environs. The city, however, clearly identifies with a rich history. Consider the names DeLong, Silva, Pacheco, Atherton. DeLong Avenue, named after Francis DeLong, an owner of an early apple orchard named Rancho Novato, intersects (center left) with Diablo Avenue and Highway 101. Other points are Stafford Lake (upper left), San Marin subdivision (center background) and San Marin Drive to Highway 101. Atherton Avenue and North Marin Water District headquarters (right), Olive Avenue and the intersecting Southern Pacific Railroad tracks (center) and the downtown area along Grant Avenue (center left). Bridges Keep Reducing Navigable Waterways

WHILE THE BAY CONSERVATION and Development Commission and its supporters marshal their forces to forestall the gradual filling of the Bay, a counter movement is in motion.

The ultimate result of the counter movement, unless it is checked, will be to defeat the very purposes of BCDC.

Here's the way the counter movement works. Someone — usually a public highway building agency — gets a Coast Guard and/or Army Engineer permit to build a low level bridge across a navigable body of water.

This has two results. First, it makes it uneconomic to do any dredging upstream or inland from the new bridge because it is no longer possible to move a big dredge in to do the work economically. Second, all but smaller boats which can get under the fixed bridge are foreclosed from using the waters upstream or inland. These two results pretty well insure that there will be no more maintenance dredging above the bridge.

Without dredging, it is only a question of time until nature fills the waterway with silt and natural debris. Man will do his bit with such as old beer cans, too.

IF YOU WANT TO SEE examples of this, take a look at Novato Creek. In the early days before railroads or highways, Novato depended on waterborne freight. Freight vessels came up Novato Creek to a point upstream from where Highway 101 crosses the creek today.

Now, it is all shoaled and filling all the way down to the low level Highway 37 bridge on the Black Point cutoff route.

Mahon Creek in San Rafael and Corte Madera Creek in the Ross Valley have the same history. The head of commercial navigation in San Rafael once was above D Street. The head of navigation on Corte Madera Creek once was Ross Landing, the approximate site of College of Marin.

Today in San Rafael, the Mary Street bridge effectively cuts off everything above that point. The old waterway for practical purposes — other than as a kind of open flood sewer — is gone. Save for some recent flood control work which has partly opened the old creek channel above Bon Air Bridge, the same is true of upper Corte Madera Creek. It is finished as a natural waterway.

INSTEAD OF SLOWING DOWN, this trend seems to be gaining in velocity.

A recent notice from the 12th Coast Guard District announces application for a fixed bridge to replace the lift bridge at Washington Street in Petaluma. This is likely to be granted. The head of navigation on Petaluma Creek will be cut back accordingly. The creek can be counted upon subsequently to silt, shoal, and ultimately become a muddy mass of decaying debris above the new fixed bridge.

Up in Eureka, the Northwestern Pacific Railroad has applied to replace a swing bridge with a low level fixed bridge over Eureka Slough, thereby effectively preventing any future recreational boating use or dredging of the slough above that point.

Probably the most painful to contemplate among recent applications is that of the San Joaquin County Public Works Department, which seeks to construct a new fixed bridge across the historic and beautiful Mokelumne River on Galt Road near Thornton.

If you read the privately printed memoirs of Capt. John Leale, published as "Life of a Tule Sailor," you will be reminded that large commercial vessels formerly sailed in and out of such now land-locked places as Lodi.

The San Joaquin and Sacramento River and Delta system of waterways is now being "discovered" by recreational boaters in growing numbers.

But the bridge builders are busy chopping off navigable streams. Before long the rivers and delta waterways may become as choked with boat traffic as Los Angeles freeways at rush hour. As boating traffic grows, low level bridge construction is shrinking the mileage of navigable waterways.

THERE IS ONE RAY OF HOPE on the horizion.

Not so long ago, the Army Engineers considered only what they referred to as "the effect of the bridge on navigation."

Now the Coast Guard will, in granting or denying a permit, give consideration to "other pertinent factors such as wildlife and water fowl, public parks, and historic sites."

Bully for the Coast Guard!

The public interest would best be served by a moratorium on fixed bridge building over navigable streams so as to leave the door open for future dredging and restoration to navigational use of these beautiful and historic inland waterways by future generations of recreational boaters.

Teens And Telephones

If you have a teen-ager around your house and he or she is permitted free access to the telephone, you doubtless have a new dimension on the meaning of the term, interminable conversation.

Not only are they lengthy, they are frequent. Unless curbed to some extent, they can hopelessly tie up the phone line.

We recently read a survey about teen-agers and their passion for phoning. Why, they were asked, did they hold long conversations on the phone with people they saw face to face several times a day?

The most common answer was, it's easier to talk on the phone than person to person. This is probably the same answer a psychiatrist would give, except he'd charge $50 and say don't worry, all teen-agers are insecure.

Bouquet And Brickbat

BOUQUET to the California Public Utilities Commission for taking the role of the public's representative — its rightful role — in opposing the Northwestern Pacific Railroad application to abandon rail service to Sausalito.

BRICKBATS to two young men who claimed (their idea of humor?) a student strike at College of Marin, to take their own kind of advantage of the college's closing Monday morning because of flooding.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

THE PROPRIETOR of a suburban tavern elected to have all his menus etched on planks of wood to add rustic atmosphere to the establishment. Then one of the waiters lost his heart to the cashier, but his dreams were shattered when she appeared one evening on the arm of a husky sailor. Enraged, the waiter smashed one of the wooden menus on the noggin of the husky sailor — proving once again that love is indeed a menu-splintered thing.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Peace Talks Needed In Middle East

This is with reference to the actions of the UN Security Council and the role that this government has played in promoting the censure resolution against the state of Israel.

This action will not bring peace to the Middle East.

Peace will only come when the Arab Nations and Israel sit down and settle their differences at a peace table.

For a state of war to exist for over 20 years is incomprehensible. The cynicism of both the United States and the Russians in their attempts to serve their client states has produced three wars in this period of time. Leadership in the securing of peace requires the aggrieved parties to solve the differences face to face. No peace solution rammed down the throats of these nations will produce a lasting peace. . .

I urge our government to use all its influence to urge the nations of the Middle East to begin peace talks now.

Member Denounces Teacher Federation

I can no longer, with a clear conscience, contiune my affiliation with the American Federation of Teachers. Thus, I am submitting my resignation as a protest to an organization that supports insurrection under the guise of a strike.

For a strike to exist, a majority of an organization must vote to strike. The students at San Francisco did not exist as an organization, and the majority did not agree to strike. I cannot support a union that is intolerant of constituted authority and approves of the violent activities of the dissident students. And, I cannot support a union that cannot differentiate between anarchy and constitutional rights. It is incomprehensible that the violent activities of a dissident minority could be labeled as "exercising their constitutional rights" as stated in the AFT strike issues, Paragraph 1, Section B. It is also incomprehensible that the AFT should label San Francisco State with racism. This tactic is usually utilized b ythe left-wing radicals to ferment disorder.

The real issue at San Francisco State is not the 15 demands submitted by the students or the strike issues submitted by AFT. . . . I shall state the real issue and the strategy in student revolt as outlined by John R. Searle in the New York Times Magazine, Dec. 29, 1968. The strategy involves three stages. Stage One: Pick any issue on which the administration cannot give in and which is related to a sacred topic, the First Amendment, race, or war. Demonstrate, violating as many rules as possible, to assure punishment. Stage Two: Make the university authorithories the target of protest. . . . The number of demonstrators will grow and TV will pick the leaders and dignify the uproar. . . . Stage Three: Force the administration to call the police. There will be widespread revulsion; sympathetic professors will become active in protest, and opposition to it will collapse. The original issues will have been forgotten, but the president will probably be fired, the faculty set to bickering and the campus closed . . .

The real reason for the issue at San Francisco is to close the campus. After the campus is closed, the militant minority state that they will rebuild the campus along socialist, collectivist lines.

Police, Sheriff Respond Quickly

After reading a recent front-page article regarding our many burglaries and the opinion that some people voiced that our policemen act in a casual manner, may I speak up in praise of both the Fairfax Police Department and the county sheriff's department.

Several weeks ago a prowler entered our home, thinking it was unoccupied, and in response to a call, the Fairfax police were present within five minutes. We are not within the city limits and I appreciated their rapid response regardless. The sheriff's department men arrived only minutes later and I felt most fortunate to have such speedy and thorough protection.

LINES ON LIVING

Gather Ye Rosebuds While Ye May—That Is Today

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

We must live in the present tense, in this world and now. And, even while now hardly seems the most beautiful of times, we must nevertheless cherish the gift of the present hour, as it is ours to live in reality and experience.

Dreams are the visions of the future. Nightmares are the regrets of the past. But the life of today, in the words of Thomas Carlyle, "is no idle dream, but a solemn reality." To live in the solemn reality of today means to live life as a whole and to feel it in all its throbbing fullness of the moment as it clearly lies at hand.

IN THE MIDST of all the distractions and annoyances of life, the daily horrid grind of apprehension and of cares, we cannot fail in the central task of building our character. For the one thing we can never get away from is meeting ourselves. And since this most intimate confrontation of self is the one most permanent rendezvous in life, it had better be a pleasant one.

To hew a character in the present tense of today is to mold a destiny for tomorrow. And every hour is precious in the irretrievable opportunity of the moment. To the cynic who asks what can be accomplished in the short duration of a fleeting moment — we say, perhaps not much at a time, but not little in a lifetime; if life abides by the deeper voices which have stirred in Robert Herrick the cry for a fullness of life, in declaring: "Gather ye rose-buds while ye may; Old time is still flying: And this same flower that smiles today: Tomorrow will be dying."

THE CALL for an awareness of today that sees old time flying is probably life's most stern challenge. The waste of time of wallowing in past tears and guilt, in worry over things that never will be, in the gross neglect of gathering rosebuds of beauty and of grace, while we may, is life's greatest undoing.

By learning to appreciate every hour for whatever it offers us and by snatching every moment with grace and gratitude, we may gather the rosebuds of a fuller and nobler life. What we give to life will come back our way. What we add to it will be credited to our living account with compounded dividends.

This will help us to avoid the predicament of that pampered lady who bitterly complained to her doctor of the night air she so utterly disliked that it became her obsession. "But madam," replied the doctor to the disgruntled lady, "during certain hours of the 24, night air is the only air there is."

Surely there are hours of "night air" and moments of disquietude in our life that we may not like: yet we are expected to make the best of our time by endowing it with an acceptance of loveliness and understanding, as we look upon the larger picture of life as a whole.

The wisdom of making the most of our time lies in crowding the hour with glory, whenever possible; in appreciating joys of the present, wherever they may be found; in a daily new-found awareness of longing to live and not merely in a desire for living long.

Swedes' Recognition Of Hanoi Embarrasses Incoming President

WILLIAM S. WHITE
(Marquis Childs is on vacation)

WASHINGTON — It is becoming plainer by the day that the new Nixon administration must simply bite the bullet on Vietnam no less stoically than the old Johnson administration has had to do.

As many of this government's professional intelligence people had believed all along they would do, the North Vietnamese Communists are using the Paris peace negotiations, and the transitional hiatus in Washington, for a kind of international filibuster. Not only are they waiting for Richard Nixon to take office; they are also waiting to test his mettle not merely at Paris but in all probability also in the field of military action.

THE COMMUNISTS, moreover, are being given significant assistance by the world's neutralist forces, notably Sweden, in an expression of open hostility to a new American presidency that is without known example in history. Sweden's decision to grant full diplomatic recognition to Communits North Vietnam — and also to Castro Cuba — on the very eve of Nixon's inauguration is an act of belligerent nose-thumbing toward a friendly and heavily burdened world power that is little short of infamous.

Not content with having given shelter to American deserters from Vietnam during the Johnson tenure, the Swedes have now clearly moved to marshal their form of "world opinion" to embarrass the Nixon tenure in every possible way. They will sooner or later be associated in this by like-minded countries, none of which is, of course, important in itself but all of which are important in the sense of propaganda.

IN ALL THESE circumstances it is difficult to understand the wave of euphoria and complacency about the prospects in Vietnam that is obviously sweeping this country and much of the world. For the odds are high that not some early diplomatic settlement in Paris but rather heavier fighting on the actual firing line now lies ahead in Vietnam.

Indeed, the public's great expectations of some quick and miraculous exit from the war are creating a climate of manifest danger to rational American negotiation in Paris. This danger, of course, is that public opinion will insist willy-nilly upon a kind of settlement that would not be in the national interest.

President Johnson himself, in opening the way for the Paris talks, sought urgently to warn that hard times and hard fighting would almost surely still be the order of the day. But it is patent that his words of caution have been largely obscured in the general atmosphere of optimism unlimited.

IT IS THUS the greatest of pities that so ordinarily tough and objective a personage as Averell Harriman, the retiring head of the American diplomatic team in Paris, should use his valedictory statement mainly to "warn" Americans against any notion of "winning a war."

Johnson and Nixon personally have approached this whole business with the highest of realism; and this should be the standard all down the line. Nixon for his part has already done everything in his power, especially by his diplomatic appointments, to make it utterly plain that he is not coming to power in order to give this game away. It now seems almost certain that he may find it necessary to go even farther. If current political realities do not force him to do so, the new military realities in Vietnam will.

For the change in the guard at the White House has, in this great contest, changed nothing else whatever.

ART BUCHWALD

How Kellerman Took Revenge On One Of The Post's Elite

WASHINGTON — Several months ago the Saturday Evening Post arbitrarily cut three million subscribers from its lists and announced it was keeping only those readers who had the purchasing power as well as the status worthy of the new, sophiticated SEP format.

I reported at the time that those dropped from the list of subscribers suffered a grievous blow to their egos as well as to their positions in the community. If the Saturday Evening Post considered you a deadbeat, you didn't have much choice but to either pretend you were still getting the magazine and live a lie, or move out of the neighborhood before anyone found out.

One of the tragedies of the decision to cut its subscription list in half was that the Saturday Evening Post turned brother against brother, mother-in-law against daughter-in-law, friend against friend. The people who got the Post after the decision had been made lorded it over those who had been dropped from the list, and it looked for a time as if the Saturday Evening Post subscribers would rule the world.

BUT THEN it happened. Without warning, the publishers of the Post decided to put the magazine out of business, and the three million elite suddedly found themselves without a magazine they could call their own. Those on top found themselves on the bottom, and those on the bottom (the ones who had been dropped arbitrarily months back) found themselves riding high.

I wish I could report that there was some Christian charity shown toward the SEP subscribers, but there had been so much bitterness in the past that when the Post announced it was going out of business, the "deadbeats" celebrated throughout the land.

KELLERMAN, who had been arbitrarily dropped by the Post last May because he only owned one car, was paid a visit by Sanskrit, whose subscription to the Saturday Evening Post made his credit rating in Chevy Chase as good as Jean Paul Getty's.

As Kellerman answered the door, Sanskrit said, "I don't like to ask you this, but I was wondering If I could read your Life magazine when you're finished."

"Not on your life, Sanskrit," Kellerman said. "You seem to forget that only two months ago I asked to read your Saturday Evening Post and you said, 'I don't know if the Post would want you to or not. It's not up to me. I don't make the rules.' "

"YOU'RE NOT going to bear a grudge over an incident like that, Kellerman? I did let you have my Look, didn't I?"

"I did'nt want your Look—I wanted your Saturday Evening Post. You said you'd be happy to let me read the Post but if they found out about it at Curtis, they might cut you off and you and your family weren't in a position to stick your necks out. Do you remember that, Sanskrit?"

"I acted hastily," Sanskrit pleaded. "There was so much pressure. I saw what happened to you after the Post cut your subscription and I was afraid it would happen to me. I saw the way the kids treated your kids at school — how your credit was cut at the stores, how they dropped you from the bridge club and the swimming pool. One night I swear it, Kellerman, I said to my wife, 'I don't care what they do to me I'm going to give Kellerman last week's copy of the Saturday Evening Post.'

"But you weren't home, and I was afraid to leave the issue at the front door. The next day I got cold feet. I know it's hard to justify, but I ask you, Kellerman — would you have acted differently if the Saturday Evening Post had canceled my subscription instead of yours?"

"WE'LL NEVER know, Sanskrit, and I hope I never have to make the decision. But I want you to feel what it's like to be on the bottom, without a magazine that you can call your own. I hope you suffer the way I did."

"Please, Kellerman, if you won't give me Life, let me at least have a peek at the Reader's Digest."

Kellerman smiled. "I don't know if The Digest would want you to or not. It's not up to me. After all, I don't make the rules." And with that Kellerman laughed hysterically and slammed the door.

MISSION DOOMED?

Mideast Again Explosive

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The tenuous Middle East peace structure appears near collapse again, this time as a result of mounting Arab commando raids and Israeli reprisals.

Despite a year of effort by U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring, the situation has deteriorated rapidly to the point where many are expressing fear of a new all-out conflict.

This is reflected not only in statements from Arab and Israeli leaders, but in the efforts of the four big powers to seek an urgent peace settlement.

Some U.N. diplomats feel that Jarring's peace mission already is doomed and that nothing short of a big power pressure can save the situation at this stage.

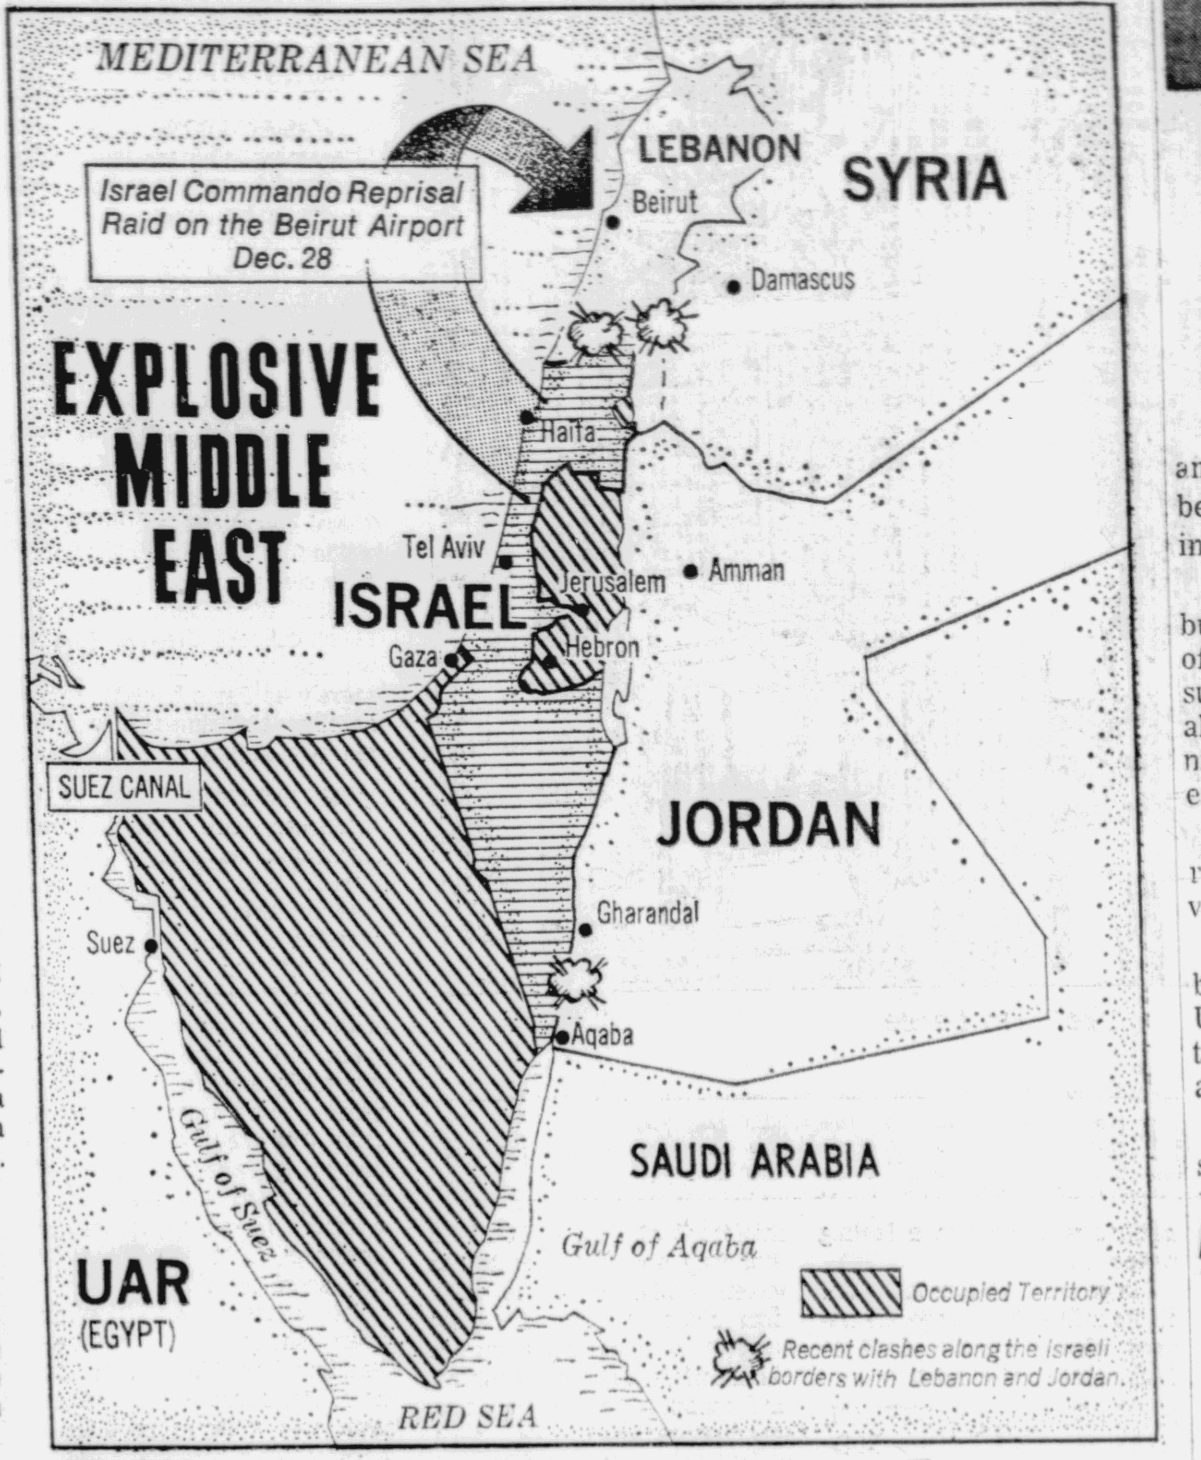
Israel has taken a firm stand against any attempt of the Big Four to impose a settlement, but both the United States and the Soviet Union have a tremendous influence in the area and any agreement by them would be bound to carry weight.

One of the most recent causes for concern was the involvement of Lebanon in the new wave of clashes. Lebanon remained outside the lightning war of June 1967 and has maintained a moderate policy in comparison with other Arab countries.

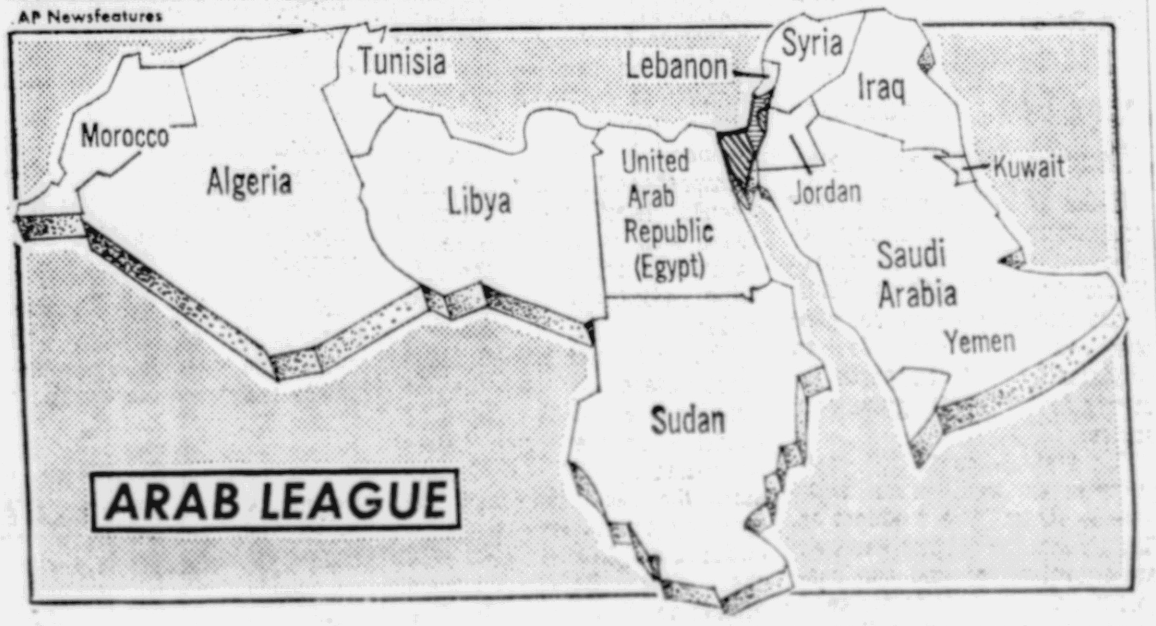
The Palestine liberation forces, however, are using Lebanese territory as a base just as they use Jordanian, Egyptian, Syrian and other Arab countries. It is this which led to the Israeli commando attack on the Beirut airport Dec. 28 and the subsequent tension between Israel and Lebanon.

Nearly all the major incidents in the past year have involved the so-called Arab liberation forces and Israeli military reaction to their raids into Israel.

The Arabs contend that the 1.3 million Arab refugees from Palestine have a legitimate right to seek the "liberation" of their former homeland and that these groups are patriots who deserve the help of other Arabs.



AP Newsfeatures



The result is a large-scale training program with bases in several Arab countries. One of the most widely publicized groups is Al Fatah, but the group which admitted responsibility for attacking an Israeli airliner at the Athens airport was the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The U.N. Security Council has appealed without success to all parties to avoid violence, but has skirted the question of responsibility for the commando groups.

Viet Pacification Gains Largest Yet

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. military command in Saigon raised some eyebrows last month by announcing that the South Vietnamese government—in just two months—had gained control over another million people.

The command said its computers showed 73.3 per cent of South Vietnam's 17.5 million people were now living in "relative security"—a record increase of 6.5 per cent over the figure given for October.

These were the largest "population control" gains recorded since the United States set up its computerized system to evaluate pacification progress two years ago.

FIGURES DOUBTED

In a war where every statistic can be questioned, the figures aroused skepticism.

In view of the current frustrating efforts to get substantive peace talks started, both the Allied and Communist sides can be expected to claim as much control over the South Vietnamese population as possible, for bargaining purposes.

The fact is that South Vietnamese government forces, spurred on by the prospects of peace talks and a possible cease-fire, have been pushing rapidly out through the country into "contested" rural areas which they never before could hold.

They claim control over these areas, where the Viet Cong has not fought back.

GAINS NOT SOLID

It remains to be seen how lasting the gains will be. The statistics are subject to possible "revision" by the Viet Cong if and when the Communists decide to take up the challenge.

The Viet Cong still collect taxes and maintain underground agents in many of the areas that are rated as under government control and relatively secure.

At night, the Viet Cong slip past government outposts in hamlets that appear secure during the day. Assassination of local officials continues, in "controlled" districts despite the reported gains in security.

South Vietnam has a total of 12,650 hamlets, or small rural communities, spread throughout the country. But only 216 of them, with 686,000 people, are rated as "completely" secure on the basis of reports from U.S. advisers in the provinces.

MILITARY PULLOUT

The withdrawal of several North Vietnamese Army divisions and a number of Viet Cong units from the populated areas to border regions, plus a nationwide decline in Viet Cong military action, have permitted a stepped-up rush into the countryside.

The current government push, called the accelerated pacification campaign (APC), has resulted in South Vietnamese troops moving into more than 1,000 contested rural hamlets, containing more than a million people, since Nov. 1.

As a result of this massive push into the countryside, the computers that digest pacification reports from the provinces have been "upgrading" the APC hamlets from their former contested status to "relatively secure" standing.

Even within the relatively secure group, however, there are several categories. Most of the newly won hamlets come under the lowest rating of "C," which now includes more than five million people.

In these "C" hamlets, the emphasis must be placed on the "relative" aspect of relative security. Viet Cong guerrillas are still capable of harassing actions in the hamlets and continued Viet Cong taxation of the villagers is suspected.

It will be a long, hard pull for most of these hamlets to move up to a "B" rating, which would mean much greater security and developments.

CONTROLLED BY REDS

At the other end of the stack, 2.34 million people—or 13.4 per cent of the total population—are listed as being completely controlled by the Viet Cong.

Actually evaluating conditions in the large number of hamlets that lie between complete government control and complete Viet Cong control is an extremely difficult task.

When night falls over the countryside, distinctions blur.

"Many of the hamlets in this area are pro-government in the daytime and pro-Viet Cong at night," a hamlet chief in Long An Province, south of Saigon, told a reporter. The chief of another province northeast of Saigon told a U.S. aid official, "everything in this province is secure in the daytime. Nothing is secure at night."

"We share the peasants a little less with the Viet Cong at night now," said one U.S. expert. He noted there has been improvement in night operations by South Vietnamese troops.

KILLINGS CONTINUE

"But they are not seeking or making much contact with the Viet Cong. If security was really adequate at night, assassinations, terrorism and tax collections would go down. Instead they've remained about the same."

Who knows for sure if and when all the hidden Viet Cong political agents in any given hamlet have been identified?

"Few organizations have matched the skill of the National Liberation Front in maintaining internal security," one veteran observer remarked. He cited as a grim example "the showcase" village council in Phuoc Tuy Province, elected in 1967, whose members all turned out to be Viet Cong.

Despite all such uncertainties and qualifications, there are indications of pacification progress. One such indicator is the rising number of Viet Cong defectors; another is the increasingly effective "Phoenix" program designed to coordinate intelligence and root out the Viet Cong political network in the countryside.

GENERALS MISS

But too many generals have underestimated the strength of the Viet Cong too many times in the past for anybody to be making many predictions. No one is sure what the Viet Cong might do or try to do, to wreck the new pacification program in the coming months.

Senior U.S. officials do say they think the Communists are incapable of launching an offensive on the scale of the Tet offensive of last Jan. 31, which dealt a severe blow to the pacification program. They also doubt the communists can mobilize an attack on the level of the "mini-Tet" offensive of last May.

Yet no one in the U.S. Mission at this stage is going overboard in interpreting the latest signs of progress or the apparent weaknesses of the Viet Cong.

"Everyone knows this is a long, slow grind," one U.S. official said. "There aren't going to be any instant coonskins on the wall."

An American official was asked why the government troops are being pushed into new hamlets so rapidly when it appeared one of the lessons of the past was that pacification had to be an extremely slow process to be effective.

"Time is running out," the official said. "We're in a different ball game now. We want to be in the best possible position before a cease-fire. We want to establish hamlet and village governments everywhere." And he struck this note of confidence:

"This is an expensive, risk-taking campaign. But I don't think the enemy is capable of rolling it back."

THIS WEEK In The World

Hopes For Peace Shining Brighter

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

President Johnson's final messages to Congress and an indication that the peace talks in Paris at last might be getting down to business this week gave Americans inkling of the shape of things to come.

On Wednesday, the President sent Congress a budget for fiscal 1970 which would provide a surplus of $3.4 billion— provided the 10 per cent income tax surcharge was continued for another year. Johnson also called for increased social security benefits beginning in January, 1970, and correspondingly higher taxes to pay for them.

He suggested a 1 cent increase in first-class postal rate and a 3 cent reduction in the air mail rate, providing 7 cent postage for letters of either type.

On Tuesday, the President appeared in person before the Congress to deliver his final State of the Union message. It was an occasion charged with emotion, and Johnson was interrupted dozens of times by applause.

He spoke hopefully of the prospects for solutions to such problems as the Vietnam War, the arms race, military tension in the Mideast and social tension at home.

Hope for an early Vietnam settlement seemed brighter Thursday, when negotiators in Paris finally compromised their arguments about furniture for the conference room and agreed to begin negotiations Saturday.

The weeks-long dispute about the shape of the conference table was resolved by agreement on a round table for negotiators, without nameplates, flags or markings, flanked on either side by a small rectangular table for secretaries.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

New York: Reports of systematic milking of the city welfare system by forged-check rings caused a storm of controversy. Mayor John V. Lindsay reaffirmed his faith in Human Resources (welfare) Administrator Mitchell I. Ginsberg.

Moscow: The Soviet Union proudly proclaimed Thursday that its cosmonauts linked two manned spacecraft in earth orbit and transferred two spacemen from one spaceship to another. The linked ships were described as the "world's first experimental space station."

Behind The News

INAUGURATION TRIMMINGS

Oath Of Office Only Requirement

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —If meeting constitutional requirements were the only consideration, Monday's inauguration of Richard M. Nixon as president could be accomplished in less than three minutes.

Article II of the constitution says that a president-elect, before entering upon the execution of his office, must take the following oath:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

The constitution doesn't say when, where or where or before whom the oath is to be taken. It does not require a big outdoor ceremony at the Capitol or an inaugural address by the new president. It says nothing about inaugural parades, concerts, balls and galas.

MANY ADDITIONS

All these things have been added to the simple oath-taking envisioned by the founding fathers through customs which have evolved piecemeal over the past 180 years.

As a result, it now takes three days instead of three minutes to get a new chief executive properly installed in the White House.

George Washington established two inaugural precedents which have been followed by all of his successors. He placed his hand on a Bible while taking the oath. And he added, at the conclusion of the oath prescribed by the constitution, "So help me God."

SOME LONG-WINDED

Subsequent presidents have been considerably more long-winded, with William Henry Harrison setting the all-time record for volubility. Harrison in 1841 spoke for nearly two hours, while he and his audience stood outdoors in a cold rain. Harrison contracted a bad cold and died a month later.

His sad experience may have had a salutary effect on his successors. Few inaugural addresses since his time have lasted longer than half an hour.

If some have seemed longer, it is because inaugural oratory, has not been distinguished for its eloquence. Every president probably hopes to say something in his inaugural address that will go down in history, but only a handful have succeeded in doing so.

Among those who did say unforgettable things were Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy.

JEFFERSON'S SPEECH

Jefferson in 1801 warned against "entangling alliances," and thereby coined a phrase that was to remain a slogan of U.S. foreign policy for 140 years.

The nation was torn asunder by civil war when Lincoln made his moving plea:

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in."

In another dark hour of American history, with the economy in the grip of a great depression, FDR assured an anxious people:

"The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

Kennedy summoned Americans to a new frontier of sacrifice and service in a sentence that has been quoted thousands of times in the past eight years:

"Ask not what your country can do for you: Ask what you can do for your country."

INAUGURAL PARADE

The inaugural parade down Pennsylvania Avenue, which follows the oath-taking ceremony on the Capitol steps, is the most venerable of the extra-constitutional customs which now surround the installation of a president.

The first inaugural parade was held for Thomas Jefferson in 1801. It consisted of one band and one marching unit from the Washington Navy Yard. (By contrast, Nixon's inaugural parade—a relatively brief one by modern standards—will have 56 bands, 44 floats, and marching units from all service academies.)

William Howard Taft was the first president to take his wife along for the ride down Pennsylvania Avenue. Warren G. Harding was the first to use an automobile instead of a horse-drawn carriage. Harding set another precedent, too: His was the first inaugural address broadcast to the nation by radio.

FORMAL BALL

The custom of holding a formal inaugural ball on the night after the oath-taking dates back to 1809 and was the contribution of party-loving Dolly Madison, beautiful wife of President James Madison.

The ball became a permanent feature of subsequent inaugurations.

The party following Andrew Jackson's swearing-in, however, was more of an inaugural brawl than a ball. Old Hickory's rough-hewn followers poured into the White House wearing muddy boots, trampled the fine carpets, consumed all the food and liquor on the premises, and then brought out their own jugs of mountain dew. The party lasted all night and ended with a considerable smashing of glasses, dishes and furniture.

FIRST LOCATION

Inaugural balls for many years were held in the Pension Building, an ancient red brick structure near the Capitol whose architectural elegance was perhaps best appraised by Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, who once said:

"It's a shame the damn thing is fireproof."

The Pension Building was considered as a site for the Nixon inaugural ball, mainly on grounds of historical nostalgia, but it was decided instead to hold this year's ball in six sections—five in hotel ballrooms and the sixth in the handsome new building of the Smithsonian Institution.

The Pension Building is being used, however, as temporary office for the 1969 inaugural committee.

Most presidents have elected to wear formal dress—cutaway or club coat and striped trousers—for the inaugural ceremony at the capitol. But some, including Lyndon B. Johnson, have appeared in business suits. And a few have sought to make their inaugural attire convey a message. James Madison, who wanted to encourage Americans to use home-grown wool instead of importing cloth from England, had an inaugural suit made entirely from the wool of certified native American sheep.

IMAGINATIVE TAILOR

James Buchanan had an imaginative tailor in his home town of Lancaster, Pa., run up a suit of Lancaster black satin. The lining was embroidered with the coats'-of-arms of all the states.

Nearly every inaugural has a memorable mishap. A cowboy riding in Lyndon Johnson's inaugural parade thought it would be jolly to lasso the president as he passed the reviewing stand—causing great consternation among secret service agents.

A faulty heater almost started a fire in the speaker's rostrum at Kennedy's inauguration.

Dwight D. Eisenhower's parade fell more than an hour behind schedule because of a meandering elephant named Miss Burma who couldn't resist drifting off course to flirt with the spectators.

Perhaps the worst fate befell celebrators of Ulysses S. Grant's inauguration. It got so cold in the hall where the ball was held that all the champagne froze.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Weinberger Sees Balanced Budget

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A balanced budget for California is the rosy picture painted by Finance Director Caspar Weinberger in discussing the upcoming budget being prepared for delivery to the legislature early in February.

Weinberger said this week the balance is being achieved despite "special dedicated funds which siphon off substantial amounts of tax revenues to programs controlled by constitutional or statutory distribution formulas and which are virtually immune from any priority determination or policy making by the governor or the Legislature."

He added that two-thirds of each budget is isolated from controls by the governor, and indicated highways and welfare are two such areas.

Weinberger claimed the administration has affected economies which will produce a $200 million annual savings. He also said the new budget will require no new taxes and will allow for a substantial reduction in personal income taxes as well as the continuation of local property tax relief.

Weinberger added that the budget balancing is not restricted only to the 1969-70 budget, but promised "we can do the same thing for 1970-71."

Meanwhile, the first bill approved by the 1969 Legislature has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The legislation enables the Republican State Central Committee to hold its first meeting of the year in Sacramento on the fourth, rather than the third, Sunday in January.

The urgency bill was introduced by Assembly Speaker Pro Tem Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, to permit attendance at the inauguration of President-elect Richard M. Nixon. The bill received unanimous approval of both houses.

Cost of education is the subject of a bill, AB 75, by Assemblyman John L. E. (Bud) Collier, R-South Pasadena, which would provide for students to sign notes to reimburse the state for part of the cost of their education.

The students would begin the reimbursement after leaving school and when they become employed with a minimum of a $8,000 taxable income bracket. The notes would be for a maximum of 20 years.

Petition circulators will be faced with new restriction if a bill, introduced by Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, is approved by the Legislature.

It will make it unlawful for circulators of petitions in connection with initiatives, referendums and recalls to use the money they collect for personal expenses not authorized by the person donating the money.

Hayes cited charges made during the Reagan campaign that persons involved in the campaign might have been using some of the donated money for personal purposes such as paying for food, clothing and shelter. The bill would make the persons receiving the money the trustees of it. Penalty on conviction would be $5,000 fine or up to two years in prison.

Credit Card Firm Has 179 Per Cent Growth

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — While world money experts have been worrying about gold reserves and balances of payments, a financial "revolution" has been taking place much closer to home for the average consumer. The use of credit cards is booming.

Bank of America, the largest credit card dealer in the world, reported yesterday that 1968 saw a fantastic 179.2 per cent increase in the number of persons using its cards.

Nationwide, the bank estimates the total number of all credit cards in circulation is at least 250,000,000 — more than enough for every man, woman and child.

BankAmeriCard accounts for 16.75 million card users, an increase of 10.75 million over the 1967 total.

Sales soared from $458.9 million in 1967 to $814.5 million last year, an increase of 77.5 per cent. The number of merchants who accept BankAmeriCard went from 155,000 to 397,000.

A Bank of America official, John Dillon, said 1968 was the biggest year yet in the so-called credit card revolution since the cards were approved for interstate business just two-and-one-half years ago.

"It is rare indeed that any business service of our size can experience doubling of its customers and retail outlets," Dillon said. "Our nation has become extremely credit card-oriented in the relatively short period of two - and - one - half years."

The revolution has "firmly taken hold" Dillon added, saying Bank of America thinks it will easily rack up a billion dollars in credit sales this year while boosting cardholders to at least 22 million persons.

PSA Volume Up

SAN DIEGO (BW) — Pacific Southwest Airlines flew 3,997,524 passengers in 1968, 651,040 more passengers than in the previous year. The additional passengers represent a 19 per cent increase over 1967, PSA has announced.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Handicapped Driving Safety; New Disease Often Fatal

VAN DELLEN

Many who are physically disabled drive to and from work. Being able to hold a job is an important part of rehabilitation but getting them to work safely is also important. The majority have lost function of the legs as a result of polio or amputation.

Some have disabilities that permit only hand-manipulation of a vehicle. Many more have handicaps that require minor modifications on the controls of the car. In others, disability is so slight, they can handle a conventional vehicle.

A SWEDISH STUDY revealed that the group with slight disablement had more traffic accidents and more serious traffic offenses. A second group, amputees with artificial limbs, were the worse offenders. Those with involvement of the right side had fewer accidents than persons with comparable limb losses on the left.

But more important, was the fact that, as a group, disabled drivers had no more accidents than able-bodied drivers. The former might have fewer mishaps if those in the third group were willing to drive cars modified to fit their particular needs.

The integument is so sensitive that the victim will not allow anyone to touch it. Large blisters develop and rupture leaving denuded areas.

According to Dr. Kenneth M. Halprin of Portland, Ore., the syndrome is on the increase. In some, it follows the use of certain drugs; among infants, it is associated with a staphylococcal infection.

According to his report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, one-third often die within a week. The remainder suffer very little, considering the appearance of the skin, and recover completely within two weeks.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

BLOWS NOSE OFTEN

A reader writes: Why would an 11-year-old boy blow his nose all the time, even though nothing comes out? Every few seconds he reaches for a tissue. Is this a nervous habit or should his nose be examined?

REPLY

This could be habit but he deserves to have a thorough examination to determine whether the passageway is blocked by a deviated septum, polyp, swolled membrane, or a peanut. Now and then nasal irritation stems from an unusually dry, crusted membrane.

THUMBNAIL IS CROOKED

A reader writes: Last year I injured a thumbnail. After it healed, ridges developed and now it always comes in crooked. Is there any surgical treatment to correct such a defect?

REPLY

Not if the root of the nail is damaged.

'HOLDING' LIQUOR

A. G. writes: Is a person less able to tolerate alcohol as he grows older?

REPLY

Yes, but in many instances increased tolerance occurs because of the more frequent and longer use of liquor.

RINGWORM ACQUISITION

J. M. writes: Can athlete's foot be caught in a public bathhouse?

REPLY

Yes, but it is not a common means of transmission.

OBESITY AND PREGNANCY

O. writes: Does overweight prevent conception?

REPLY

No, except in the relatively few cases in which obesity is on a glandular basis.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't Tackle Big Mountains At First—Try The Small Ones

As a good bridge player you must have faith in your ability to make a difficult contract. If you can make the contract only if a certain king is at your right, have faith that the king is actually there, but do not believe any more than you must. Faith will move mountains, but practice on small mountains to begin with.

DIAMOND LEAD

West led the nine of diamonds, East put up the ten and South won with the ace. Since South was a good player he now knew how to play the spades.

If you are peeking at the East-West cards rap yourself over the knuckles and concentrate on working out the correct reasoning. You should know how to play the spades even without looking at the hands of the defenders.

WATCH TRUMPS

Since you are sure to lose two diamonds and one spade you cannot afford to lose a trump, and you cannot afford to misguess the spades. You must rely on the king of hearts to be at your right, where you can finesse through it.

The opening lead told you that East started with K-Q-J-10 of diamonds, and the hand is hopeless unless East also has the king of hearts. If East had the ace of spades too he would have opened the bidding. Therefore you must assume that West has the ace of spades.

LEAD SPADE

Following this reasoning you lead a spade at the second trick. West plays low and you win with dummy's king. Now you lead the queen of hearts for a finesse and easily bring home the contract.

What if East had the ace of spades in spite of your faith? Then West would have the king of hearts and you were never going to make the contract. You go down two instead of one, but you don't mind giving up an additional 50 points in the course of making your only real play for a game contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠-A 9 7 6
♦-9 8 7
♣-Q 6 5 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since you have only six points in high cards you know that the combined count is only 24 points at most. This is not likely to be enough for game, so there is no advantage in getting any higher than one no-trump.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Jan. 18, the 18th day of 1969 with 347 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter and Mars. The evening stars Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1919 the Versailles Peace Conference was formally opened near Paris.

In 1943 Moscow announced that the German siege of Leningrad had been lifted. It had lasted since the fall of 1941.

In 1966 the late Indian Prime Minister Nehru's daughter, Indira Gandhi, was named Prime Minister of India.

In 1968 the United States and the Soviet Union agreed on a draft of a nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

A thought for the day: Henry David Thoreau said, "That man is the richest whose pleasures are the cheapest."

Terra Linda Rips San Rafael In Wild Marin League

From an ice-cold afternoon to a red-hot night—that was the Terra Linda High School mystery trip this week, and it helped throw the Marin County Athletic League basketball race into a real early mess last night.

The Trojans, who didn't hit much of anything in a Tuesday afternoon loss to Novato, turned into regular deadeyes aginst archrival San Rafael, handing the Bulldogs their first loop loss at Terra Linda last night, 84-64.

Meanwhile, Novato was handling overmatched San Marin, 80-49, to take the league lead with a 3-0 won-lost record while Tamalpais bumped off Drake, 69-54, in San Anselmo and Redwood outgunaed Mario Catholic, 80-61, in Kentfield in a wild night of high-scoring games.

TIMMEL STARS

Mike Timmel, last spring's super-pitcher with a 10-0 won-lost mark that helped the Trojans to the MCAL baseball title, was the most accurate Trojan of them all, proving that he can throw something besides a baseball.

The burly 6 foot, 3 inch senior, in a kind of unconscious nonchalance, flicked in 26 points, hitting 10 of 17 shots from the floor, mostly from outside, and cracking for a perfect six-for-six night from the free-throw line.

The Bulldogs were nowhere near perfect at the free-throw line, especially in the first half, and that started all their troubles.

CLOSE START

The Trojans, making 16 of 19 free throw attempts, broke open a close game which had San Rafael on top, 16-15, at the end of the first quarter, by outscoring the Bulldogs 14-2 midway in the second period. They took a 42-26 halftime lead, with the Bulldogs winding up with a 4-for-14 showing from the charity line, a doomsday set of statistics.

The lead skied to 62-29 at the end of the third quarter, as Timmel hit three straight fielders in the final minute.

SUDDEN THREAT

The Bulldogs suddenly threatened to turn this already wild ballgame upside down with Ray Taylor and guard Bruce Nave leading the charge. They worked the Trojans over for a 17-4 advantage, and trailed by only 66-56 with almost four minutes left.

The Trojans called time out and when play was resumed, Taylor fouled out, Pat Purcell sank a pair of free throws for the Trojans, Timmel drove for a bucket and Purcell whipped in a long jumper and that was it for good.

Taylor had scored 10 of his 14 points in the final period and Nave added 8 of his 15 points in the same quarter.

Purcell, who started slowly, wound up with 19 points and lanky Mike Penden, who had a bad day against Novato, moved around for 16 points before fouling out.

Novato

Novato's cagers got their first up-close look at their brand new cross-town rivals last night but getting aquainted proved to be tough for San Marin.

The Hornets, now 14-4 on the season, never did get used to John Howard, the junior ace of San Marin, but they played well enough to hand out an 80-49 thrashing after a close first half.

Howard kept it close in the first half, scoring 18 of his 24 points as Novato led by only 30-24.

But with Ed Herrnberger and Steve McNally splitting up 35 points between them, the

Giants And Indians Expected To Split

Gabe Paul's opposition to Chub Feeney as baseball commissioner is the tipoff that the long and happy spring relationship of the Cleveland Indians and San Francisco Giants is coming to an end.

Paul, president of the Indians, rounded up the American League votes that blocked Feeney's bid for the commissioner's job at a meeting of major league owners last month in Chicago.

Feeney, vice president of the Giants, was top man of all candidates at Chicago. He received all 12 National League votes and five of the American League's 12. He needed at least nine from each league for election. Paul's vigorous opposition was the main reason Feeney failed to get the necessary three-quarter majority in the American League.

Long Spring Rivalry

For 35 years the Giants and Indians have played the largest number of spring games and then gone on barnstorming tours after breaking spring camp. It has been baseball's longest and friendliest spring rivalary. Of 433 games played, the Giants have won 224, the Indians 201, with eight ties.

The spring partnership of the Giants and Indians started in Florida in 1934. It continued in Arizona when the teams moved there two decades ago, the Giants to Phoenix, the Indians to Tucson.

Harmony Is Disrupted

Paul, who had been general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, became general manager of the Indians in 1962 and president the next year. With Paul's approval, the spring reatiolnship between the Giants and Indans contiuned. But in recent years minor discords disrputed what once was a most harmonious scheduling arrangement.

There will be no interruption in this year's spring arrangement between the Giants and Indians. They will go on tour as usual after breaking spring camp. But this spring's tour to Albuquerque, Amarillo, Shreveport and Memphis probably will be the last.

A strained relationship between the president of one club and the vice president of the other precludes a partnership at team level.

Could Be Seattle Pilots

The Seattle Pilots, the American League's new expansion team which has established spring training headquarters at Tempe, may become the Giants' new spring touring partner next year.

It isn't likely the Giants would pick Charley Finley's Oakland Athletics for the tour. Finley was one of the American League owners who nixed Feeney at Chicago. And Finley's move from Kansas City to Oakland cost the Giants more than half a million dollars at the gate last season.

Palmer Stalks Barber, Devlin In Kaiser Golf

By JIM CHURCH

NAPA (AP) — Hoping to improve his putting, old pro Arnold Palmer stalked Miller Barber and Bruce Devlin today in the third round of the $135,000 Kaiser International Golf Tournament.

Barber, of Sherman, Tex., held the inside track to the $27,000 first prize after firing a five-under-par 67 yesterday, giving him a two-day total of 135, nine under par.

He was a stroke ahead of Australia's Devlin, who also shot a 67 to go with his first-round 69.

Palmer, who birdied four holes and said "it could have been a real good round with good putting," shot a 68 for a 137 total, seven under.

Barber and Palmer played Silverado's 6,849-yard north course while Devlin played the 6,602-yard south course, described by all three as having tougher greens.

The last two rounds will be played on the par 36-36—72 north course by 92 who made the cut at 145, one over par. Sixty-five broke par.

FOG, FROST

Fog and frosty greens held up more than 150 golfers for two hours yesterday.

Playing the back nine first, Barber blazed to five straight birdies, bogeyed a hole and then birdied his last. "It's easier to putt on the north course," he declared.

The first-round leader, 23-year-old Bob Lunn of Sacramento, found the rocky, rolling south course much rougher as he closed with two bogeys and wound up with a 73 to go with his earlier 67.

"I was struggling for every par," said Lunn, tied with Charles Coody of Abilene, Tex., at 138, a stroke behind Palmer.

SIFFORD FAILS

Failing to make the cut were Los Angeles Open winner Charles Sifford, who had a 74-72-146, and Alameda Open winner Dick Lotz, who shot 74-73—147.

Grier Jones of Wichita, Kan., fired a six-under-par 66 for yesterday's best round and stood at 140.

Atmosphere Big Factor As Cal Trims Stanford

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those who attend basketball games in Berkeley's Harmon Gymnasium might think the atmosphere could be improved. It's poorly lit, the fans sit jammed together on hard benches and the noise is unbearable.

But the friendly confines of Harmon Gym are loved by California's basketball players and coaches. The atmosphere might have been a factor in last night's 73-65 Pacific-8 basketball victory by the Golden Bears over arch rival Stanford.

Cal and Stanford were the only Pac-8 teams to see action last night. UCLA plays Houston to highlight tonight's games.

The Bears and Indians played a close first half and Cal took a 37-36 intermission lead. Don Griffin scored 17 first half points for the visitors.

But in the second half, Griffin got his fourth personal foul early and spent much time on the bench. Meanwhile, Jackie Ridgle of the Bears went to work.

The quick sophomore jumped the home team into a 12-point lead with nine minutes left. Then Griffin came back into the game and got the Indians' running attack working.

Stanford cut the Cal margin to 63-62 with four minutes to play. But California slowed the ball down and with 29 seconds to play, Ridgle iced the victory with a pair of free throws.

Ridgle wound up with 30 points. Griffin was able to score only four after halftime and wound up with 21.

Cal is now 2-1 in Pac-8 play and Stanford is 0-3.

Petaluma Trips Santa Rosa Five

Petaluma High School's quick-striking basketball Trojans, hungry for a North Bay League Section 1 title, kept pace with league-leading Montgomery by downing Santa Rosa High 71-50 last night.

Petaluma ran up an 18-6 first-quarter margin, moved to 37-19 at the half and coasted home, as Ross Goree led the scoring with 16 points.

Petaluma is now 3-1 won-lost in NBL 1, while Montgomery of Santa Rosa, which edged the Trojans earlier this year and plays them again in Petaluma near season's end, hiked its league-leading mark to 3-0 by routing Hogan of Vallejo, 80-57. Ukiah (1-3) beat winless Vallejo (0-3) 56-27 for its first league win.

'Bad News' Just That For Warriors

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

An unscheduled jet flight carried Jim Barnes to an unhappy landing last month, but "Bad News" has bounced back to help keep the Boston Celtics off the ground.

Barnes, whose nickname backfired on him 2½ weeks ago in a freak airport mishap, returned from the injured list last night and sparked Boston to a 102-99 National Basketball Association victory over the San Francisco Warriors.

The brawny, 6-foot-8 veteran came off the bench in the fourth quarter and put in three big baskets as the third place Celtics remained one game behind Philadelphia and 1½ ahead of streaking New York in the Eastern Division race.

EXHAUSTED

Barnes had missed nine games with multiple injuries after being caught in the exhaust of a jet engine and hurled 50 feet against a steel fence.

Trailing 78-76 early in the final quarter, the Celtics tied the game on Emmette Bryant's long jump shot and went ahead on a field goal by Barnes.

Jeff Mullins dropped in a free throw for the Warriors, but Barnes scored another two-pointer. Then Mullins and Barnes each hit from the floor before Bailey Howell's three-point play gave the Celtics a decisive 87-81 lead.

Aussie Runner Cops L.A. Track Headline

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Australia's Ralph Doubell emerged as the athlete of the night in the Los Angeles Invitational Indoor meet as the winner of the 1,000-yard run in 2:07 flat, one second off the world record.

Doubell, Olympic gold medal winner in the 800 meters in 1968, put on a final burst on the final lap to out-distance Wade Bell of the Oregon Track Club, with 2:11.5.

Peter Snell of New Zealand set the indoor record of 2:06.0 here in 1962.

In a co-feature before a disappointing crowd of 8,105 in the 13,600-seat Sports Arena, last night, George Young, the Arizona school teacher from Casa Grande, came from off the pace to win the 2-mile run in 8:42.2.

John Lawson of the Pacific Coast Club, former national cross country champion from Kansas, was second in 8:42.6 to upset famed Ron Clarke of Australia, timed in 8:44.2.

Tracy Smith of the U.S. Army, who set the early pace, finished fourth in 8:45.8.

NO ALIBI

Clarke, embarking on another U.S. tour, offered no alibi but said, "I'm just not built for indoor tracks. Those turns kill me."

Other winners included Willie Davenport in the high hurdles in 7.0 flat and John Carlos in the 60-yard dash in 6.1, the same clocking for second place George Gaines, unattached but now at San Jose State.

There were several late scratches.

Pole vaulter Bob Seagren bowed out on directions of his athletic director at the University of Southern California, Jess Hill, because the meet did not have certification from the NCAA.

Long jumper Bob Beamon showed up with his right hip bandaged. He said he hurt it in the Washington, D.C., meet last week. He hopes to resume competition in a week or two.

Peps Beat St. Mary's

MORAGA (AP) — Pepperdine scored its first WCAC basketball win in five starts last night by beating St. Mary's 89-74.

Tom Egerer topped Pepperdine scoring with 22 points. Jim Clay, who fouled out, paced St. Marys with 18. St. Mary's now has a 1-3 conference mark.

Casals Wins By An Upset

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Rosemary Casals of San Francisco defeated Billie Jean King of Long Beach, today in the semifinal round of women's singles of the New South Wales Tennis Tournament and meets Margaret Smith Court for the title tomorrow.

Miss Casals, seeded sixth, eliminated Mrs. King, top ranked in the tourney, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5, in a match dulled by the intense heat. It was 103 degrees in the shade at the time and officials guessed the temperature on the center court approached 120.

Later, the two American professionals combined and were defeated in the women's doubles final by Mrs. Court and Judy Tegart 15-13, 4-6, 6-2.

Big League Baseballers May Strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—The possibility of a strike by major league baseball players continues to grow day-by-day as the players and club owners get farther apart on the pension fund issue.

The pension issue remained unresolved today and the strike possibility loomed stronger after an announcement that an overwhelming 98.7 per cent of major league players have voted to reject a club owners' offer to increase the players' benefit plan by $1 million a year.

The players want a greater share of the television-radio revenue poured into the pension fund.

'MISLEADING'

A spokesman for the Major League Players Association said the vote, as of yesterday, was 6 for, 461 against. The offer had been branded as "misleading" by Marvin Miller, the players' attorney, immediately after the owners submitted the proposal last month.

He had called the benefits for each player "minute" and predicted a massive rejection.

"Negotiating meetings with owners' representatives will continue, and when an appropriate agreement is offered it will be submitted immediately by the players association to its members for a vote," a spokesman said.

Redwood Wins Marin League's Water Polo Title

Redwood High School of Larkspur clinched the first Marin County Athletic League water polo title yesterday by routing Terra Linda 16-7 at Redwood.

John Malvino had eight goals for Redwood, taking up some of the slack as league-leader Greg Myers was held to three scores. Coach Bill Purcell's unbeaten Giants, now 10-0 on the year, got outstanding defense from Ken Levin and Dino Clinch, who held Terra Linda's Dave Newman to just two goals, four below his average. Tom Guthrie also scored twice for the Trojans.

NFL Winds Up Long Season In 19th Pro Bowl Tomorrow

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's Pro Bowl time and a football game in which the players who have been attempting mayhem on each other for months either team up or conclude the violence until another long season rolls around.

The 19th Pro Bowl goes on tomorrow in Memorial Coliseum, featuring the East and West squads—selected stars from the Western and Eastern Conferences of the National Football League.

The publicized heroes, of course, are the quarterbacks—Don Meredith and Fran Tarkenton for the East, Earl Morrall and Roman Gabriel for the West.

It figures to attract around 50,000 live humans if the weather remains good.

LONG SEASON

In 1959 a record 72,250 attended the game. That, of course, was before this era when the pros begin whacking each other around to the echoes of July 4th fireworks and continue, it seems, until almost Easter parade time.

Only the bravest would dare predict the winner tomorrow. Events in Miami, Fla., one week ago sent hundreds of experts underground. They have not surfaced yet. Remember the Super Bowl?

For the record, however, the West has prevailed in 11 games, the East in seven.

There will be a sudden-death playoff in the event of a tie.

The star talent is indeed deep. The starters include, for the West, Morrall, John Mackey, Tom Matte, Ken Willard and Clifton McNeil on offense. For the defense, Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Dick Butkus, Tommy Nobis and Mike Curtis.

The place kickers, who might decide it all, are Sam Baker, a three-time Pro Bowler, and Bruce Gossett, in his first one.

Wild Night In Marin Cage League

McNally now has a dead-even 20-point average in three league games, just a point ahead of Terra Linda's Mike Timmel.

Redwood

Redwood wound up in Marin Catholic's lions den again, let things get warm a little then doused out the host Wildcats with a 48-point second half enroute to an 80-61 victory.

The Giants, now 2-1 in league play, led by only a point at the half, but Roger Smith and John Boro, hitting perfectly from the field, ignited the third-quarter charged and it was all over for the Wildcats.

It was Jerry Piro, however, who was the steadiest Giant of them all, spacing out 25 points to lead all scorers. Smith wound up with 12 and Boro had 15 points while Skip Corsini and Jim Peters added 10 points each.

Tamalpais

Tamalpais survived a typical early Drake start, then went on to carve out a 69-54 verdict over the Pirates to move within whispering distance of the league lead.

The Indians didn't score a point for the first three minutes and trailed 10-0 before sub Jim McCammon got them going.

They got within 30-33 at the half, then blitzed the Pirates, 39-21 in the second half to win going away.

Sharp-shooting guard Ken Gommeringer led the way with 20 points, followed by McCammon with 12, center Bill Secor with 17 points and 21 rebounds and Don Mackin with 11 points.

Rancho Cotate Loses

Rancho Cotate High School basketball team of Rohnert Park was blitzed 64-47 by Analy at Sebastopol last night, despite 22 points by ace guard Greg Woods. Rancho Cotate is now 4-7 won-lost on the year and 0-2 in North Bay League Section II.

Namath 'Sentimental' Pick

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sixty hand-picked players wound up practice today for tomorrow's American Football League All-Star Game in the Gator Bowl, with the East a sentimental favorite because of the presence of glamor quarterback Joe Namath and 10 of his world champion New York Jets teammantes.

The game, expected to be played on a dry field in 60-65 degree temperatures, will attract close to 45,000 fans. Each member of the winning team gets $1,500. To each loser goes $1,000. Jacksonville charities and the league also share in receipts.

The game will be televised by NBC starting at 11 a.m., PST.

"It figures to be an even game," said Wally Lemm of Houston, coach of the East. Hank Stram of Kansas City, the West's head man, concurred. He said a game of this kind, with the players together only one week, could go either way.

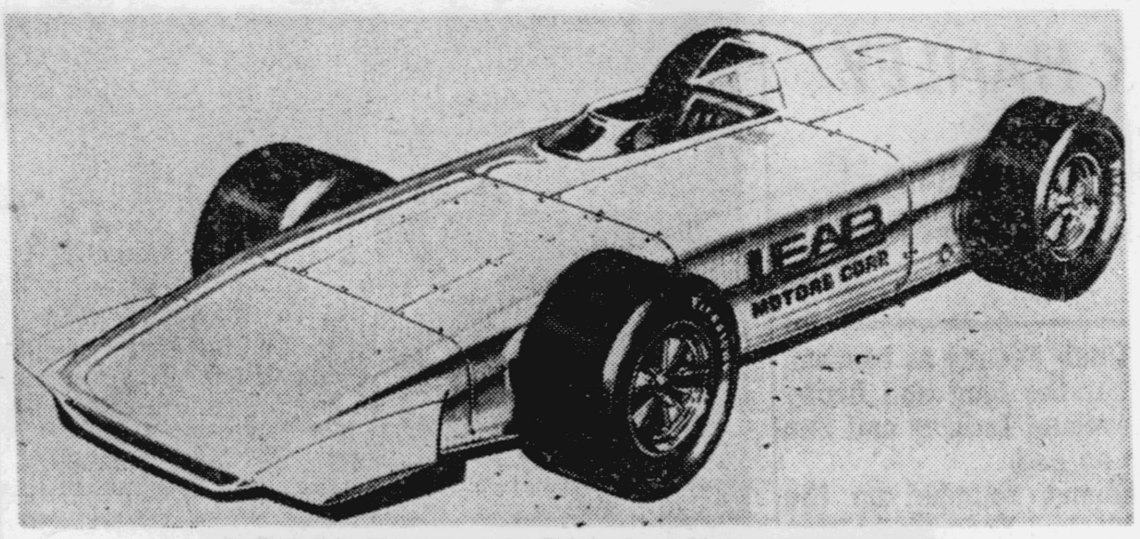
"A lot could depend on the breaks," he said.

John Hadl of San Diego, who'll start at quarterback for the West, and Namath will have familiar receivers and the game is expected to be an aerial battle. Sharing quarterbacking with Namath will be young Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins. Veteran Len Dawson of Kansas City is to take over for Hadl in the second half.

Lining up with Namath will be the Jets' two top receivers—Don Maynard and George Sauer Jr. Should he choose, Stram can place three San Diego receivers on the field with Hadl. They are Lance Alworth, Gary Garrison and tight end Jacque MacKinnon.

Failure of Matt Snell, Jets running ace in the Super Bowl, to make the East squad caused some eyebrow raising. But both teams are well fortified with runners. The West has Cincinnati's Paul Robinson, a rookie and the league leading rusher; Oakland's Hewritt Dixon and Denver's Floyd Little. The East can call on Houston's Hoyle Granger, rookie Jim Kiick of Miami and New York's Emerson Boozer.

Each team has a proven place kicker. The East has the Jets' Jim Turner, who kicked 34 field goals during the season and led the league in scoring. He booted three three-pointers in the Super Bowl. The West has Jan Stenerud of Kansas City, second only to Turner among league scorers and producer of 30 field goals.



ROBERT FULTON'S NIGHTMARE

Robert Fulton's steamboat may have been considered radical in its day, but hardly more so than industrialist-inventor William Lear's design for a steam-powered racer, which he hopes to build with the aid of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and former Indianapolis 500-mile winner Parnelli Jones and enter in this year's Memorial Day race. The 18-inch steam engine will be in the rear of the car and is expected to produce about 450 horsepower, burning white kerosene. (UPI telephoto)

SHORTS

A Manly New Honor For O.J.

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Heisman Trophy winner O. J. Simpson became the first college football player to win the Sport Magazine "Man of the Year" award yesterday.

The University of Southern California tailback, who set an NCAA record for ground gaining with 1,709 yards in 10 games this fall and scored 22 touchdowns, edged baseball's Denny McLain, pro football's Earl Morrall, auto racer Cale Yarborough, college basketball's Lew Alcindor, tennis player Arthur Ashe and others.

Kelly, a non-lettering guard for the Irish in 1950-51, succeeeds Johnny Ray, the defensive whiz who resigned from head coach Ara Parseghian's staff to take over the head coaching reins at Kentucky.

PHILADELPHIA — Jerry Wolman, financially embattled owner of the Philadelphia Eagles, said he has conditionally agreed to the sale of his NFL club, reportedly to a Norristown, Pa., trucking executive.

HOCKEY

The scheduled opening game of the much-heralded series between the Russian national team and several Canadian teams was canceled as the Russian failed to arrive on time. The USSR's Olympic and World Championship team is en route after threatening to pull out of the tour last week.

BASEBALL

GLENDALE — Baseball's double-talking living legend, Casey Stengel, continues to improve in a private hospital here after surgery for a perforated peptic ulcer.

However, the 78-year-old Stengel remains in an intensive care unit due to his age. Only his wife, Edna, has been permitted to see him since the Jan. 10 operation.

BOXING

NEW YORK — The Sports Lodge of B'nai B'rith will present lightweight champion Bob Foster, who defends his title Jan. 22 against Frank DePaula, with an award for "high principle and achievement in sports" at a dinner Jan. 25.

BOWLING

TEMPE, Ariz. — Don Glover of Bakersfield won 12 of 14 match games to lead four other finalists into the final round of the Professional Bowlers' Association $45,000 Valley of the Sun Open.

Joining Glover in the finals were Don McCune of Munster, Ind.; Ralph Engan of Money, N.Y.; Dick Ritger of Hartford, Wis.; and Jimmy Mack, Grover, N.J.

MARIN BOWLING

Eastland, Asay Roll Top Scores

Lou Eastland and Larry Asay blasted out top scores in the 905 Classic to rule the roost in the past week of Marin County Bowling.

Eastland, bowling instructor at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, rolled games of 226, 259 and 234 for a robust 719 series on the lanes he likes best. Asay put all his pins in one basket, banging out a 279 game on nine straight strikes. He ended the evening with a 684 series.

Barbara Henderson, desk gal at Country Club Bowl, dazzled them in the Ladies 615 Classic when she rolled a 255 game on her way to a 562 series. That 255 line even had an open, a 4-6 split, preceded by four strikes and followed by five more.

PICKIN' 'EM UP — Bill Leeber, 150 average roller in the Lutheran Early Mixed at Country Club, had games of 201, 234 and 192 for a 627 series . . . Nancy Menary, the gal who heads the week's women bowlers at Country Club Bowl with that 576 series, went way over her 148 average (and yes, she's the wife of San Rafael City Attorney David Menary) . . . Jack Ecton is top man so far in the Meals for Millions Tournament with a 748 score at Greenbrae Lanes; he's followed by Eastland, 721 at Country Club and Charles Fetheroff, 712 at Nave Lanes . . . Improvement is what it's called, Gallagher's team in Tuesday Nite Owls at Nave Lanes: went from last place last year to winners of the first half this time.

THIS AND THAT — George Sumner (119 avg.) bowled his first 200, a 210 in the San Quentin Mixed Fours at Country Club . . . In the Mystery League at Nave Lanes, Joe Robinson rolled a neat 122 triplicate, Earle Swensen converted the tough 4-7-9-10 split, and Emily Smith slowly went up the ladder, 160-161-162 . . . Joan Nelson, 139 avg., had a 526 score to smile about in the Reno League . . . Farrell Pallnow was consistent — just look at that 168-169-167 in the Friday Nite Leftovers at Nave . . . Nancy McPherson was tops in the Country Club bantams, a 215 game . . . Lil Scotto was best in the Marin County Mixed Travel League at Nave Lanes, 575 series and 210 game . . . Ken Thompson went 84 plus better than he was supposed to (if you believe in averages) when he rolled that 233 line in the Mystetry League at Nave Lanes . . . Cleta Chisholm almost had that elusive 145 triplicate in the Classy Lassie League at Nave Lanes, but that darned 147 last game got in the way. Although Cleta didn't get that triplicate, what about that spread out 3-6-7-8-10 conversion she made.

WOBBLING PINS — In the Monday Washday League at Nave Lanes, Naomi Dunbar and Louise Nave each rolled even 200 games to top the scores . . . Robbie Robbiano picked up the 6-7-9 split in the Merry Mixers at Country Club Bowl . . . Cathy Pantages (141 avg.) rolled a 190-544 in the Bowlerettes at Country Club and Marge O'Neill was only two pins away from a 111 triplicate . . . In the Hi-Lo's at Country Club, Jean Joseph (141 avg.; had a 214-538, and Herbert Heublein (155 avg.) rolled a 210-555.

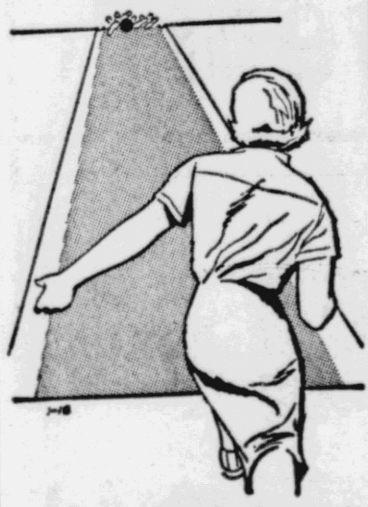
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



A mark of good etiquette is to leave the foul line after the bowl with only a glance at the result of your effort. Those who stand at the foul line and "talk to themselves" will delay action on the alleys to the sides. Bowlers there can't start because they can't be sure what the girl standing at the line will do.

Pro Grid Draft Rules Set

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets, out front of the pro football pack since their Super Bowl conquest of Baltimore, will take a back seat to the Colts and 24 other clubs for two days when the National and American leagues conduct their third combined draft.

The Jets, first AFL world championship team, will be the first from their league to pick last in the Jan. 28-29 draft, which appears certain to open with the selection of Heisman Trophy winner O.J. Simpson of Southern California by the AFL Buffalo Bills.

The Bills get the No. 1 choice because they had the worst 1968 won-lost record in either league. Except for the Jets and the Colts, who pick next-to-last, all other teams will draft according to their won-lost percentages. Coin flips determined the first-round order for 10 deadlocked teams.

Previous trades have given the Colts the most selections, 22, in the 17-round draft, during which 442 players will be selected. The NFL's Los Angeles Rams will get an unprecedented three first-round choices, having acquired the top picks for Washington and Detroit via trades.

GROUND RULES

Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced the order of selection and ground rules for the draft yesterday. A 15-minute time limit per selection will be in effect in the first two rounds, with a five-minute limit thereafter. No round will be started after 9 p.m., EST, but a round will be completed once started. The same time limits were in effect last year, when the draft was completed in two days.

The Rams traded rookie quarterback Gary Beban to Washington and quarterback Bill Munson to Detroit for 1969 first-round picks.

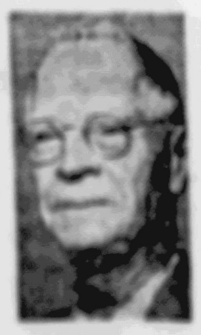
Two other teams, San Diego of the AFL and San Francisco of the NFL, have more than one first-round selection. The Chargers acquired an additional No. 1 pick from Denver for quarterback Steve Tensi. The 49ers obtained New Orleans' first pick for receiver Dave Parks, who signed with the Saints after playing out his option at San Francisco.

The Saints still will have a first-round selection, having picked up Minnesota's in a trade for quarterback Gary Cuozzo.

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Same Spot Just Won't Produce Fish Every Time You Go Out



STEVENS

You remember that song, the words of which evade me at the present, that pays homage to the nonproductionary, sad but determined fishless angler, who still persists in hoping for miracles?

It must have been around 40 years ago, Bert Swanton, of Swanton's Resort on Hastings Slough, pointed out the subject of his tale: he was a little pinched-bodied fisherman as high as I and probably as many years. I wasn't introduced, so the persistent little gamester must remain incognito.

THE BIG POINT of the story is, of course, that the man fishing in the same bay-like water entering a wide area of Hastings Slough was the same man I had seen years before fishing that same spot, where he had landed a trophy striped bass of 12½ pounds, and according to Bert, had been coming back to the same area, through the intervening years, but never repeating his star performance.

My repeating the above is not for the lesson to be taught, the wandering hop, skip, and jumping present day striped bass fisherman, but does point out the danger of the other extreme — casting your bait in the same area that had appealed to you and rewarded you on other occasions.

IT IS A WELL-KNOWN fact amongst oldtime striper strivers that given the same weather conditions, an area of say 12 square feet, fished with the same species of bait, at the same depth, and using the same aggravating tactics as the day before would, nine times out of ten, produce approximately the same results.

Whereas I had no intentions to preach a sermon, the opportunity came so evident that I followed through. If any lesson in angling emerged, after three or four readings, it was, I assure you, not accidental.

Lombardi As Baseball Czar? Well, He Would Consider It

By MURRAY CHASS

NEW YORK (AP) — Vince Lombardi, whose Green Bay Packers won pro football's first two Super Bowls, said yesterday he'd consider taking the job of baseball commissioner if it were offered to him.

At the same time, however, Lombardi showed that his loyalty still lay with the National Football League, hesitatingly picking the Baltimore Colts if there were a rematch of their Super Bowl clash with the New York Jets.

Lombardi, now general manager of the Packers, stressed that no one from baseball has contacted him about the vacancy in the commissioner's office, but, he added:

"I think I would have to listen to an offer. I'm a football man, certainly. But if they thought enough of me to ask, I'd owe it to them to listen. I'd owe it to myself to listen."

Lombardi made the remarks to Howard Cosell in a television interview for ABC's Wide World of Sports.

After sitting through approximately three hours of taping a 20-minute segment, Lombardi said he believes the rumors about him and the baseball job started with some baseball players.

The main topic of the show, however, was the Super Bowl. When he was asked which team he would pick if the game were played over, the Packer boss started to say, "I'd have to say . . .," then made a lengthy pause before adding:

". . . The Colts but not nearly the overwhelming favorites. I'm sure the Colts would play a different kind of game."

Then he paused again and said, "I'd hesitate to say who would win."

Lombardi also was asked the significance of the Jets' 16-7 victory, the first Super Bowl triumph for the American League over the National.

"This is good for football," he said. "As much as I didn't like it immediately after the game—I had some doubts about what it did for football—in retrospect I have to say it's good for football over-all.

"With the common draft, the leagues are getting closer and closer. That and they're getting tradition. I'm a great believer in tradition. The Packers, for example, have been around for 50 years. The American Football League has been around for nine years now.

SOME HISTORY

"They're beginning to get some history, and they're beginning to get some tradition. This is really important to a team and the players.

Speaking of the Jets, the Packer boss added:

"Weeb Ewbank did an outstanding job getting his team ready to play against the Colts. I'm not just talking about the game plan or the football part of it. He had them ready mentally. Seventy-five per cent of the game is mental—how you feel the day of the game. He had them ready."

Big Sales At Sports, Boat Show

A 55-foot, $70,000 Chris Craft Constellation twin-cabin cruiser, sold by Chester Shumate of Seaway Marine of San Rafael, is among the largest sales reported so far at the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show.

With more than an estimated one million dollars in sales already on the dotted line, dealers and manufacturers at the 27th annual event are concluding that an all-time sales record will be reached by tomorrow, final day of the Cow Palace exposition.

Boats ranging in price from less than $2,000 to more than $50,000 have been sold thus far.

"There's a much bigger crowd this year, and the people seem to have more money in their pockets," said Les Warren of Aloha Boat Sales, San Jose. Warren reported the sale of five 24-foot Venture sailboats the first two days of the show.

Noel Mackay, western regional manager for Trojan, reported the sale of four boats totaling more than $50,000.

Another $50,000 plus sale was reported by Ken Baker, president and sales manager for Las Vegas Boats of Los Altos.

"This is the very first time our Las Vegas line has ever been shown; in fact, we haven't even shipped any boats to our dealers. Yet, we made 14 sales on Sunday alone."

Though sales were high, prospects for the entire year seemed to be even greater, according to Bruce Barndt, local distributor for Owen's Yachts.

A record 152,153 persons attended the opening weekend of the colorful exposition, which features more than 500 exhibits filled with the latest in fishing, hunting, camping and other outdoor sports equipment.

Ho-Hum, Rangers Top Seals Again

OAKLAND (AP) — The New York Rangers dealt the fifth beating of the season in as many tries to the Oakland Seals last night, hanging on for a 3-1 victory before a crowd of 4,982.

Phil Goyette, Ranger center who figured in all three New York scores, opened the firing with a fast shot past Seal goalie Gary Smith at 1:03 in the first period, taking a rebound from defenseman Brad Park who had intercepted a Seal pass and missed the net. A minute before the first period ended Don Marshall scored. The second period was scoreless.

Bill Hicke flipped in a five-footer for Oakland at 4:25 in the third period, and Oakland put the pressure on New York goalie Norm Ferguson. But the Rangers wrapped it up at 15:12 with a screened 30-foot shot by defenseman Rod Siegling.

Sonoma Staters Beaten By Davis

Sonoma State's Cossacks, hampered by the suspension of leading scorer Ramon Solomon, took it on the chin from defending Far West Conference basketball champion Cal-Davis 85-69 last night.

The Aggies, who share the league lead and favorite's role with San Francisco State's Gators, were paced by Bob Johnson with 19 points as five men hit double figures. With Solomon suspended for missing practice, the Cossacks were led by Ron Trujillo's 21 markers. The game was played at Sonoma's Rohnert Park home

Pacific Wins, 89-66

STOCKTON (AP) — The UOP Tigers had 12 men in the scoring column as they defeated Loyola of Los Angeles 89-66 in a WCAC basketball game last night.

Catholic Views Change

By LOUIS CASSELS
(UPI Religious Writer)

The Roman Catholic Church is by a wide margin the largest religious body in the United States and in the world.

It has 47 million adherents in the United States, more than 600 million in the world. By comparison the largest U.S. Protestant denomination (Southern Baptist Convention) has 11 million members and the world Protestant population is about 250 million—less than half the Catholic total.

Statistics attesting to Catholic numerical supremacy are less disturbing to Protestants today than they were a few years ago. The ancient church of Rome, which once seemed impervious to change, has undergone such sweeping changes in the past decade that some of its members are complaining they hardly recognize it any more.

One of the fruits of this 20th Century reformation has been an entirely new attitude toward Protestants. Previously they were schismatics and heretics. Now they are "separated brethren."

There also is a new Catholic attitude on religious liberty spelled out officially by the Vatican Council in one of its most important decrees. The Roman church in centuries past held that "error has no rights" —the implication being that governments should tolerate "heretical" sects only to the extent that it was politically expedient. The Vatican Council laid down the doctrine that freedom of religious choice is a God-given right which must never be contravened by any government of state-supported church.

Thus, after 500 years of cold war, Catholics and Protestants are finally co-existing peacefully, and through the ecumenical movement are even making the first tentative moves toward drawing together.

In spite of the dramatic—not to say miraculous — improvement in relations within the Christian family, there still is a widespread tendency for Protestants to think of Roman Catholicism as an entirely different religion. And many Catholics continue to speak of Protestantism as though it were as alien to their own faith as Shintoism.

There are differences — real, stubborn, important ones. But, in the words of the Rev. Hans Kung, "What unites Catholics and Protestants is incomparably more vast than what separates them."

The greatest bond is that both profess Jesus Christ as lord and saviour. Both also affirm the incarnation, the atonement and the resurrection. Both acknowledge the continuing presence of the Holy Spirit in the Christian community. Both look upon the Bible as a divinely inspired book through whose pages the authentic word of God can be heard afresh by every generation.

Both believe in the forgiveness of sins, the efficacy of baptism, the power of prayer, and the promise of everlasting life to those who place their trust in Christ.

It is only in the context of this enormous body of common faith that Catholic-Protestant differences can be discussed without giving them disproportionate importance.

OTHER BELIEFS

The most basic difference concerns authority in the church. Catholics believe that Jesus entrusted the apostles, and particularly their leader, Peter, with plenary power over the church.

They believe further that this power has passed down to the duly consecrated bishops of every generation who are successors to the apostles. With supreme authority residing in the Pope, as Peter's successor as bishop of Rome.

And they believe that the Holy Spirit so guides the pope and his fellow bishops as to make it impossible for them to fall into error when making formal pronouncements on essential matters of faith and morals.

THE DOCTRINE

That, in a nutshell, is the Catholic doctrine of hierarchial authority and infallibility. It is, of course, a doctrine which Protestants have repudiated since the time of Martin Luther. Following Luther's lead, Protestantism acknowledges only one ultimate authority on matters of doctrine—the Holy Scriptures.

Catholics also differ conspicuously from Protestants in their attitude toward the mother of Jesus. The Virgin Mary is seldom mentioned in most Protestant churches except at Christmas time. But she plays a very large role in Catholic devotions. Prayers are addressed to Mary in the believe that she will intercede with her son on behalf of the petitioner.

To emphasize Mary's importance as the human vehicle of the incarnation, and to underscore her elevated status in heaven, the Roman church has affirmed that she was "immaculate" (sinless) from the moment of her conception in her mother's womb, and that upon her death she was "assumed" body and soul into heaven so that she did not suffer the corruption of flesh which is the common fate of ordinary mortals.

These beliefs—both of which have been promulgated within the past 115 years as infallible dogma—are rejected by Protestants who find no warrant for them in scripture.

PRAYERS TO SAINTS

Catholics pray to a multitude of officially designated saints in addition to Mary, seeking their heavenly intercession. The Roman church teaches that each human soul is judged at the time of death and, depending upon the presence or absence of "sanctifying grace," is consigned to heaven, to hell or to purgatory, an in-between realm where sinners undergo "temporal punishment" to cleanse them of sin and prepare them for the perfect holiness of heaven.

Christians on earth, it is held, can invoke the assistance of saints in heaven in procuring release of suffering souls from purgatory.

In effect, the accounts of the souls in purgatory are balanced by placing to their credit some of the virtues which the saints have on deposit in heaven's "treasury of merits."

Protestantism rejects both veneration of saints and the idea of purgatory.

STORMY PERIOD

The Catholic Church is going through a stormy period at present. Discordant sounds arise on one hand from progressives outraged by Pope Paul's birth control encyclical, and on the other from traditionalists shaken up by Vatican Council reforms such as the change from Latin to English in the Mass.

Some devoted Catholics fear the result of these rolling internal dissensions may bring a major schism or widespread defections.

What the future holds, only time will tell. But the past indicates that this ancient and incredibly durable institution will come through this time of trial as it has so many others in the past years.

Next week: The Lutherans.

SPECIAL UNITY WEEK ENTERTAINMENT

Barbara Riordan gives a preview of the folk guitar mass to ministers and directors connected with San Rafael's Christian Unity Week which begins at 7:30 p.m. today with opening services at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth and E streets. Special services will be held throughout the week, climaxing with a dinner on the Dominican College campus next Saturday. The folk mass will be held at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at St. Raphael's and will feature 20 additional guitar players. In the background (left to right) are Rev. Hugh Hardin, St. Paul's Episcopal Church; Francis R. Smith, co-chairman of the week's events; Rev. Arthur Nitz, Trinity Lutheran Church, and Dr. Philip Whitmer, First Methodist Church. Seated (left to right) Helen Smith, co-chairman with her husband of unity week; Rev. Henry Kent St. Luke Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Charles Griffin, First Presbyterian Church.

FIRST OF JUNE

St. Columba's Vicar To Resign

Rev. Francis W. Read, vicar of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness since 1960, this week announced he will retire from the active ministry in June.

Read, at 65, is one of the senior clergy in the Episcopal Diocese of California in which he transferred in 1947 from the Diocese of Los Angeles.

Besides his duties at St. Columba's he holds membership in the Diocesan Council and the Committee on Canons.

His former charges in the diocese include St. Stephen's in San Luis Obispo and St. Matthias at Seaside. In connection with these two churches, he served as rural dean of Monterey and San Luis Obispo.

During World War II, he served as an Army chaplain, seeing duty with the Seventh Division in the Aleutian and Marshall Islands campaigns.

Before his ordination 30 years ago, he practiced law in Los Angeles, receiving his degree from the University of California at Berkeley. He received his training for the ministry at the Yale School of Divinity, New Haven, Conn.

Following his retirement Read will become associated with the American Church Union at Pelham Manor, N.Y., and will assist with the publications of the American Church Theological Quarterly and the American Church News. His final service at St. Columba's will be on Trinity Sunday, June 1.

Mill Valley Minister Will Take School Sabbatical

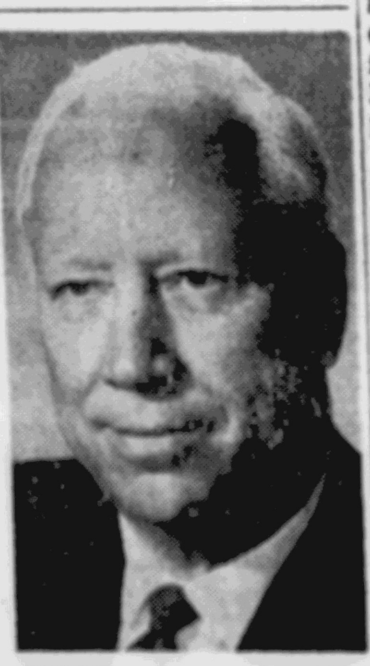
Rev. D. Murray Hammond, rector of the Episcopal Church of Our Savior in Mill Valley, will depart Monday on a five-month sabbatical leave to study at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass.

Hammond has been awarded a Proctor Fellowship and will participate in the special program for the retraining of clergymen who have been in the field several years.

He will take courses in theology as it relates to decision making, authority, group and individual freedom and how groups and communities make decision. He will study at the Episcopal Theological School, Harvard Divinity School and Harvard University.

Accompanying Hammond on the leave will be his wife, Muriel, and their three children, David, 16, Christopher, 14, and Teresa, 12. The family will rent a home in Arlington, Mass.

Rev. Paul Evans of Mill Valley, editor of Western Collector, a magazine for antique dealers, will assume Hammond's duties until he returns June 15.



TO LECTURE — Gordon F. Campbell of Santa Monica, who is currently on a state tour as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will talk at 3 p.m. tomorrow at San Rafael High School auditorium under sponsorship of the First Church of Christ Scientist of San Rafael.

Confession Boxes Held Out Of Date

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — There is no good reason why Catholics should have to go into cramped "confession boxes" to receive the sacrament of penance.

So says the liturgical commission of the Catholic diocese of Wilmington, Del.

In a booklet bearing the endorsement of Bishop Thomas J. Mardaga, the commission suggests that new or renovated Catholic churches provide comfortable rooms, "adequately heated and ventilated," for penitents and confessors.

"Some Catholics are increasingly dissatisfied with the quality of their experience in receiving the sacrament of penance," the booklet states.

"Their experience of the conventional confession booth is forbidding and frustrates their desire to be helped by a candid dialogue with the priest, because of the semi-darkness, because of the total visual separation of priest and penitent, and because kneeling is the only possible posture.

"In order to make it possible for people to more fruitfully receive the sacrament of penance, small rooms rather than confessionals are preferable.

"Such a room should have natural lighting and be adequately heated and ventilated."

PULPIT GUEST — Dr. David Noel Freedman, professor of Hebrew and Old Testament literature at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will be guest preacher at the 10 a.m. services tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo.

Evangelistic Mission Set

Rev. Agnar S. Tanner, staff member of the Commission on Evangelism of the American Lutheran Church, Minneapolis, will begin a four-day preaching mission tomorrow at the Marin Lutheran Church in Corte Madera.

"The Wonder of These Days," will be the general theme of the mission. He will speak tomorrow at 8:30 and 11 a.m. and each evening, through Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

A parish pastor for many years, Tanner has served congregations in the Midwest and at Pasadena, and Brooklyn, N.Y.

90-Year-Old Priest Tackles Major Issues

VERSAILLES, Ky. (AP)— "Disobedience and the like starts in the home and it goes out into church life and civic life," says a 90-year-old retired Catholic priest.

"Today, you have more obedient parents than you have obedient children," Rt. Rev. Msgr. Herbert F. Hillenmeyer said in an interview.

Hillenmeyer, a priest for 66 years, has retired from a Fort Thomas, Ky., pastorate to become chaplain of a nursing home here, but his interest in the world's problems still is keen.

In rapid succession, he expounded his views on such controversial topics as the Pope's encyclical on birth control, civic disobedience and delinquency.

"The Holy Father's pronouncement was nothing new," Hillenmeyer said, "just a reaffirmation of the general attitude of the church."

Priests' rebellion against the edict, like other problems facing the modern world, stem from a lack of obedience and a decreasing amount of charity in the world, Hillenmeyer believes.

"There is still charity in the world. I don't say it is devoid of charity, but it's growing less and less and less," he said.

Hillenmeyer said it is easier to understand "the laity, at lease some of them," rejecting the Pope's stand against birth control, but he thinks it shocking that priests would rebel.

"Years ago, a priest rebelling against the authority of the bishop, why that was an unheard of thing...

"I look at it this way: whatever I have as a priest to administer the sacraments, I have from the church. The church doesn't owe me anything, but I owe the church a whole lot."

The spirit of disobedience and rebellion on college campuses and in the streets also confounds the priest.

"I don't say in regard to young people that there aren't some points they're fighting for that aren't worth consideration, but their attitude of rebellion-...is just beyond me," he said.

Then there is the increase in recent years of priests leaving the church, many of them because Catholic doctrine forbids the clergy to marry.

"You have to remember that the Lord chose 12 apostles—he handpicked them...and even our blessed Lord had one traitor among his 12.

"These men who kick over their traces, why when they became priests they weren't drugged into it. They knew the responsibility and the condition," he said.

All of these problems, he added, stem from early home life.

"You just ask the sisters who teach in the schools. They'll tell you how much easier it was to teach children 25-30 years ago than today."

In earlier days, he added, children did what they were told. "They may have pouted a little bit, but their pouting didn't amount to much."

This lack of early training, he said, leads to breaking of laws, including such incidents like "I saw in the paper the other day where someone broke into a school and destroyed all kinds of things.

"Years ago, I don't say people didn't break in places, but when they did, at least there was a reason. They wanted to steal some money or something else.

"But to break into a school just to destroy it, well, I don't know what it's coming to.."

CHURCH PLANS 'SPACE RACE' ACTIVITIES

With the course still uncharted, the Christian Church of San Rafael, will begin a "race to space," beginning with tomorrow's services, and continuing through April 6.

According to Rev. Charles Boman, minister, said, "The race will send the Christian Church into a realm yet unknown — an unknown area of spiritual and physical growth."

The church membership will be divided into two teams — Apollo and Gemini. The targets will be "to be more like Christ" (spiritually) and to break the Bible school record (the physical factor), Boman added.

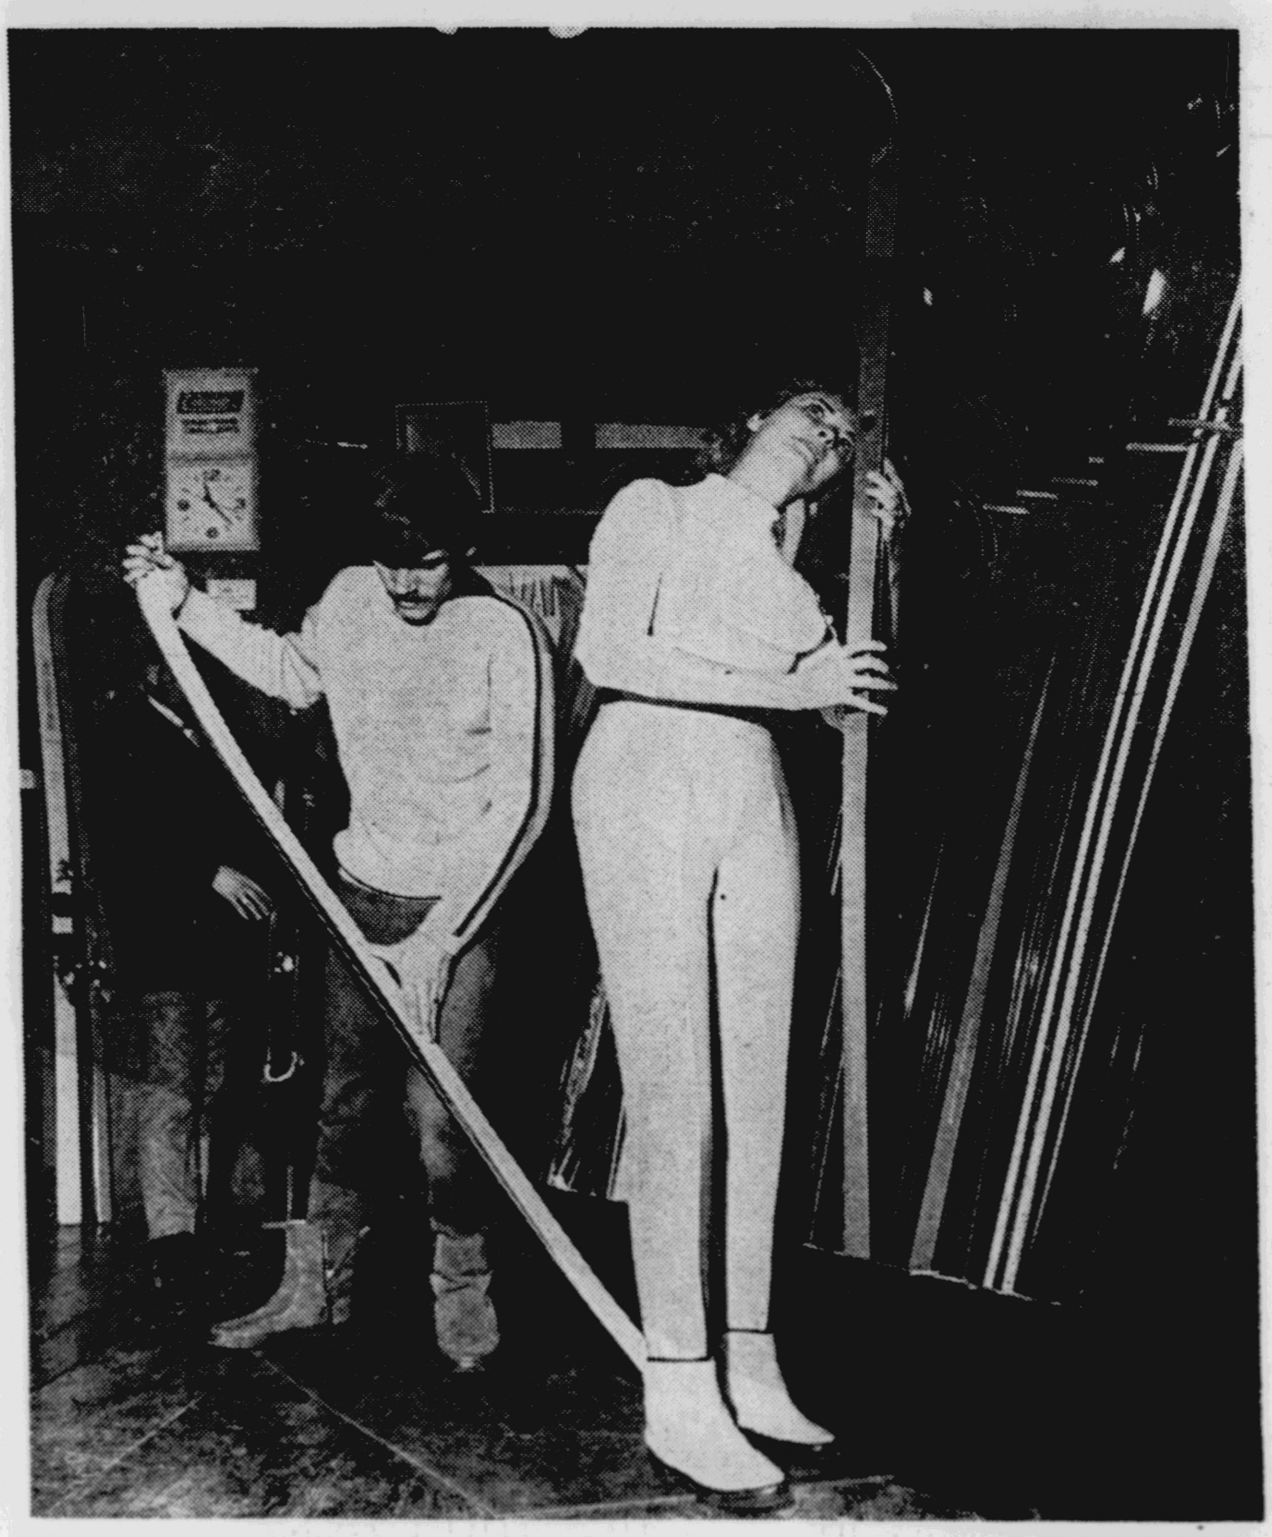
go to the snow

All about snow sports and resorts . . . where to go, what to do . . . what to wear . . . a snowfall of ideas from the I-J and Marin's leading snow sports and apparel stores.

Marin Shops Stock Best In Ski Gear

They'll Supply Equipment, Clothes And Information

By HARRY CRAFT



ADVANCED AMATEURS are fussy about the skis they use and often spend hours testing for flexibility, size and other qualities before making a selection. Here Rick Herrmann and Georgia Wandtke examine the supply at the Ski Shack in San Rafael. Miss Wandtke is wearing the latest in "ice cream" snow attire, with after-ski boots to match.

Many of America's four million skiers have already been enthusiastically testing mountain slopes and snow packs for the past month.

Others, caught up in the usual sequence of events over the holidays, may just now be finding time to buy new equipment or the latest in ski plumage, to make reservations at a resort or to scan the Sierra in search of a modest hill with "sitzmarks" that is within easy weekend driving distance.

When skiing first got its start in the 1800s, basic equipment generally consisted of rugged 12-foot skis with leather toe straps or homemade birch bindings, and a long, stout pole used as a combination brake, rudder and bumper.

Today, depending on how new you are to skiing or how advanced, there is a wide range of gear available to make the sport more pleasurable — from complete, low-cost packages to special skis for deeply powdered slopes.

The occasional skier more than likely will find it easier on his pocketbook to rent whatever equipment he needs for occasional winter forays and leave the buying to the highly skilled, the more dedicated and the professionals.

Marin County stores are able to equip just about everyone for this highly popular sport — novices, advanced amateurs and boomers, as well as the housewives, working girls and entire families that now invade snow areas with gay abandon. Almost all specialty stores have rental departments and several are wells of information on the best slopes.

THE SKI SHACK on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael has added a few items to its shelves this season. New here are the L-21 Northland skis and also Zebra and Volkl fiberglass skis. The store continues to handle the Attenhofer, Erbacher and Hart lines.

It has also expanded into fur parkas in a number of price brackets — up to Hudson seal quality.

The Ski Shack has large stocks of rental items — as large as its stocks for sale — ski pants, jackets, parkas, boots, ski racks, tire chains, toboggans and "saucers" for the youngsters. Records of customers' sizes and specifications are kept for their convenience in reordering for their next snow trip. Check here also for weather and snowfall conditions at the resorts.

BATTENS AND BOARDS on the Bridgeway, Sausalito, has added the new Voit fiberglass skis to its lines, which also include Head, Fisher and Rossingol.

Stocks include ski poles, hats, boots (a special here is Lange Boots), ski racks, ski pants, jackets, mittens and boot trees. Large inventories of children's sizes are carried. And the store handles rentals as well as sales.

THEN THERE ARE the well known Stan's Ski Shops, with stores in San Rafael, Strawberry and Novato — extensively stocked with skis, toboggans and sleds, clothing and other gear for the snow. Both rentals and sales are handled.

THIS YEAR, the A to Z Rental Center on Jacoby Street, San Rafael, has added a line of skis, poles, toboggans and tire chains to its rental equipment.

The A to Z Center in Mill Valley does not have this equipment, but may open such a department next year. I checked, too, with Davis Rents in San Rafael. But except for tire chains, no snow equipment is rented there.

DEPARTMENT STORES are always a source of winter wear. Check out the Emporium (it also has a complete children's ski package this year) and other Northgate stores and Macy's in downtown San Rafael. Scandinavian Designs in San Rafael has a sale on imported sweaters, great for the ski country.

Remember that Disco (formerly known here as Disco Wonderworld and before that as MAC-Disco) now has two stores in Marin — the one on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, and the more recently opened store in Larkspur. Clothing shelves are stocked with warm wear for the snow country and the sporting goods department handles skis, boots, goggles, boot-trees, mittens, socks, pants and jackets.

MARIN SURPLUS STORE in San Rafael usually carries mittens, ski socks, after-ski boots, knit caps and face masks, pile-lined waterproof caps, sweaters, ski and snow jackets and parkas.

No skis or poles are sold, but the store does have "bear paw" snowshoes this year, as well as sleeping bags and tents for the snow, if you are devoted to roughing it.

BOTH THE mail order stores, Montgomery Ward and Sears and Roebuck Co., continue to feature snow gear in their fall and winter catalogs. Automobile supply stores have ski chains, which you may as well buy if you make many high country trips.

Check your local drugstore for those sundry aids to complexion and skin comfort in cold weather such as lotions for snow and sunburn protection, skin refreshers, snow tan aids and preparations against chapped lips.

While I haven't checked the used good stores — Goodwill, Salvation Army Store, Sunny Hills Bargain Box and St. Vincent de Paul — there is a rapid turnover on these shelves and snow gear of some sort frequently appears. Check the Independent-Journal want ads, too.

IF YOU NEED transportation to the winter resorts, there are several automobile rental agencies in Marin.

Newest one to open here is an office of Budget Rent-A-Car System in the Greyhound bus depot, San Rafael. For holiday weekends in the snow, cars are being equipped with ski racks and chains without extra charge.

NEW THIS YEAR is Huski Ski Club, Inc., P.O. Box 4267, San Rafael, which undertakes 12 Saturday trips for juveniles to the ski country during the season. Instruction is given, along with several supervised programs.

Ernest E. Gray of Lucas Valley is director of the ski school and is certified as an instructor by the Far West Ski Association. His wife Suzanne is general manager of the club.

Another activity of Huski is handling snow tours for adult groups on a one-day or weekly basis, including all ski arrangements, transportation and accommodations.

WINTER SPORTS — FUN AND BIG BUSINESS, TOO

Skiing is not only a lot of fun, but it is also big business.

This year an estimated two and a half million people will ski in California, spending more then 14 million hours in schussing and slaloming over snow-covered slopes.

They'll also spend millions of dollars in equipping themselves for the sport.

Those dollars go for everything from goggles and bindings to lift tickets and lodgings.

To outfit himself, the skier will probably spend a minimum of $130. And on the mountain, he will dig into his wallet again.

A typical weekend at a ski area will cost anywhere from $40 to $100, not including transportation. And the average distance traveled by a Californian to reach a ski site is 198 miles.

A Bank of America study showed that a majority of California skiers fall in the $6,500 to $10,000 income category, although about a fourth earn between $10,000 and $15,000.

Not the most inexpensive pastime, skiing contributes heavily to the California economy, not just at the resorts but in cities well removed from the snow country as well. Sporting goods stores and departments in towns that have never seen snow still stock and sell skis, poles and all the other apparatus that the skier crams into and on top of his car, before departing for the colder climes.

Marin Is Ski Club Country With Groups Available For All Ages

It's A Good Way To Enjoy The Snow Often And In Comfort

By RALPH CHATOIAN

"Love of skiing and a good way to get to the snow" is the often heard answer when you ask a member of a ski club why he joined the group.

Some clubs travel by bus and others by automobile caravan, but the objective is usually the same — to get to the snow often for some skiing.

Many clubs in Marin County are for high school-age members, with four of the high schools having their own official ski clubs for students.

SAN RAFAEL High School's ski club has between 60 and 80 members with about 40 making each trip to the snow. Because of the heavy demand for reservations when the club travels, the list of the lucky is determined on a first-come, first-served basis, according to Sue-Ann Joy, adviser for the club.

President of the club is Debbie Noble, assisted by Jennifer Hoyt. The trips are limited to one-day outings, with parents and sometimes members of the Parent-Teachers Association accompanying the teen-agers as chaperones. The club conducts cake sales and other functions throughout the school year to help pay the expenses of the ski trips.

The club plans a minimum of four trips this year, said Mrs. Joy. The schedule calls for travel to Dodge Ridge and Alpine.

NOVATO HIGH School Ski Club has about 50 members and has plans for two or possibly three trips to the snow this season. Trips by the Novato group usually are to Squaw Valley or Tahoe City.

Carolyn Barnato, club adviser, said the club in the past has chartered buses for the trips, but this year will use private automobiles to cut expenses.

It's the third year for the club, which is headed this year by Nelson Brinckerhoff. Linda Parker is vice president and treasurer.

THE TAMALPAIS Ski Club at that Mill Valley high school is one of the older high school ski organizations in Marin. There are about 30 members. Students Rocky Nilan, Pat Bowen, Dennis Lippitt, Howie Ortman, and Bill Everts head the group, the adviser is Gretchen Hoskins.

The club charters buses for weekend excursions to the mountains with plans this year calling for trips to Sugar Bowl, Shasta and Alpine.

Teachers who like to ski accompany the club members on the overnight trips.

REDWOOD HIGH School Ski Club planned four trips to the snow for after the Christmas holidays. Girls physical education teacher Myrna Reed is the club's adviser. It is the 10th year she has supervised the group.

The 38 members of the coeducational club have passed ski tests to earn their places in the group. Tests were taken during past trips. Non-club members can make the trip with the club and then while there take a skiing test to qualify for club membership. This gives the student priority when there are more interested students than accommodations for the trip.

Friday through Sunday trips are planned for Heavenly Valley, Sugar Bowl and Mount Rose, said Mrs. Reed. The club hopes to be able to engage in races with other high school ski clubs this year.

THE NORTH Bay Ski Club is made up of high school students from Marin County, but is not an official club of any one school. It is headed this year by Matt Silverman as president. Vice president is Vic Goldberg and secretary is Lorena Smith.

The club, which holds its meetings at the Ski Shack at 521 Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael, has plans for five weekend trips this season. Destinations include Heavenly Valley, Alpine, Squaw Valley and Sugar Bowl.

Membership now stands at about 50, said Silverman. He emphasized that the club is open to all high school students. Adult chaperones accompany the members on snow trips, Silverman said.

The club was started six years ago by Betty Sundborg, then a student at San Rafael High School.

THE MARIN Ski Club is for adults and the membership is limited to 80. About 75 per cent of the members live in Marin County with the other 25 per cent coming from communities elsewhere in the Bay Area.

The club has its own cabin at Soda Springs, which is only two miles from the ski runs at Sugar Bowl. And "own" is a very apt description, since the A-frame cabin was built and designed by club members as a club project.

Brian Wittenkeller of San Anselmo is president of the club this year. His officers include Cliff Moder of Sleepy Hollow, vice president; Paul Bauman of San Francisco, second vice president; Phylis Watterworth of Mill Valley, secretary; Phil Garrow of Belvedere, treasurer; Martha Smith of San Francisco, recording secretary, and Bill Mann of Terra Linda, lodge manager.

Other key positions in the club this year are filled by Louise Ginsberg of San Anselmo, social chairman; Scott Watterworth of Mill Valley, racing chairman; Judy Smith of San Rafael, membership chairman, and Clare Stevens of Mill Valley, historian.

In addition to the regular trips to the cabin this year, members of the Marin Ski Club have planned longer trips to Alta, Utah, and Jackson Hole, Wyo.

THE MOGUL Ski Club is based in San Francisco, but has members from throughout the Bay Area, including Marin County. It is open to boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 17 and is designed to give youngsters an opportunity to develop skiing techniques safely and correctly. The lessons are given by accredited professional ski instructors.

The program includes one-day trips on weekends to Northern California areas such as Squaw Valley, Alpine Meadows and Boreal Ridge. Trips are on chartered buses, with pick-up stations throughout the Bay Area.

Representative centers of the Mogul Ski Club in Marin County are at the three Stan's for Sports locations — Mill Valley, San Rafael and Novato.

For the more advanced young skiers, there is also a Team Mogul Squaw Valley Racers group for competitive racing.

ANOTHER SKI club for youngsters is the Huski Ski Club, a San Rafael-based club which is in its first year. Suzie Gray is general manager of the club, and her husband, Ernie, a Far West Ski Association certified instructor, heads the Huski Ski School.

The club is for youngsters 9 through 18, with a schedule of trips to Alpine Meadows and Boreal Ridge already under way.

Wanda Stratford of Lucas Valley is community representative for the club. She said the club is divided into three divisions — Huski Ski Club, Huski Junior Leaders and Huski Racers.

The junior leader program is for youths 15 to 18 and trains them in basic ski procedures designed to prepare them for junior ski patrols or to qualify them as apprentice instructors.

COLLEGE OF Marin Ski Club has 30 members this semester, with plans for about five or six trips to the show this season. The club had its first trip over the Christmas holidays to Heavenly Valley.

Adviser is Frank Kalmar, food service manager at College of Marin. He said more trips to Heavenly Valley are planned, with a possible trip to Dodge Ridge squeezed in. The trips are usually for two and sometimes three days.

Loren Bruck is president of the club this semester. Other officers are Larry Nelson, vice president; Baily Stroum, treasurer, and Jean Sassani, secretary. New officers will take over for the spring semester, starting Feb. 10.

Kalmar said the club is thinking about organizing a ski patrol team that would be a chapter of the United States national organization.

Tahoe Townhouses With Skier Appeal

Frontage on beautiful Lake Tahoe would seem in itself to be a sufficient selling point for any residential development.

But important as its waterfront locale is to McKinney's Landing, set amid pines and firs on the north shore of Tahoe at Brockway, Calif., its developer, W. Bruce Shafer of Sausalito, says that a good 60 per cent of the buyers and potential buyers list its proximity to skiing as their principal or prominent attraction.

The Landing, with 15 luxurious mountain homes now completed and another 10 to be finished by July 1, is but five minutes from Ski Incline, 10 minutes from Mount Rose, 20 minutes from Squaw Valley and Alpine Meadows.

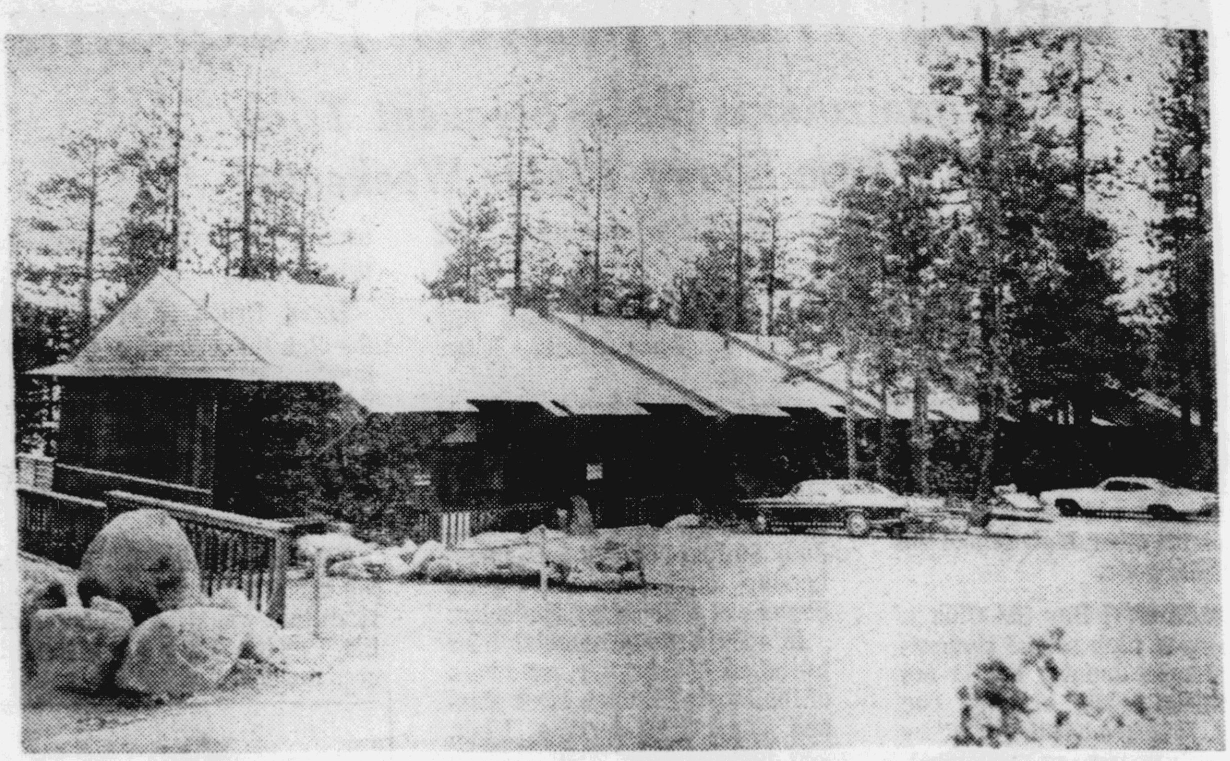
Purchasers whose interests lie in winter-time occupation have the opportunity of then renting their vacation homes at high rents to others whose recreation preferences lie in such warmer weather pursuits as boating, swimming, fishing and golf. (One four-bedroom, two and a half bath home was rented for $450 for one week during the recent holidays by its absent owners.)

The McKinney's Landing units are constructed in contemporary townhouse style and are priced at from $39,500 to $55,000.

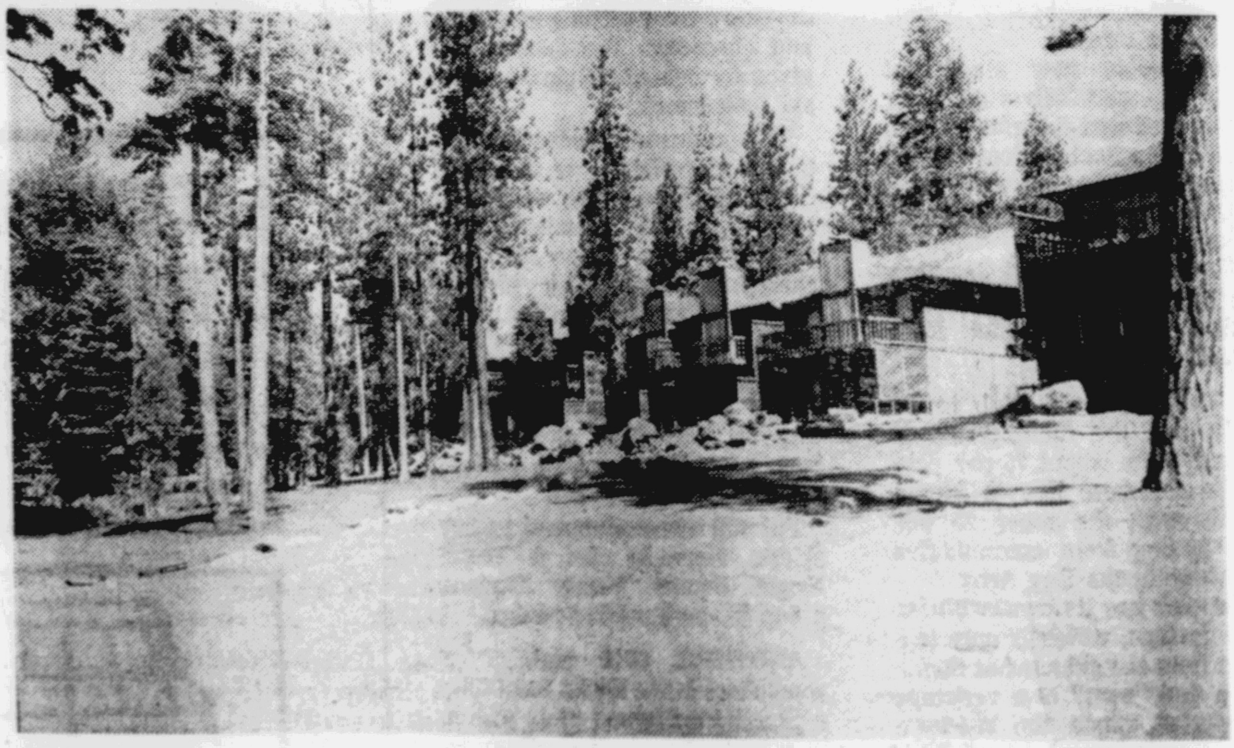
Faradg Gilan-Farr of San Anselmo was the designer.

There are four different floor plans of three and four bedrooms, and from one and a half to three baths.

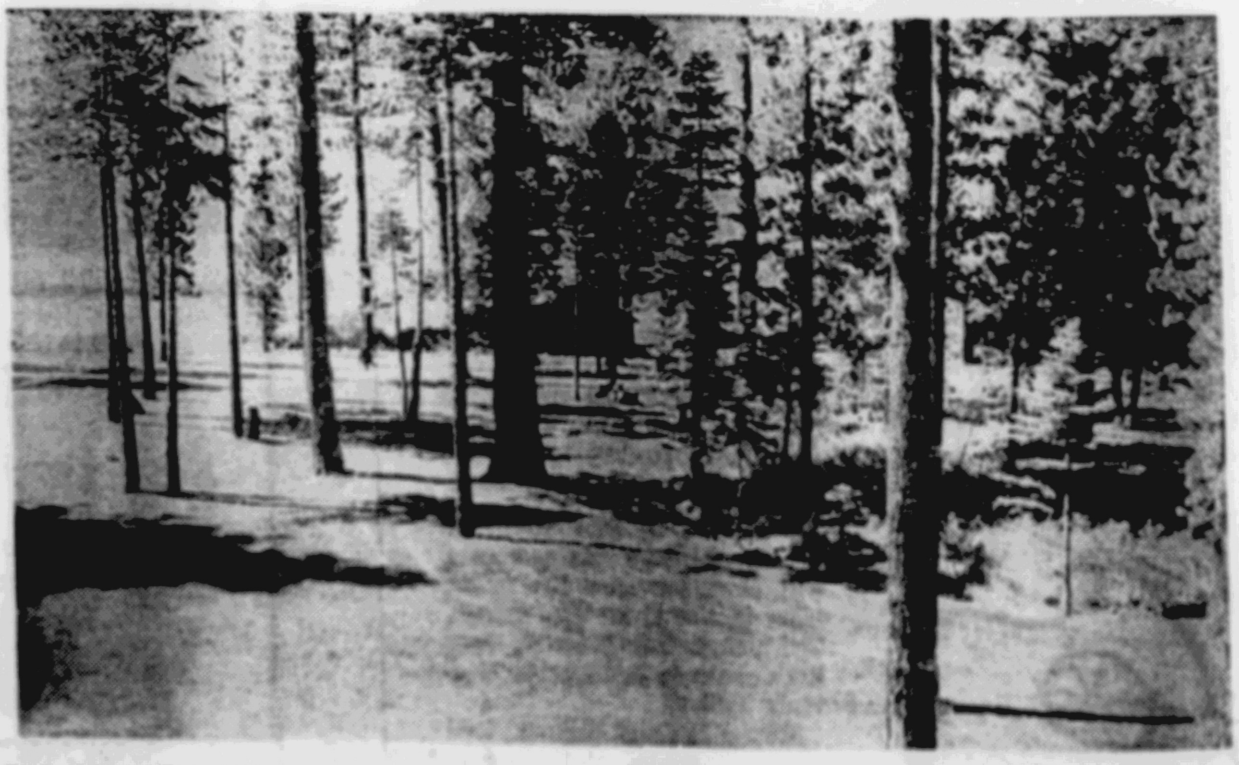
Appropriate to the ski country locale are the fireplaces of Feather River travertine that help to warm each of the townhouses.



THE ELEGANT TOWNHOUSES designed for developer W. Bruce Shafer of Sausalito by Faradg Gilan-Farr of San Anselmo for his McKinney's Landing development on Lake Tahoe's north shore are in an attractive contemporary style that blends well with the wooded surroundings. This is a front view. Occupants have only to hop in their cars in the winter months and within minutes they can reach any one of several major ski resort areas.



THIS REAR VIEW of the McKinney's Landing townhouses at Brockway, Calif., shows also the stand of pines and firs that add beauty to the site. Each buyer receives a grant deed to his individual lot, plus membership in a non-profit corporation that jointly owns the common areas.



THE COMMON AREA jointly owned by the McKinney's Landing townhouse occupants consists of a stately grove that reaches to the Lake Tahoe waterfront. There, a 225-foot pier and a 100-foot beach are reserved for the exclusive use of the owners of the Landing.

Make Sure Your Car Is Ready

The California State Automobile Association has issued the following winter driving tips for persons who plan to drive in skiing country.

To prepare for the snow, completely winterize your car by doing the following:

1. Add anti-freeze to your radiator to prevent cracking of the radiator and engine block during sub-freezing weather. Add a special solution to your windshield-washer reservoir to keep it in operation.

2. Use winter-grade lubricants for easier morning starts in cold weather.

3. Take along chains, chain tighteners, repair links and a tarp (which will keep you dry while installing or removing chains).

4. Be sure you have a flashlight and flares.

5. Carry a tow chain to use if your car gets "snowbound."

6. Keep an ice scraper in the glove compartment (it's the only thing that seems to clear a windshield of ice and snow on a cold morning).

7. Transport your skis in a closed trunk or on a sturdy, well-attached ski rack on the outside of the car. Use a lock on your ski rack. Skis inside the car or on an open trunk can be hazardous.

WHEN DRIVING on snow and ice to start if traction is poor:

Start your car in a higher gear than usual on slick roads where traction is poor. (Start in "drive" with an automatic transmission.) Accelerate carefully — just enough to keep the engine from stalling.

Avoid spinning the wheels. Ease along slowly until traction is good.

WATCH THE air temperature:

Many winter accidents happen because so few drivers know that skidding in the snow and ice is more likely to occur when the temperature is at the freezing point or slightly above than on hard frozen ice. When ice is wet or melting because of rising temperature, it can take twice as long to stop than when the temperature is below freezing.

Remember to cut your speed by half or more when driving on barely frozen or thawing ice. Watch for icy patches on bridges, underpasses, hills, northerly slopes, and shady patches of the road.

Be sure you haven't accumulated too much slush-ice under the fenders. If the slush freezes solid, the trapped front wheels make it impossible to steer.

When parking, it's a good idea to park the car in gear, rather than using the emergency brake. Slush accumulated while driving can freeze around the cables or rear brake shoes while the car is parked overnight, thus locking the emergency brake.

BE SURE your tires have good tread and your chains are not worn. High speeds can wear out snow chains in just a few miles, so drive slowly. Maximum speed limit in California in chain control areas is 25 miles per hour. When chains are required, snow tires or studded tires cannot be substituted (unless otherwise stated).

Letting air out of the tires does not increase traction. Be sure your tires have the right air pressure.

Make sure you can see out of all your windows. The proper use of your heater and defroster is vital to visibility.

TRY THE brakes while driving slowly and when no other traffic is near. Find out just how slippery or slick the road is and adjust your speed accordingly. The slicker the road, the farther you should stay from the vehicle ahead of you.

Never pull out to pass in slush.

Always remember that it takes from three to 12 times as far to stop on snow and ice as it does on dry pavement, so give yourself plenty of room.

The best technique for stopping an automobile on snow or ice is a light but fast up-and-down pumping of the brakes. Jamming and "freezing" on the brakes almost invariably locks the wheels. This will throw your car into an uncontrollable and dangerous skid. Never apply the brakes in a puddle or on an ice slick.

TO STAY out of skids:

1. Keep the speed of the car well below dry-road speed.

2. Keep the car pulling steadily and take curves cautiously.

3. Avoid any sudden turning, swerving and braking.

4. Drive smoothly, and accelerate and decelerate slowly.

5. Don't drive on road edges and shoulders.

6. Don't change to a lower gear on slippery surfaces at too fast a speed.

TO STOP a skid:

1. Should you find yourself in a skid, don't panic. Keep calm and under control.

2. Avoid braking. Slamming the brakes on during a skid locks the wheels, causes loss of traction and increases the skid.

3. Steer in the direction the rear end of the car is skidding. As the car begins to straighten, straighten the front wheels, too. When you are once again heading in the desired direction, either lightly pump your brakes to slow down slightly or gently accelerate to continue moving.

4. Avoid oversteering. Turning the steering wheel too far whips the rear end into a skid in the opposite direction.

5. Keep the car in gear. This helps reduce speed and produces maximum control.

6. Avoid lifting your foot from the accelerator suddenly. Some expert drivers accelerate moderately to help get out of a skid.

The guideline is: Drive with common sense. Any other course can turn what you have planned as a pleasurable outing in the snow country into a nightmare. Before you can ski, you must first get there safely.

Where Marinites Go For Their Ski Fun

A Short Drive Takes Them To The Finest Snow Resorts

By GARY TISCHLER

And for the inveterate skier, heaven on earth, the dream come true, that is the Sierra, the multi-varied playground of the snowflakes.

FOR SKI BUFFS living in Marin, the whole paradise is only a four-hour drive to the Sierra, four-and-one-half hours to Lake Tahoe and four-and-a-half hours to Yosemite National Park.

Let's take a quick look at the whats, wheres and hows of the various ski paradises, beginning with the North Lake Tahoe area on California State Highway 89.

One of the top attractions is Squaw Valley, five miles north of Tahoe City. It features beginner, intermediate and expert slopes, has an all-day lift ticket, with the trappings of all areas — ski patrol, first aid, rentals, lodges, meals and snacks A whopping 15 double chairs lifts are operating along with a 9,000-feet gondola.

ALPINE MEADOWS, located two miles north of Tahoe City, has five double chair lifts, three T-bars, five pomas, four beginners lifts along with slopes for beginners, intermediates and experts. It also features a ski school, ski patrol, first aid and rentals.

Powder Bowl, located two miles north of Tahoe City at the entrance to Alpine Meadows, has two poma lifts, two rope tows and slopes for beginners and intermediates.

Homewood, seven miles south of Tahoe City, has two double chair lifts, slopes for all classes, with night skiing on weekends.

Granlibakken, one mile south of Tahoe city, has three rope tows, one poma and a jump hill with slopes for all three classes.

SKI PAPPOOSE in Squaw Valley has two pomas, six rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes.

The Tahoe Ski Bowl, seven miles south of Tahoe City, has

There's Snow Fun Without Skis

Believe it or not, there are still people who ramble all the way to Tahoe and never go near a pair of skis.

They do other things.

Such as drink. Or gamble.

And there are even real snow buffs who don't like to ski but still are in a sporting, active mood. Or those who like to put a little variety in their wintertime activities.

The assortment of ski resorts and headquarters offer a variety of snowy activities for the non-skier or skier-plus-other-things.

The Tahoe Sno-Hill in South Lake Tahoe, for instance, has everything but skiing. It caters exclusively to all sorts of winter snow play, except skiing.

TAHOE SNO-HILL has 10 well defined tobogganing runs and trails some 4,000 feet long with lift tows for toboggans. For the kiddies, there are Sno-saucers, under continuous safety supervision. For the real small fry there is a snow play area. The equipment is all furnished by Tahoe Sno-Hill.

Also in the Lake Tahoe area, Squaw Valley offers an enclosed skating rink and Mount Rose and Heavenly Valley both have toboggan hills.

At Boreal Ridge on Donner Summit, there is a snow play area for children and saucer rentals are offered. Laing's, two miles east of Emigrant Gap, features a toboggan hill.

AN EXCLUSIVE toboggan setup is at Bumble Bee Toboggan Hill in Central California on State Highway 108 near Strawberry. It features supervised toboggan runs, a saucer hill, saucer rentals and a warming hut.

The Calaveras Big Trees State Park has a toboggan hill, warming hut and recreation hall.

Toboggan runs are also available at the Cottage Springs and Little Sweden areas in central California.

Dorrington, on State Highway No. 4, has a snow play area, snowmobile, ski-plane and toboggan rentals.

Lodgepole in Sequoia National Park has an ice rink, skate rentals and a food bar.

one double chair lift, three rope tows, and slopes for all classes.

Now, on to the South Lake Tahoe Ski Area:

Echo Summit, three miles west of Myers, South Lake Tahoe, has one platter pull, three rope pulls, beginner and intermediate slopes.

Heavenly Valley, off U. S. Highway 50, near the end of Ski Run Boulevard, in South Lake Tahoe features a 4,025-feet aerial tramway, 10 double chair lifts, slopes for three classes and three ski huts.

The Sierra Ski Ranch, two miles west of Echo Summit, has two pomas, three rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes.

IN NORTHERN California, Cedar Pass, 19 miles east of Alturas by way of State Highway 299, has one rope tow, slopes for beginners and intermediate skiers. Horse Mountain Ski Area, 45 miles east of Eureka by way of Highway 299, has slopes for all three classes with three rope tows.

Lassen Park Ski Area, nine miles northeast of Mineral via State Highways 36 and 89, has one poma, two rope tows, slopes for beginners, intermediates and experts.

Mount Shasta Ski Bowl, 14 miles northeast of Mount Shasta by way of U.S. Highway No. 5, has one double-chair lift, one T-Bar, and two rope tows along with slopes for all three classes.

Plumas-Eureka Ski Bowl, one mile north of Johnsville off State Highway 70, features one poma, three rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes.

SKI SAFARI Basin, with ski safaris departing from House of Ski at Ski Village Drive in Mount Shasta, near U. S. 99, features four-wheel drive buses, snowmobiles or helicopters to transport skiers of all classes.

Yuba Ski Land, 12 miles east of Sierra City by way of Highway 49, has two rope tows, beginner and intermediate slopes, but no ski schools.

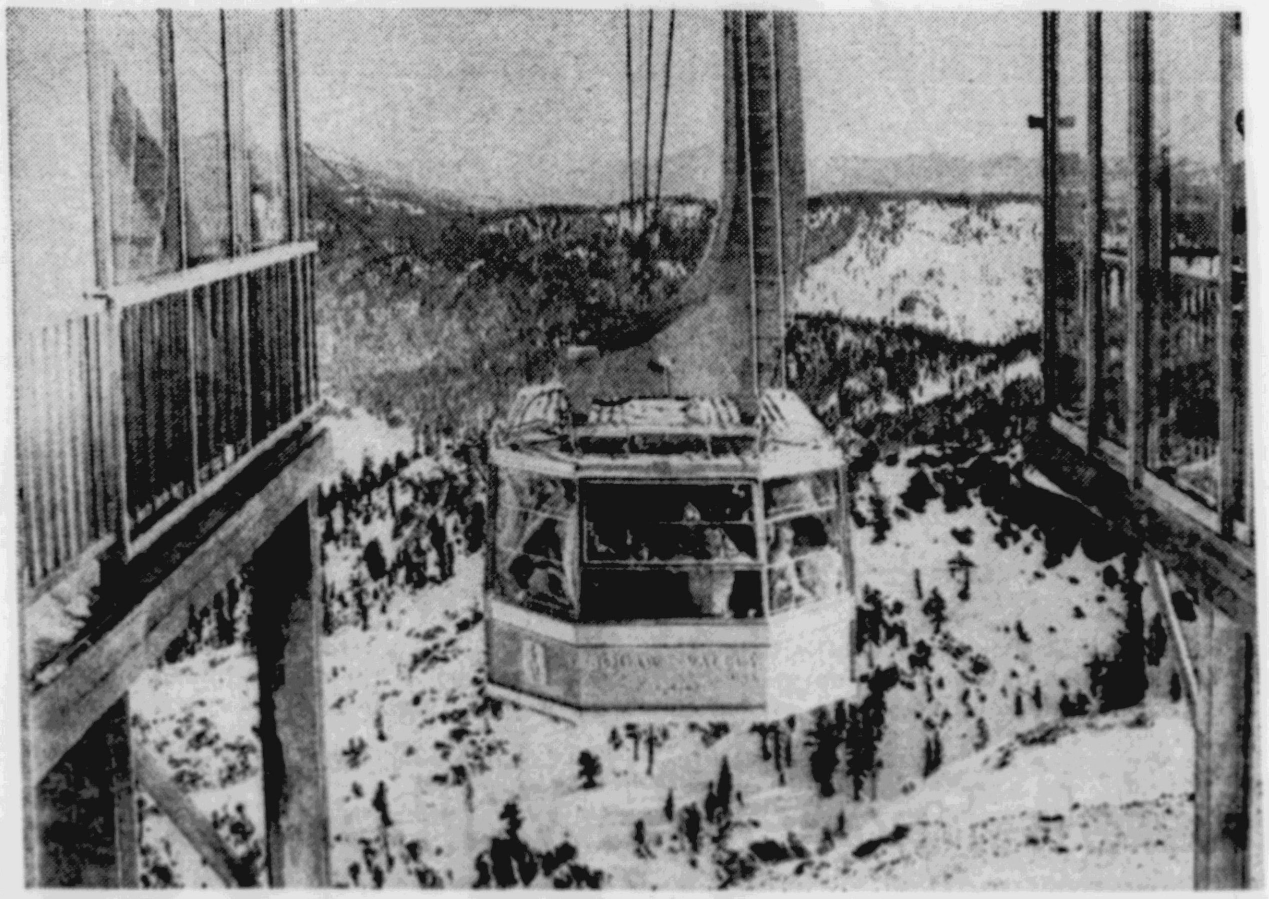
INFORMALITY reigns at Alpine Meadows, and family groups can choose between the outdoor terrace outside the main lodge where they can watch the skiers as they eat, or the interior of the lodge where a warming fire burns in the lobby fireplace.



THE LARGEST aerial tramway in the world is this two-car system at Squaw Valley. Each car can carry 120 skiers plus operator on a five-minute, 25-mile-per-hour ride up 2,000 feet to a new snow field.

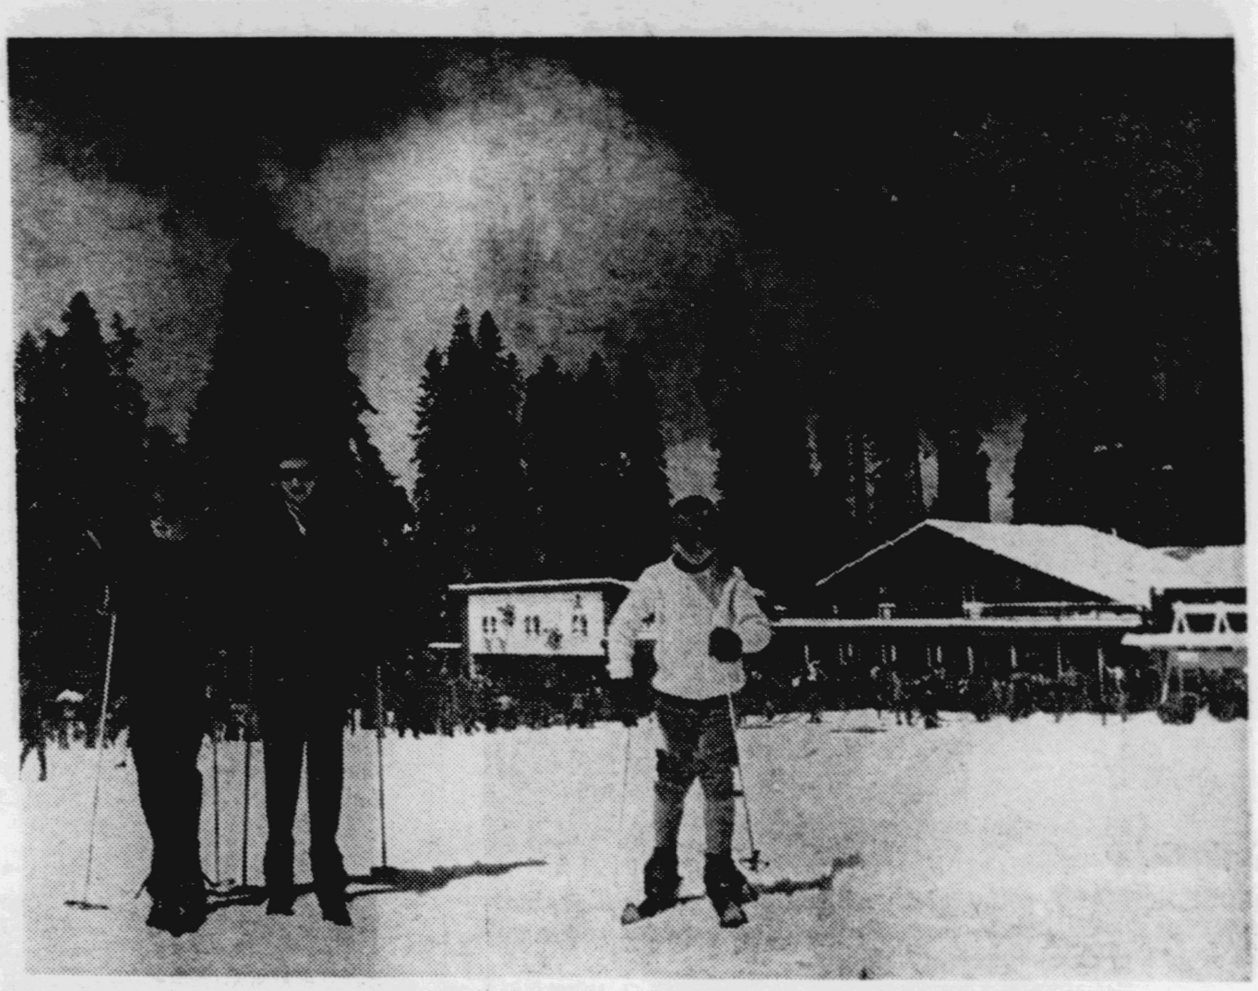
SOUTHERN California, too, has its snow fields. In this American Airlines photo, a cable car passes over snow-covered mountains near Palm Springs.



A MOTHER and two sons set off from the lodge at Badger Pass in Yosemite National Park for a day's exercise and enjoyment on the ski slopes.

Where They Go For Skiing

In the Donner Summit Ski Area, the Sugar Bowl, on old U. S. 40, two-and-a-half miles off the Soda Springs exit on U. S. 80, has four double chair lifts, one poma, two rope tows and slopes for beginners through experts.

Also popular are Boreal Ridge, at Castle Peak exit at Donner Summit, Donner Ski Area and Soda Springs.

In Central California, popular areas include Badger Pass in Yosemite National Park, which features four T-Bars, ski touring and slopes for all classes. Also used extensively is Dodge Ridge, four miles east of Pinecrest, via State Highway 108, with an assortment of two pomas and four rope tows as well as four double chairs. Slopes for all classes.

Other Central California areas include Bear Valley, between Tamarack and Lake Alpine on State Highway No. 4, via State Highway 88 and 49 and U. S. 99; China Pack, 65 miles east of Fresno via State Highway 168; Cottage Springs, eight miles east of Arnold on State Highway No. 4, and Peddler Hill, 40 miles northeast of Jackson via State Highway 88.

Further afield, there are the Sierra Nevada mountains, the Mount Rose Ski Area on Nevada State Highway 27, Aspen, Colo., Vail, Colo., Sun Valley, Idaho, and Jackson Hole, Wyo.

Photographing The Ski

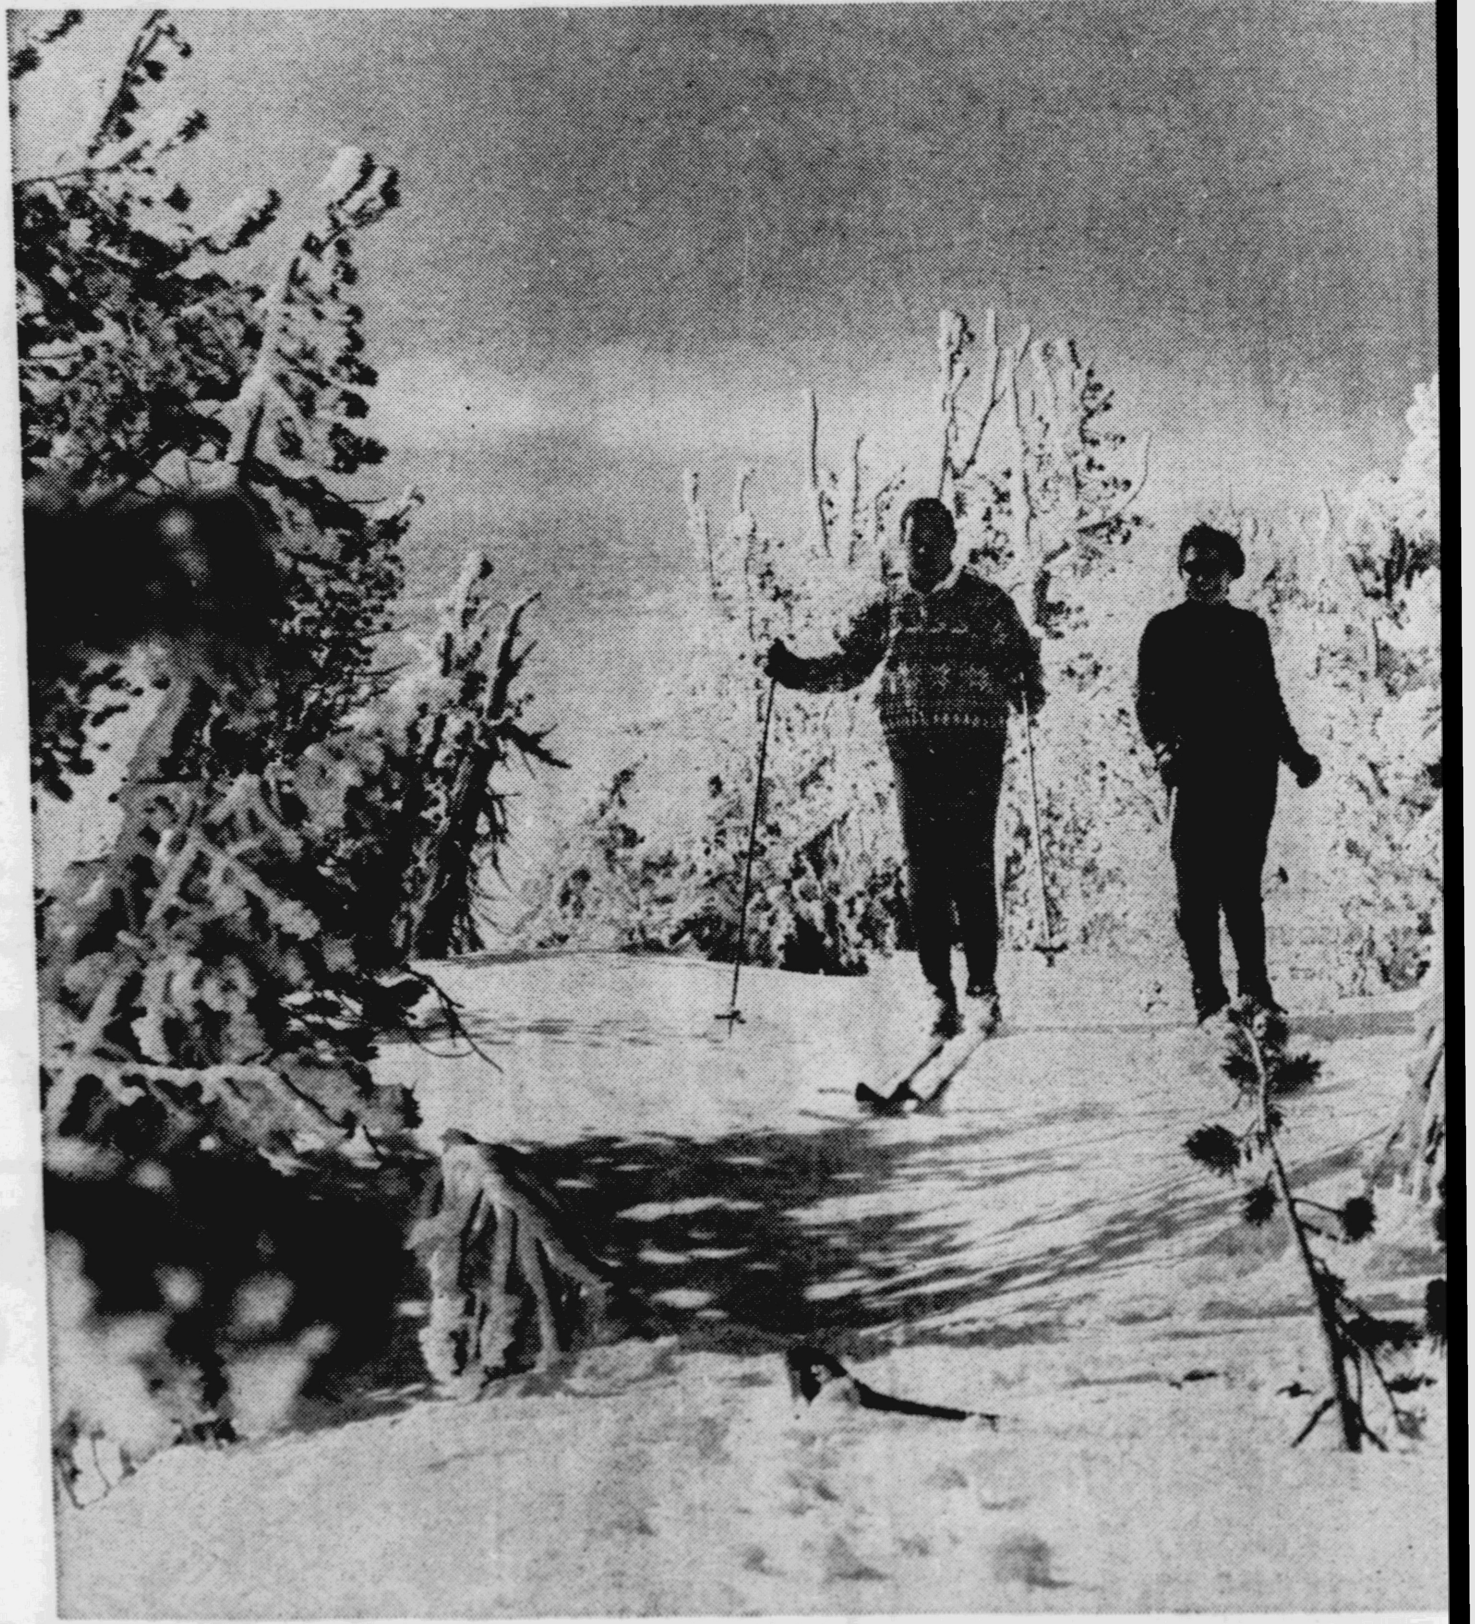
SIG HERZOG, right, of San Rafael, joins other skiers for a rest and refreshment on top of 9,000-foot Mount Baldy at Sun Valley, Idaho.



FROM THE top and looking down into Heavenly Valley, these two skiers find themselves in a veritable winter wonderland. Photographer Dr. Frank H. Howard was there, too.

kiers And The Snow

For 40 years, Dr. Frank H. Howard of San Rafael has been photographing skiers and the country through which they ski — in North America and in Europe.

His work reflects not only his experience in photography, but his experience in skiing as well. In 1961, at Sugar Bowl, he won gold, silver and bronze medals in slalom competition in the National Veterans' Championships.

The pictures appearing on these pages, too, were originally shot in color, but black and white prints have been made from the color negatives especially for the Marin Magazine.

Quite simple, says Dr. Howard. Just be sure you follow explicitly the instructions which the manufacturers provide along with their film.

After all, they're the real experts.

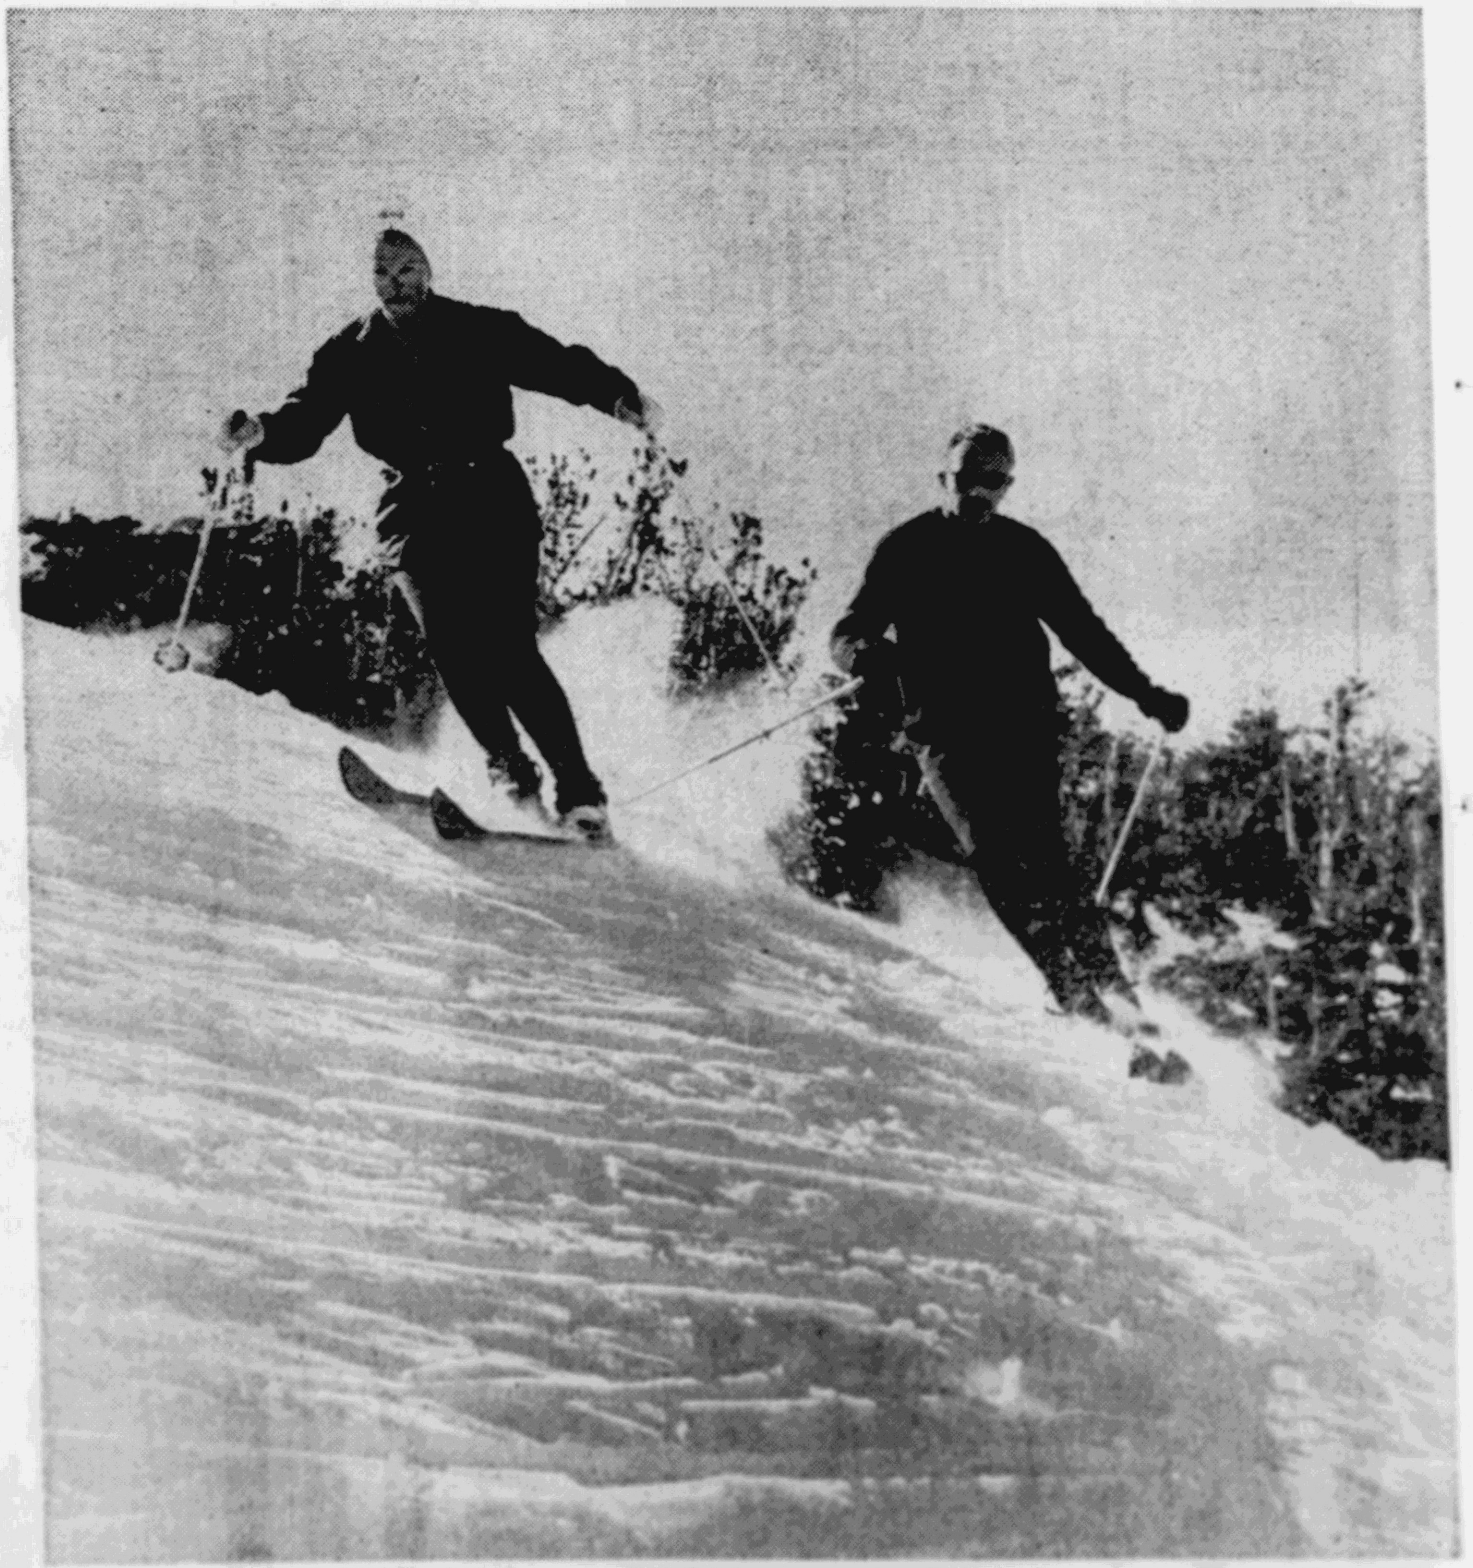
Heavenly Valley, while his sister, Georgette, watches and awaits her own turn to follow him down the white slopes.



THE BROTHER AND SISTER skiing team of Ralph and Georgette Bernson from Los Angeles demonstrate the breathtaking excitement and satisfaction that comes from skiing over the snows of Heavenly Valley.

Snow Fun With The Swiss

New Runs Add Luster To South Lake Tahoe Resort Area

That's strong talk, but consider these qualifications:

It's the only ski place in America to offer skiing in two states. It's the only ski resort in the world where winter motel rates are lower than summer fares.

Its sloping trails add up to a longer total mileage area than any other ski resort in the West, and the ends of their runs are at the doorways to top Nevada casinos.

THE RESORT is not a new one. In fact, it has already hosted some of the greatest skiing competitions in ski world history, last year's World Cup finals among them. But what happened to it during the past summer, a drastic remodeling including new mountain-carved trails, promises to burst it full-blown into the world ski scene this winter.

The resort is Heavenly Valley. This dowager of California ski resorts sits atop a snow-crowned throne near the California-Nevada state line a few thousand feet before that line transverses Lake Tahoe.

By adding two new lifts (now there's a total of 16) on the Nevada flank of its Sierra Nevada perch, Heavenly can and now does send new runs spiraling down previously untouched Nevada snow.

THE ADDITONAL runs give the resort some 20 square miles of snow fun area (Squaw Valley, for comparison, encompasses 9.5 square miles). Several major skiing-oriented airlines, United and Western among them, claim the resort is the largest in America.

Skiing the Nevada side of the snow dome brings skiers coursing down into the Stateline, Nev., casino area. Stateline boasts Harvey's Wagon Wheel Casino, Harrah's Club, Sahara-Tahoe and a host of other all-night entertainment spas which feature apres ski fare.

Bountiful buffets, at low casino prices, and stars of the magnitude of Sammy Davis Jr., Johnny Carson and Buddy Hackett vie with free fondue parties for the skiers' sparetime.

LONG KNOWN AS a premiere summer resort, South Lake Tahoe lowers its motel rates when the snow flies. This brings the added windfall of lower lodging costs to skiers.

South Lake Tahoe, only 3 years old as a city, has tailored its coffers and its ordinances to entice and then keep visitors.

Laws prohibit promiscuous tree-cutting and limit the brassiness and size of outdoor signs to conserve the pristine loveliness of the meadow-studded mountain paradise. A progressive chamber of commerce, backed by the city government and the tourist industry, promotes the area through low cost ski packages.

In sum, it's one of the brightest ski areas in the country. And it is virtually at the doorstep of the Bay Area.

A Land In Revolution

ZAPATA AND THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION by John Womack Jr.; Knopf, 387 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The history of modern Mexico is largely a history of its revolutions. A history of its revolutions is largely that of its revolutionary leaders. And a history of its revolutionary leaders discloses most of them to have been actuated at least as much by the quest for personal power and wealth as by any fervor to better the lot of their countrymen.

Reviews Of New Reading

Through seven years that ended with his betrayal and assassination, he remained true to a single concept: that the people, individually and as communities, had a right to the lands that had been taken from them by various means during the long reign of President Porfirio Diaz.

The story of Zapata, and how he kept the state of Morelos in almost constant revolt against the federal government over those years, is told in fascinating detail by John Womack Jr., a professor of Latin American history at Harvard University, in "Zapata and the Mexican Revolution."

One must have much more than casual interest in the Mexican revolution — or series of revolutions — of 1910-17 to want as much detail on it as Professor Womack has included in this book. But one need care little about the tragic history of our neighboring country to appreciate the volume as the story of a most unusual hero, told with compassion and understanding.

The Children Of Israel From Pre-History To The Present

THE JEWS, Story of a People, by Howard Fast: Dial, 338 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

"We're all in history, that's sure, but some are in more than others. Jews more than some." So wrote Bernard Malamud.

Howard Fast's spellbinding history of the Jews certainly affirms that wry truth.

As narrative, it is a miracle of lucidity. Out of the facts and myths, surmises and assumptions of the last 4 000 years he has woven together a story that is as fresh and moving as it appears to be justly reasoned.

He begins by examining the dusty fragments of pre history in the Mediterranean basin, when the children of Israel were one of many nomadic desert tribes, and makes a good case for his theory that Moses led the Jews out of Egypt under the command of a God who was far from omnipotent or metaphysical — a volcano, in fact (the burning bush that moved before them). This was Yahweh who developed into the vengeful Lord of the Old Testament and came to prevail over the gods of other tribes, as, for a time, the children of Israel came to prevail in Palestine.

From this crude beginning, one of man's highest achievements, the concept of monotheism, began to evolve and the Jews gradually moved from a priest-and-temple-centered religion to the highly civilized rabbinical ethic that stressed their close ties of family and community and the prime importance of charity.

When the first large numbers of ruling class Jews were sent into exile (the Babylonian captivity) the 2,000-year-old story of the wandering Jew was set in motion. This "Dispora" (Greek for dispersion) was to have a mighty influence on the world.

Ever pushed to the outer borders of the known world by the tides of war and conquest, the Jews came to dominate, for a time, the shipping industry of the ancient world; Fast presents convincing evidence that it was Jewish ships and money that pioneered trade with the Near East, India and China, and that the Jews were the first to develop cartography.

There is an overwhelming amount of material here, but Fast, as he goes back and forth from the drama of the Jews in Spain to that of the Jews who fled from Germany into Poland and later on to America, somehow manages to keep it all straight and clear, building to a controlled and almost unbearably intense account of the Nazi holocaust, and the birth of the state of Israel. An ending, as he says, that is another beginning.

During the 40 years he has studied Jewish history, Fast has come to some unorthodox conclusions that will not go unchallenged.

For example, he charges: "The Church from its very inception organized anti-Semitism . . . and spared no effort to innoculate the entire Catholic population with it, and gave it to the (German) pagan along with Christianity."

He is careful to explain that Paul did not invent anti-Semitism, but made use of the basic resentment that the Jews' separateness and what was seen as superiority had always caused. Since only Jews knew and followed Jesus during his lifetime, the tenets of the new religion, where it differed from Judaism, were Paul's later inventions, and hatred of his people because of their coolness to his "new Judaism" played a role in his fostering anti-Jewish sentiment in the Church he founded. ". . . for the first time in history a religion was created with built-in hate, holy incitement to murder and destroy."

Particularly during the long Middle Ages there appears to be no shortage of facts to bolster belief in the Church's anti-Jewish position.

However scholars evaluate this accusation and the rest of the book as history, it is unquestionably a masterful feat of narration that should be of enormous interest to people of all faiths. Seventy-eight pages of well-chosen illustrations are included.

Taking Full Advantage Of Those Precious Early Years

TEACHING MONTESSORI IN THE HOME by Elizabeth G. Hainstock; Random House, 117 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Can the educational methods devised by the late Maria Montessori be applied in the home as well as in the classroom?

In this book, Elizabeth G. Hainstock, both a teacher and a mother, answers in the affirmative. And she tells parents how to go about it.

Dr. Montessori died in 1952, but since her passing, there has been an increased interest in and acceptance of her ideas, rather than a fading of her influence.

Basically, her thesis was that education begins at birth and that the earliest years when the mental development potential is greatest should not be wasted. She believed, too, that the child has particular periods of sensitivity when he is particularly susceptible to learning, that the youngster progresses and flourishes very largely according to his environment, that he should be allowed to act freely toward self-development in that environment, and that emphasis should be placed upon the spiritual rather than the mechanical aspects of education.

In her book, Mrs. Hainstock tells how to set up a Montessori environment in the home, and how to utilize it, providing exercises and directions as well as the basic philosophy of the Montessori movement.

Montessori in the home should not be viewed as a substutute for formitive-year training by specially prepared experts in the classrooms. But the program outlined by Mrs. Hainstock will enable parents to give their offspring the very early start Dr. Montessori thought so important. And to continue with the pre-school education of the child if for some reason enrolment in a professionally staffed Montessori program or Montessori-oriented program is impossible.

Criticizing A Movie Critic: She Grapples With Ghost

THE PRIVATE EYE, THE COWBOY AND THE VERY NAKED GIRL: MOVIES FROM CLEO TO CLYDE by Judith Crist; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 292 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

Film criticism, especially of the daily newspaper variety, is at best a standardless profession most difficult to judge.

But it seems to me that it would require at the very least a certain kind of love and caring for films, a certain amount of intelligence and knowledge about the form.

Judith Crist, by some unfortunate quirk, is probably the best-known film critic in the United States, the one with access to the most people including the very people who most need some kind of valid film criticism — the average movie-goer. This through a TV Guide column and the Today show, and through fame or notoriety.

This collection of reviews by Miss Crist gives you the lady at her best and at her worst, and brings up some serious questions.

Miss Crist professes to love films because she has sat through so many. She mentions herself in the same breath as James Agee, a kind of audacious blasphemy, and professes to be a staunch defender of American films as opposed to obscure, art-for-art's sake foreign films. She sees herself as being some kind of a Lincoln Steffens among film critics, bravely firing away at Hollywood, which is at best a matter of grappling with ghosts.

Miss Crist, at her best, is clever and bitchy. She can take films like "Cleopatra," "Spencer's Mountain," "The Sandpiper" and "Hurry Sundown," and chop them down to a whimpering piece of trash. Unfortunately, she uses too many acid words in doing so. Faced with what she considers a good film, she is curiously out of breadth and depth. All the brave eloquence used in cheap shots against obvious targets is missing.

In the battle of Miss Crist vs. foreign films, she does not play quite fairly. True, she will tackle Alain Resnais and Michelangelo Antonini by deflating them like a Judy-come-lately, pricking pins into an overrated work, crying obscurity and boredom. But she is almost in awe of anything done by Federico Fellini, and the more obscure the better. Ditto for Ingmar Bergman. And when confronted with something like "Blowup," a film that befuddled any number of better critics, she concedes its brilliance but was disappointed that it didn't tell a story.

Miss Crist does have influence over many people. She seems much too concerned with herself, too little with films. It seems that in the end to turn a phrase is much more important than the film itself.

In her preface to the book, she points with pride to awards presented to her for negative reviews of bad films. If she really likes movies, then movies don't need enemies.

Which Is Right, The Warren Commission Or Jim Garrison?

By DON KEOWN

CENTRAL FIGURES in one of the most bewildering investigations in American history are Jim Garrison, right, the flamboyant district attorney, and Clay Shaw, New Orleans businessman accused by Garrison of being a key participant in a conspiracy that preceded the murder of President John F. Kennedy. Paris Flammonde reviews the case from a pro-Garrison point-of-view in his "The Kennedy Conspiracy."

THE KENNEDY CONSPIRACY by Paris Flammonde; Meredith, 348 pages, $6.95.

The John F. Kennedy assassination is one of those events in history about which only those who know the barest minimum can afford fixed, certain opinions.

Those who have confined their knowledge to that acquired through a limited reading of the fragmentized newspaper accounts plus a few sensationalized television reports generally line up staunchly in one of two diametrically opposed groups:

1. Those who accept without doubt the Warren Commission's finding that the President was slain by Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone.
2. Those who endorse the theories of critics of the commission who contend that Oswald was the tool in a conspiracy. This group divides into two sub-categories. If you are a rightist, the plotters were leftists. If you are leftist-oriented, the conspirators were rightists.

Those who have delved more deeply into the facts of the assassination and its aftermath find themselves caught up in a welter of conflict, confusion and secrecy. More than five years after John F. Kennedy's death, the facts are less clear and more in dispute than ever.

Reading Paris Flammonde's "The Kennedy Conspiracy," subtitled "An Uncommissioned Report on the Jim Garrison Investigation," only adds to, rather than resolves, the uncertainty.

Flammonde, a former television producer associated with the colorful Southern California personality, Long John Nebel, claims objectivity. But his book reads like an out-and-out defense of Garrison, the controversial New Orleans district attorney who claims to have uncovered a conspiracy against President Kennedy's life involving disgruntled anti-Castro Cuban exiles and ultra-conservative Americans with Central Intelligence Agency connections.

In many ways it is an impressively effective presentation, but it is not without its flaws.

For one thing, the book is often repetitive and disorganized. But as Flammonde explains, the situation was fast changing even as he wrote.

Flammonde's so obvious pro-Garrison bias is the most noticeable weakness. The reader gains the impression that Flammonde quite literally has swept up everything the least bit favorable to the Garrison cause and dumped it all into his book with little effort to differentiate between the substantial and the trivial, and with evaluations that are sometimes questionable.

Those who have read extensively from other sources note, too, certain glaring omissions of key points of evidence harmful to Garrison's conclusions.

Yet, on the whole, Flammonde strengthens the case for Garrison considerably and restores some balance to a picture that had become tilted. One must accept his argument that Garrison and his views have not been accorded fair coverage by the major news media.

True, Garrison has hurt himself with his garrulity and some of his wilder, unsupported accusations. But he is a lawyer and a politician, and a loose lip is an occupational trait of both professions. It should not prevent us from recognizing that the New Orleans D.A. has, indeed, turned up a considerable amount of solid evidence in support of his shocking theory — enough so that a panel of three judges, hearing only a part of it, ruled unhesitatingly that there was justification for holding Clay Shaw for trial.

The thought of CID involvement in a widespread, fascistic plot upon the life of our national executive is a monstrous idea. But history is replete with monstrous events.

Even if Flammonde doesn't persuade you that Garrison is on the right track, he should convince you that the district attorney deserves a better chance to pursue his investigations and any resulting prosecutions than he has been accorded by the courts and officials of some states, including California, that have refused to honor his requests for extraditions, and by federal authorities who have disrupted the probe and issued prejudicial statements on a par with Garrison's own verbosity.

In all those states, and on the federal level as well, you can bet that suspects are being questioned and men are being placed on trial in other cases in which the evidence is no more convincing than that assembled by Garrison and his staff in the face of immense difficulties.

"The Kennedy Conspiracy" is a fascinating record that should be read with considerable caution and discernment, and only after some advance preparation. But read, it should be. It may pose as many new questions as it answers old ones. But these are questions that should be recognized and confronted.

DOVER PUBLICATIONS has launched a "The Great Masters of Drawing" series with two books containing 32 plates each. "Drawings by Botticelli" and "Drawings by Leonardo da Vinci."

While both are billed as "Dover originals," the material comes from the "I Grandi Maestri del Disegno" series published in Milan, Italy.

The drawings reproduced have been carefully chosen to demonstrate the particular styles and merits of the two great artists. There are introductions translated from the Italian for both books, by Giorgio Castelfranco for Da Vinci, by Aldo Bertini for Botticelli.

The books are paperback, but in Dover's patented high quality format and design. The inside pages are of a special lasting quality and are sewn rather than glued.

WARD RITCHIE Press of Los Angeles has published the second book in its paperback series, Exploring California Byways.

Whereas the first book covered the area from Kings Canyon to the Mexican border, book II takes up the region "in and around Los Angeles." Russ Leadabrand suggests 15 byways —"little roads that beckon, smaller roads that invite" — that lead motorists through scenery and past and to points of interest. It is particularly useful to the Los Angeles resident who is a weekend pleasure driver, but should also be helpful to the visitor to the Southlands who has sufficient time to do a bit of exploring. And eventually, it is to be hoped, the Ritchie Press series will reach our own area.

The book sells for $1.95.

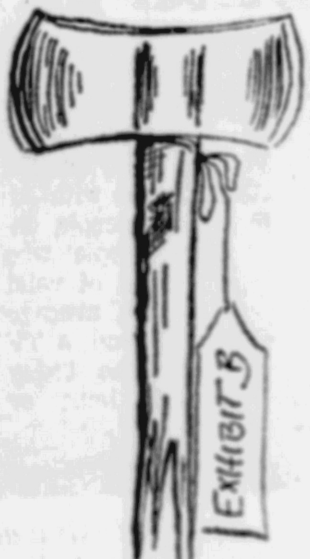
Take a young lawyer turned detective and add a couple of shapely airline stewardesses, a deposed Caribbean dictator in European exile and his current mistress, two former mercenary soldiers turned hoodlums, a shady black marketeer, a sinister servant and even a Scotland Yard inspector (in a secondary role).

Mix those characters with scenes in a trans-Atlantic jet, London, a drive across France and Switzerland and the Austrian Tyrol where the climax occurs. Season the novel with a plot centering around a disappearing stewardess, the dictator's situation and the persons pursuing them.

One then has the ingredients for "Merry Go Round," an entertaining, crisply written and somewhat violent and suspenseful novel by Richard Martin Stern, who has specialized in international intrigue fiction.



The author builds up the plot to the violent climax effectively arousing the reader's curiosity as the novel progresses. Particularly well done characterizations are those of New York attorney, Wilson Clark, and the dictator, Edouard Henriot.

"Should My Fur-Trimmed Coat Be Drycleaned?"

A fur-timmed coat can be drycleaned; however, it is better if the fur is detachable. That is something that should be looked into when the coat is purchased. Any garment that combines cloth with fur cleans better if the fur is detachable. Cleaning fur with the cloth dries out the fur and shortens its life. Genuine fur is, of course, hair grown in skin and demands special cleaning treatment if it is to give maximum service.

Some simulated furs appear so much like fur these days that it is difficult for the average person to tell them apart.

Simulated Persian Lamb fabrics appear like genuine fur and some will dryclean satisfactorily; but the Persian Lamb which is glued to a background fabric cannot, because the adhesive dissolves in drycleaning solvent. Other rich fur-type pile fabrics with woven or knit backings may be drycleaned but are subject to matting or tufting damage from excessive heat or wear. Discuss your cleaning problem with your professional drycleaner. He has the knowledge and the equipment to give best service.

ODE TO THE MOON—1968-69 VERSION

Last night you wore a wrinkled frown
Upon your golden brow.
Your mouth was sad and pouting in—
I felt guilty looking this way at your skin.

Dust-laden, through eons of time—
Pumice-pocked, they described your worn old face,
As they whirled on through the great wild outer space
From lunar orbit back to earth.
Wiser men — perhaps —
With thoughts of even greater magnitude
To land upon your pocked old longitude!

I do not wish to see you eye-to-eye
Mine is the beauty beheld from earth to sky.
I love you, Moon, as you be — —
Tender light, loving me.

NOVATO DOROTHY HEFFINGTON

DREAM'S EPITAPH

To go inside
This other world
Where none but I
Can penetrate.

I, whose mind
But fashions these dreams
Behind this curtain drop.

You, who are the lost.
I am, but the safe.
Wherein I am the dreamer,
You, the undreamt.

On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

"THE PRIVATE SEA OF DREAMS" — Il Gruppo — RCA Victor LSP-3846:

Il Gruppo is an Italian group of instrumentalists who create improvised musical happenings with a close affinity to those of Ornette Coleman.

Post-Webern serial technique is their language, but this is not music that looks better on paper than heard. In fact it doesn't exist on paper.

The eight tracks, ranging from three to seven minutes long, all use different combinations of instruments. One uses only electronically filtered and distorted lip - smacking sounds. The results are fascinating listening and should be studied closely by all who strive for wider musical possibilities, whether in serious contemporary music, the new jazz or even rock.

THELONIOUS MONK—"Underground" — Columbia CS 9632:

Anyway, the tunes are just great.

"Ugly Beauty" reminded me of Monk's superb film score to "Liaisons Dangereuse." "Thelonius" is a light and very indigenous track, and the jazz voice of Jon Hendricks swings through "In Walked Bud" at the conclusion of the LP.

Charlie Rouse's tenor sax is as much part of Monk's great sound as his unbelievable chordal structures and progressions which seems to threaten break down at any time—but never do.

DENNY ZEITLIN: "Zeitgeist" —Columbia CS 9548:

The most recent LP by our local jazz piano and medicine man. Several Zeitlin originals here, as well as unique improvisations on standards like "Put Your Little Foot," and "I Got Rhythm."

With Zeitlin's solid background in serious music but basic jazz stature, a greater variety of ideas and directions are open for extended improvisations. However, when elements of the classics appear, they are completely absorbed in mood or feeling — not quoted or tacked on as a gimmick. Even elements of the "new jazz" a la Archie Shepp can be heard and the long final track, "Mirage," delves into very complex time structures like Hindu music.

"FREBERG UNDERGROUND Introducing Pay Radio!" — Stan Freberg and cast—Capitol ST 2551:

This comedy LP has been out for ages, but I only just received my review copy, and it's still pretty funny.

"The Flackman and Reagan" is perhaps the most famous sketch on the disc in this area. Other targets include digit dialing, the death of radio as it used to be, Bobby Baker, and the difficulty nowadays of telling the boys from the girls.

Whereas some years ago Freberg seemed to be in a fairly radical area, today much of his humor seems to be killing a dead horse. However, he is still mighty hilarious at times and the big production his records always boast adds to their enjoyment. Stereo is well used, too.

The moment of truth comes when you stand back to admire that piece of furniture you have just refinished.

It looks pretty good, you think. Far better than it did before you began the process of removing the battered old finish, sanding the surface and applying two or three coats of varnish or other finishing material. Oh yes; much much better.

Then you take another look. And honesty overtakes you.

IT DIDN'T come out quite the way you expected. It may be a little too glossy. Or not smooth enough. Or it may bear a slight resemblance to the outside of an orange peel.

Whatever the irregularity which suddenly stares out at you, it may be possible to correct the condition with two products called pumice and rottenstone. Get the kind that comes in powdered form and do not tackle the project until a few days after the finish has been applied, so that it has hardened thoroughly.

The pumice is mixed with crude oil or water to form a semipaste. Using a felt rubbing pad or a piece cut from an old felt hat dipped into the mixture, rub with the grain with moderate pressure. Applying too much pressure may cause the pumice to cut too fast and too deeply. Also, as with all types of rubbing, lessen the pressure near the edges of the furniture.

YOU WILL soon notice that the surface of the wood begins to get smoother and duller, which is the effect you want.

Once you are satisfied that the wood is very smooth — which you can check by rubbing your fingers lightly over it, as well as by examining it under a bright light — make another mixture, this time with rottenstone. Use a fresh rubbing pad for this operation.

Once again, rub with the grain with moderate pressure after first wiping off any excess pumice.

THE ROTTENSTONE mixture will make the surface even smoother than before, even though you may not be able to detect the difference if the job with the pumice was well done. Additionally, it will begin to restore a gloss to the wood, although it will be a more subdued gloss than originally.

You will have to judge when the surface has attained the proper look, which is kind of satiny.

Wipe off the excess rottenstone, rub some more, this time with a clean pad, and apply paste wax, following the directions on the container as to the amount of rubbing.

A New And Safer Lawn Mower Blade

A new lawn mower blade made from a flexible material and reported to be safer than the conventional metal blade has been developed.

The manufacturer (Dayco) says its product will reduce a serious family hazard — considering that the U.S. Public Health Service says there are more than 100,000 lawnmower accidents annually.

The metal blade whirls at 2,500 to 3,600 revolutions per minute. Dr. William L. White of the University of Pittsburgh reports that it is virtually impossible to remove a hand or foot from the cutting zone before it has been struck, because of the high speed.

The more common accidents are to the operator's hands or feet.

The new blade is made of rubber and plastic. It was demonstrated recently in Central Park, New York. It will curve, flex, over solid objects, such as the feet, the designing engineers say.

During tests in the last three years, several workers accidentally caught their shoes under the new blade. The shoes were scuffed, but aside from the jolt or sting to the foot, no serious injuries were reported.

The manufacturer says the new blade, which fits popular sizes of rotary mowers, will cut grass as efficiently as does the metal blade.

PRETTY PANE

Cabins In The Snow

The ski buff's idea of heaven must be his own redwood ski house in the snow country.

One of the easiest ways to realize that dream, once the site has been selected, is the acquisition of one of the new "moveable module" vacation homes being marketed under the name, the Concept House.

A product of Concept Structures, Post Office Box 1436, Laguna Beach, the Concept House sells for $10 a square foot. While sold in varying lengths, it is a uniform 12 feet wide to meet road towage requirements. Units can be assembled into a rather simple cabin, or stacked and joined so as to create larger houses. Foundation requirements are minimum.

The Concept House is trucked to remote locations and there hoisted into place by crane, or erected by hand.

Redwood plywood has been used for both the exterior siding and the interior paneling. Deck, fascia and trim are also redwood, while Douglas fir has been used for the structural truss.

A single unit includes plumbing, fixtures, carpets, and kitchen range. Optional is the firehood. Sliding glass doors are extra. Decks vary in size.

If your "dream house" in the snow isn't the Concept House, then it still might be found in one of the many prefabricated redwood structures being sold as vacation homes.

The Calllifornia Redwood Association, 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, 94111, which offers a special kit on redwood vacation houses plus fact sheets on the Concept House and a prefabricated mountain cabin plus a selection of colorfully illustrated booklets from its service library, all for 50 cents, says redwood is particularly suited to the snow country because of its durability and resistance to fire and decay. It also provides a natural insulation against the cold, according to the association.

THIS ENLARGED version of the ski cabin is a two-story mountain home with expanded base area and a multiplicity of windows. Massive ceiling beams provide strength against heavy snow loads on the roof. Architects Peter McGowan and John Lord King are the designers. (Photo by Phil Palmer)

JUST ABOUT the ultimate as a year-around ski house is this redwood and glass structure designed by architects J. Leslie Halfpenny and Alvin Fontanese. It is three stories high and has five bedrooms, two baths, a kitchen, a family room, a two-story living room and a ceiling-height deck that encircles the living room. All windows are seven-foot sliding glass doors.

Buy Only The Best 'Glads'

In selecting your gladiolus bulbs, it pays to exercise some care.

The best bulb, or corm, is an inch and a half or more in diameter and an inch or more thick.

The diameter (across) measurement indicates the size and number of flower spikes you can expect. The thickness indicates how young and vigorous the bulb will prove.

THE BEST BULBS are those produced by the commercial growers by planting small stock (corms a half to a quarter inch in diameter) in his fields the previous season. The young, thick bulbs produced in this way assure you exhibition spikes and blooms the first season, and for many seasons to come.

If, besides being thick, the bulb is also large in diameter, you quite often get two full-size spikes of flowers from each bulb.

If a bulb is flat, even though it may be quite large in diameter, it is old and worn out. You may get a rather poor spike of flowers the first season, but very probably you will get nothing whatsoever thereafter.

Planted in stages, gladiolus will produce a continuing show of blooms for half the year or longer — in California from February through August.

GLADIOLUS THRIVE in any good garden soil, planted four to six inches deep and four to six inches apart.

The new hybrid varieties are especially worthy of your consideration. Somewhat more expensive than the regular varieties, they pay off with magnificently tall spikes and a spectacular show of bloom. And they require no more attention than the standard varieties.

Not to be overlooked, either, are the new miniature "glads" — the Tiny Tots — that are so excellent for beds and borders.

Perennials Belong In Marin Garden — Plant Them Now

Marinites long ago discovered the special beauty that perennial bedding plants can add to their gardens.

In addition to that beauty, they also have the added advantage of permanence. They need only to be cut back after bloom or left alone to come on again another season.

The ideal garden is one in which both annuals and perennials have been used effectively so as to utilize their special characteristics.

MARIN GARDENERS these days should be planting such perennials as delphinium, penstemon, Shasta daisy, primrose, columbine, phlox, sweet William and bleeding heart. The planting of Transvaal daisies, however, should be delayed about another month.

The challenge is not so much in their culture, which is easy, as it is in putting them to their proper use.

Depending on the variety, they may be fitted into either the background or the foreground, spotted in the border, squeezed into pocket-sized beds, spilled over a retaining wall, hung in pots, featured in beds of their own or side by side with annuals, used as an edging, or used as a rock garden specialty.

SINCE PERENNIALS won't be uprooted after they bloom, as are annuals, it is wise to take a little time in their planting. Work the soil deeply and thoroughly, adding a soil improver to build up the humus.

The soil should be worked to a depth of at least one foot.

One of the advantages of planting perennial bedding plants now is that they will establish themselves during the winter months, and so be ready for a much earlier blooming than those set out in the spring months.

There's Nothing Like Homegrown Fruit

No gardener is more envied than the one who can claim a fruit-producing deciduous tree — or several — on his property.

And now, the bareroot planting season, is the time to put one in, if you want to be among the envied in the future.

Which one should you plant?

WELL, OF THE big five, the apple, the pear, the cherry, the peach and the apricot, all will thrive in Marin County's growing conditions.

But nurserymen, generally, especially recommend the peach and the apricot.

Not only do these two do very well in Marin, but they also pay off with an especially rewarding crop.

Somehow, a homegrown apple, pear or cherry does not taste greatly different from a good store-"boughten" fruit of the same kind and variety.

BUT HOMEGROWN peaches and apricots almost invariably are vastly superior to what you can buy at the market. It has to do with the picking time. You can wait until the peach or apricot is at its juiciest before plucking it from the limb. Commercially grown fruit must be picked at an earlier stage. And ripening off the tree just isn't the same as ripening on the tree.

Find out for yourself. Put in a peach or apricot tree now. And when picking time comes around, see if your own produce isn't the best you've ever eaten.

You might even wean the kids off candy with the luscious fruit that is far better for them.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓ Roses should be pruned sometime before mid-February. Deciduous fruit and nut trees also should be pruned now.

✓ Roses and many other deciduous shrubs and trees are in stock in bareroot form in wide selections in the nurseries now. New rose varieties should be purchased as soon as possible before stocks are consumed.

✓ Sweetpeas may be planted now from seed for spring bloom. They like an early start so that they can germinate while the weather is still cool.

✓ Berries and grapes, also, can be planted now. Berries demand perfect drainage, but grapes will tolerate a soil that stays moist somewhat longer.

✓ As weather permits, continue to plant annuals for spring bloom. Set out another planting of gladiolus for continuing bloom.

✓ If your African violets refuse to bloom, experiment with slightly more and slightly less light until you find just the right amount needed to throw them into bloom.

Introducing The 1969 All-Americans

Seven Vegetables Earn Recognition This Year

The 1969 All-American vegetable awards mean that there will be new top-quality broccoli, two cabbages, a turnip, cauliflower and two squash available for your garden.

Here they are:

The gold medal winner announced following pre-introductory testing and comparative rating of seed varieties of North America, is the First Generation hybrid broccoli, Green Comet.

GREEN COMET is an extra-early variety with large heads of fairly small tight beads or buds of fine quality. It is uniform and vigorous. Late side shoots are of good size.

Stonehead, which has a small core, also offers closer spacing, more heads to the row, good flavor and quality. It has rich blue-green outer leaves. Stonehead won a silver medal.

A bronze medal cabbage winner is the F1 Harvester Queen, with large global heads and medium-early maturity. The size is uniform and it holds well at ripeness without bursting. Depending on the location, soil and planting time, heads weigh up to five pounds — and more. The diameter is six to eight inches.

It is believed 100 per cent yellows resistant.

THE F1 HYBRID turnip Tokyo Cross also won a bronze medal. It has an early, very white, medium-sized, semi-globe smooth root. The greens are short but of very satisfactory flavor, tenderness and yield.

It has early and larger roots than the Just Right.

The F1 hybrid cauliflower Snow King, another bronze medal winner, is 10 to 24 days earlier than other snowball types. The plants are shorter, the heads of fair size, and the curds creamy white. The growth is very uniform for harvesting and the plant is heat resistant.

A great advantage is the earliness.

THE TWO bronze medal squash are the F1 hybrid summer bush variety St. Pat Scallop, and the winter-type, Kindred.

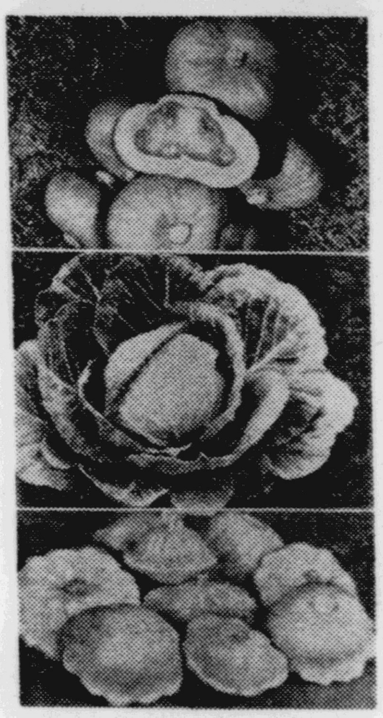
St. Pat Scallop is an improved, bell-shape, greenish-white version of the Patty Pan. It is very early, prolific and uniform. The fruit should be used when very young and tender. When it ages, the color turns from pale green to white. The bell shape with smooth scallop margins provides more tender flesh and less waste than other varieties.

The plant is compact and provides more fruit over a long season and heavier yields if kept picked.

KINDRED IS a semi-vine type of Buttercup shape. The flesh is deep orange in color and the thin skin gold. It has developed by Ben Gilbertson of Kindred, N.D.

Home and market growers will appreciate the more concentrated yield on vigorous short vines. The fruit is about three and a half inches thick, six to seven inches wide and weights about four and a quarter pounds.

The plant remains bush type until half way through the season, when short runners appear.



VEGETABLES accorded All-American recognition for 1969 include, top to bottom, the Kindred winter squash, a semi-vining buttercup-type; the Harvester Queen, a big-headed hybrid cabbage; and the St. Pat Scallop, a bell-shaped, green-white bush summer hybrid squash.

Five Flowers Are Listed For Horticultural Honors

Three zinnias, one appropriately named Rosy Future, a vinca rosea and a dwarf cornflower have carried off honors in the 1969 All-America flower selections.

The top award given a flower this year, the silver medal, went to the buttons type zinnia, Cherry Buttons.

Bronze medals were given to two first generation (Fl) cactus type zinnias, Rosy Future and Torch.

BRONZE MEDALS also went to vinca rosea Polka Dot and dwarf cornflower Snow Ball.

Cherry Buttons begins to bloom at 10 to 12 inches in height, a bit shorter than Pink Buttons. It produces many double one and a half-inch flowers on wiry stems. The foliage is mint green and the plant compact.

Zinnia Rosy Future is bright rose-pink and grows two feet or taller. It has many strong-stemmed quilled flowers five to six inches wide, excellent for ,cutting and garden display.

Torch also is a giant zinnia, rich orange, two to two and-a-half-feet tall, vigorous and sturdy. Quilled double blooms are five to six-inches across and true to color. It joins Zeniths Firecracker, yellow Zenith and Rosy Future.

VINCA ROSEA procumbens Polka Dot is a ground cover similar to Rose Carpet. The disease-resistant plants seem to grow erect for about three inches, then creep to about 24-inch mats. The abundant flowers seem to lie flat on the foliage. The single, white flowers have bright red eyes.

The plant is adaptable to sun or light shade. Try it as an overhang in window boxes and hanging baskets and in rockeries.

Garden Pages

Centaurea cyanus. Snow Ball grows 12 to 16 inches tall and has one-and-a-half-inch white, ball-shape double cornflowers. This early bloomer is a white running mate for the dwarf blue Jubilee Gem, which won All-American honors in 1937. The round plant has silvery green foliage, and has strong heat and disease resistance.

GOOD COMPANIONS to the 1969 winners are 1968 choices Fl hybrid giant cactus zinnia Wild Cherry; geraniums Carefree Scarlet, Deep Salmon and Bright Pink; marigold Orange Jubilee, which won two All-Britain bronze medals; Celosia plumosa Orange Jubilee, which won two All-Britain bronze medals; Celoisa plumosa Orange Triumph, and Verbena Blaze.

Others well worth planting are 1967 All-America winners Fl hybrid giant hedge-type marigold Golden Jubill; Knee-Hi sweetpea San Francisco in rose pink.

Persistence Pays Off In Approval For Authentic Movie On Skiing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Robert Redford proposed a movie about skiing, he was told by a film executive: "Two hours of all that snow? It'll never sell. The audience would get too cold."

As Hollywood has learned, Redford is a strong-willed actor, and he wouldn't be dissuaded. He started production in Switzerland this month on "Downhill," which he says will be the first authentic view of the skiing life.

Redford told about the inception of the project:

"I'VE ALWAYS wanted to make a picture about the life of a professional athlete. I don't think there ever has been one that really depicted the mean, hard life that most athletes must lead. 'The Hustler' came close, but then, pool isn't really very athletic, is it?

"I was an athlete myself, and I saw what went on. Like when a football coach is under pressure from the alumni to have a fourth winning season after he's already had three. And he produces — or else."

The actor naturally turned to skiing for a film subject. He owns a home in the ski country of Utah, recently bought a ski lodge in Colorado, and spends as much of his non-working, non-sleeping time as possible on skis.

HE TURNED down an offer to star in "Ski Bum" because "it wasn't about skiing." Instead he decided to develop his own story.

But in trying to sell his project to Paramount, he ran into snowblocks, such as the one from the bigwig who worried about frigid audiences. Redford persisted. But then he fell out with Paramount by walking out on a Western, "Blue." He claimed he gave the studio plenty of notice; Paramount claimed he didn't and filed suit for a few hundred thousand.

"Blue" turned out to be one of the larger bombs of 1968, and Redford figures that was the turning point for him. His judgment was vindicated, and corporation head Charles Bludhorn sent for him.

"WHY MAKE all those pictures about the poor economy of England or problems in Czechoslovakia?" the actor argued. "Why not make some pictures about what's going on in America? That's what audiences want to see."

Redford's pitch succeeded, and Bludhorn gave him the go-ahead on "Downhill" — for a price. The price was a million dollars, which is pretty small change for a major movie nowadays.

"We had to pinch pennies," said Redford. "I couldn't send a big camera crew over to the Olympics at Grenoble. I got a half-dozen of my friends together—ski bums and photographers — told them the situation and they agreed to help me out."

REDFORD AND his illicit band spent two weeks dodging gendarmes and Olympic officials while they unofficially photographed the action on the French Alps. He himself posed as a reporter for Sports Illustrated, and one of his photographers, Dick Fairbanks, wore a fake nose as a disguise. They came home with the footage Redford needed.

Now he has returned to Europe to finish the major scenes for "Downhill"; he began the picture the day after he finished "Butch Cassidy and Sundance Kid," in which he plays the latter to Paul Newman's Butch.

Tam Valley Shop Yields Dope Find

By RICHARD BOYLE

A $350,000 cache of LSD, hashish and marijuana was seized and eight suspects arrested yesterday in a raid by narcotics agents on a Tamalpais Valley antique shotp said to be fronting for a narcotics dealing operation.

Three other suspects who, agents said, flew from New York to make a purchase of the drugs were arrested on Wednesday in a San Francisco motel. About $150,000 worth of narcotics was seized in this raid, bringing the total "street resale value" of drugs seized in the raids to a half-million dollars.

After the three New York suspects were arrested, state undercover narcotics agent Myron Gilbert set up a "buy" at the Resh Gallery, 267 Shoreline Highway, said by agents to be a "head shop." (A head in hippie slang means marijuana user). The agent reported arranging a $75,000 buy for seven pounds of hashish, about 17 pounds of marijuana and 1000 tabs of LSD, whereupon a joint force of 17 agents of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau, state and federal agencies and the San Francisco Police made the raid. After the raid, an additional five pounds of hashish, six pounds of marijuana and 700 capsules of LSD were seized.

The seven men and one woman, arrested for possession, sale and transportation of marijuana, were: Linda Jean Shack, 21, 265 Morningsun Avenue, Mill Valley; Frederick Martin Engelhardt, 28, of San Francisco; Richard Conrad Pace, 24, 438 Camino Del Canon, Mill Valley, who operated the antique shop; Charles Noeil Hess, 26, of Oakland; Gregory Lewis Mason, 21, 751 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo; Jeffrey Lynn Forcier, 20, of Belmont; Richard Raymond Argento, 21, 520 Canal Street, San Rafael, and Robert Franklin Black, 27, 3 Lincoln Avenue, Sausalito.

Lt. James C. Schwedhelm, of the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau, who directed the raid, said other charges would probably be added later.

The three arrested in the San Francisco motel were David Rocco, 22; Eugene DiGeromino, 21, and John A. Parisse, 18, all of New York.

Schwedhelm said the shop, which sold hippie-type clothes and other items, was a major source of traffic in marijuana, hashish and LSD. He called the long-haired suspects real "pros" in narcotics dealing. He also said the hashish came from Beirut, Lebanon.

Schwedhelm noted the three New York suspects paid only $5,700 for the drugs they purchased, but could have "bankrolled" that investment into a $150,000 sale in New

Corte Madera Marsh Plans Voted Down

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A $1.5 million plan to develop more than half of a 96-acre marshland parcel at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek was rejected yesterday — apparently for the last time — by the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Developer Frank M. Burke of San Anselmo, who always managed to look cheerful after his first three unsuccessful attempts to get a fill permit, glumly said, "This was Burke's last stand.

COST DECRIED

"You can only go so long," he told the Independent-Journal, adding he already had spent enough on planning the project "to retire on." Burke said his option on the parcel, owned by W. J. Heerdt of San Francisco, expires next month, and that he knew of no one else planning to develop it.

The commission, meeting in the State Building, voted 11-11 to approve Burke's plan, which would have dedicated 44 acres to the Marin Conservation League for a permanent marsh preserve, with the rest to be developed into a marina, bayside park, motel-restaurant-shop area, fishing pier and 33 acres of light industrial sites.

AUGUST VOTE

In August, the commission voted 12-7 to approve his plan and grant a fill permit, but that was one vote short of the 13 required for approval.

It was the proposed light industrial development that defeated Burke's plan. Several commissioners noted that the long-range master plan for the bay and its shoreline, adopted in September by the commission, allows filling "for bay-oriented commercial recreation and water-related" purposes, and that the industrial sites in Burke's plan thus violated the commission's own plan.

Burke, however, had previously argued that the industrial sites were necessary to make his project financially feasible.

The commission's staff, which recommended approval of the fill permit in August, yesterday recommended that it be denied. Executive Director Joseph E. Bodovitz of Mill Valley ex-

Burglar-Plagued Area Vetoes Police Hiring

Residents of the Panoramic Ridge area above Mill Valley last night ruled out hiring special patrolmen to protect them from burglars and decided instead to adopt a program of neighborhood cooperation.

At the meeting of the Muir Woods Park Improvement Association, members were "less interested in even finding out the cost of a special patrol than in getting together in neighborhood groups," reported association president Anne Woolridge.

The association's membership area, which comprises about 300 homes, according to Mrs. Woolridge, has been plagued with a mounting wave of burglaries.

To combat it, members decided last night on a program to include advising neighbors when a household is to be empty for an extended time, to arrange for stickers for residents' automobiles and to develop an alert procedure based on a burglar alarm system.

The alarm system, Mrs. Woolridge said, would not only include the silent alarm which alerts police only, but would

High-Gear Start At Peace Talks

Four Parties Ready To Begin Business

PARIS (AP)—With an astonishing burst of speed, the four parties to the new Vietnam peace talks reached full agreement today in their first session on all procedural matters. They cleared the way to begin discussion early this week on the search for a settlement of the war.

The announcement, after a meeting of five hours and 15 minutes, was all the more dramatic aganst a background of eight harrowing months of conversations that got nowhere and which for the past two months had bogged down in what seemed a hopelessly snagged quarrel over procedure.

This sudden show of speed could suggest the combined persuasive efforts of the two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union, on their respective allies. But, a U.S. spokesman warned, there is a long way to go.

"It is always a mistake to take rapid progress at one meeting as an indication of rapid progress over-all," said the spokesman, William J. Jorden.

"We have many difficult and delicate matters to be dealt with. I would not make a forecast on progress."

U.S. DELIGHT

However, the U.S. delegation obviously was delighted with the day's work.

"I am happy that we are getting down to the serious business of making peace in Vietnam," said U.S. Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, deputy chief of the U.S. delegation, on emerging from the meeting.

Jorden said: "This has been a pretty good day, and I think I can speak for the entire delegation. We wrapped up all procedural arrangements in a little more than five hours. There was a great deal of give and take, and probably more back and forth discussion than at any other meeting I've attended here."

AGREE TO DISAGREE

In an atmosphere described by the participants as courteous and businesslike, the four delegations got over all the procedural hurdles, in some cases by simply agreeing to disagree.

The conferees remain sharply divided on whether this is a two-sided or four-sided conference, but the U.S.-Saigon group will consider it two sides to deny recognition to the National

Viets May Speed GIs Homeward

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today top South Vietnamese and U.S. military leaders are set to draft plans for the withdrawal of some American combat forces from Vietnam this year.

Such a program "can now be implemented," Thieu said, because of improvement in the strength and quality of South Vietnam's armed forces.

Still to be worked out are the timetable and the number of troops to be withdrawn. There was speculation that a gradual pullback might begin with 20,000 men and that it could reach 100,000 by the end of 1969.

Key American officers confirmed contingency plans for "redeployment and withdrawal" are being developed by the staffs of several American brigades and divisions.

Among ordinary soldiers, rumors are that one or more major veteran units may figure in a scaling down of the U.S. force of 532,500 men in the near future.

This is particularly true in units that have been in the country the longest—the 173rd Airborne Brigade, the 1st and 25th infantry divisions and the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

All of these units, plus the 3rd Marine Division, arrived in Vietnam as part of the main

Nixon Gets Set For His Inaugural

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon, tanned and relaxed after four days in the Florida sun, sent his wife and daughters to Washington for some preliminary celebrations today and made last minute preparations for his inauguration.

Mrs. Nixon, daughters Tricia and Julie and Julie's husband of less than a month, David Eisenhower, were scheduled to arrive in the capital in early afternoon for the beginning of the three days of celebrations.

Mrs. Nixon was to attend a reception for distinguished women and return to New York tonight. The youngsters were to stay overnight in Washington, attending a Young American's inaugural salute during the afternoon and the Inaugural Gala tonight.

Nixon planned to remain in New York until midafternoon tomorrow, flying to Washington in time for the Inaugural Concert that evening.

He returned here last night from a four-day working vacation in the seclusion of his bayside hideaway at Key Biscayne, Fla., just south of Miami Beach.

Working alone and in the sunshine, he completed his inaugural address and relaxed with his neighbor and long-time friend, C. G. (Bebe) Rebozzo.

Kennedy Guarded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police maintained a 24-hour surveillance at the Virginia home of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., today because of a telephoned threat on the senator's life.

Twin Slaying, Strike Cloud College Scene

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Two Black Panther members were shot to death on the University of California at Los Angeles campus as a week of student demonstrations built to violent proportions at three California schools yesterday, and teachers union officials called a statewide strike.

Coincidentally, the Justice Department yesterday announced it was turning its attention to college campuses, specifically to San Francisco State where the latest round of student revolt began, in order to learn the cause of violence.

In the East, a rally was scheduled for today at Waltham, Mass., to gather support for 60 Negro students who have been barricaded in a Brandeis University building without incident for nearly two weeks.

PANTHERS ARRESTED

While detectives investigated a possible link between the UCLA shootings and a black activist leadership struggle on the campus, police raided the home of one of the victims and arrested 17 Black Panthers, many of them heavily armed.

The shooting took place in a classroom building on the campus within hours of violent outbreaks at San Jose State College and at University of California at Berkeley.

The UCLA victims, John Jerome Huggins, 23, and Alprentice Carter, 26, had been accepted for UCLA's "high potential" program for minority students who do not otherwise qualify academically for admission.

TWO SHOT

Police said the two, one a Black Panther "minister," were shot while leaving a meeting called to discuss a "black studies" program school officials planned to propose Tuesday. It was the first incidence of student trouble on the campus of the 29,000-student school this school year.

Second Landing Successfully Ends Russian Space Adventure

Volynov's space capsule landed 120 miles from the town of Kustanai, in the Soviet central Asian republic of Kazakhstan, Tass said.

"The program of scientific research of both spaceships Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5 has been completed," Tass said.

Volynov landed following his 50th orbit of the earth and 24 hours after the twin spacecraft Soyuz 4 landed with its pilot and the two spacewalkers who Thursday accomplished the world's first transfer from one space capsule to another.

Volynov's spaceship landed 403 miles west of where Soyuz came down, 25 miles from Karaganda which is also in the Soviet Republic of Kazakhstan and 1,700 miles southeast of Moscow. Observers speculated the Soviets changed the landing site because of bad weather in the area Soyuz 4 landed.

The Soviet space center of Baikonur is about midway between where the two spaceships landed.

Soyuz 5 was brought down one orbit later than Western space experts in Moscow had expected. There was no indication the extra orbit meant there had been any trouble in bringing it down.

Soyuz 4 landed in a snowbank yesterday and temperatures in the desolate wind-swept steppes near Karaganda were 31 below zero.

BARRAGE FOR REAGAN — Eggs splatter Gov. Ronald Reagan's limousine as it leaves a University of California regents' meeting in Berkeley yesterday.

(UPI Telephoto)

Gas Tax Increase Pressure Mounts

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Despite Gov. Ronald Reagan's insistence on no new taxes, pressure was beginning to build up today for a two cent a gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

About 20 representatives of the oil, auto and trucking leaders met with key legislative and administration leaders today and said the money was needed for new road construction.

The gasoline tax is now seven cents a gallon, plus a federal tax of four cents.

The legislative leader at the meeting, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, reminded industry representatives of Reagan's pledge to avoid a tax increase in the next two years.

"The administration has reiterated time and time again 'no new taxes'," he said.

But industry spokesmen said they hoped a forthcoming state report on highway needs — a report they helped revise — will rally public support for the tax hike — without making it appear that the push was coming from industry.

"We'll get a million of our members in Southern California in this and it won't be 'ours,' " said Joseph Havenner, executive vice president of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

He indicated that he believed that there would be opposition if it appeared that auto, oil and trucking industries wanted taxes raised to improve the highways they use.

"We would just raise all the ivory tower thinkers and they'd be on television and just pull the rug from under us within 30 minutes," said Havenner.

Attending the meeting for the Reagan administration was James A. Moe, director of public works.

Sirhan Prosecution Takes Surprise Tack On Jurors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A surprise prosecution maneuver may make it possible for a jury to be seated as early as Tuesday in the Sirhan Bishara Sirhan murder trial.

Chief Deputy Prosecutor Lynn Compton startled the packed courtroom yesterday afternoon by announcing the state would relinquish its right to dismiss the 11 tentative jurors.

Grant B. Cooper, the chief defense attorney, then asked that the trial adjourn until Tuesday.

"We need time to assess the acceptance of this jury as it is now constituted," he told Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker.

Jury selection had been expected to take weeks.

Sirhan's three attorneys said they will decide over the weekend whether to yield their peremptory challenges—as the prosecution has done — or continue exercising them against jurors it finds objectionable.

If the defense waives the challenges, it would mean the 11 tentative jurors would be permanently seated.

"Don't be surprised at what happens Tuesday," Cooper told newsmen. "We just might have a jury."

The 12th seat in the jury box, however, remains vacant.

Two Youths Fined

Robert E. Marriott, 21, and Michael Coffman, 19, both of Fairfax, pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to being in a place where marijuana was used. Judge Peter Allen Smith fined each $95 and placed them on six months of probation.

Federal Suit Against IBM 'Monopoly'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Justice Department filed suit yesterday against the International Business Machines Corp. (IBM), charging the company is monopolizing interstate trade in computers.

The civil antitrust suit, filed in New York federal court but announced in Washington by Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, charged that IBM fixed prices, discriminated among customers and pursued policies that made it impossible for other manufacturers to compete effectively.

A spokesman at IBM headquarters in Armonk, N.Y., said the suit was "unwarranted and without foundation." He said the company had produced "evidence of strong and increasing competition" in the data-processing industry in the course of nearly three years of talks with the Justice Department.

The department is seeking a court order to require IBM to end its alleged monopoly in the general-purpose digital computer field.

The suit said IBM is the world's largest manufacturer of information-handling systems, with a gross of $5.3 billion and a net of $561.5 million in 1967.

The government estimated that $2.3 billion of the 1967 gross came from the sale or lease of general-purpose digital computers—about 74 per cent of the total revenue in this field compared to 5 per cent for its nearest competitor.

Put On Probation

Theodore Henry Pilat, 38, of Novato, was placed on three years of probation in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for joyriding and petty theft Dec. 27 in Novato.

Pickets Hurl Taunts, Eggs At Reagan

BERKELEY (UPI) — University of California regents held their regular meeting yesterday amidst hundreds of militant students who gathered to demonstrate their support for strikers at San Francisco State College.

The demonstrators paraded around the building where the regents met and carried signs reading "Solidarity with S.F. State Strike" and "Mickey Mouse regents go home."

For the most part, campus police kept the students away from the building but some demonstrators pounded on the locked doors, kicked in a pane of glass in one door, and tossed eggs at Gov. Ronald Reagan's car as he departed.

Peter Stone, one of the organizers of the protest, said the effort was "directed specifically at 'bayonet' Reagan, but also at the regents. It's not just the trustees and Hayakawa that are coming down on the strikers, but the whole California ruling class, of which the regents are a part."

As part of their regular agenda the regents moved to revise the handling of the university's $660 - million investment portfolio.

The investment practices came under attack earlier in the week by Berkeley student body president Charles Palmer, who charged the portfolio was earning only "moderate" returns.

Attention had been focused on the investment program earlier, however, when regent Norton Simon complained about the handling of the fund. A five - member committee of investment experts was appointed to study the entire portfolio.

The regents declined to take final action on the committees recommended changes, but did put the matter on the agenda for their next meeting.

Although the regents' session yesterday was closed to the public, Reagan told newsmen he was concerned about "the question of credit for some of the newer courses"—an apparent reference to the Hayden lectures at Berkeley.

Chancellor Roger W. Heyns of the Berkeley campus said earlier that the Hayden lectures were not being offered for credit. But under questioning by a regents' committee he admitted it was possible for some students to obtain credit for attending the talks.

The establishment of black studies departments at state colleges and the university was also an issue at the regents' meeting, although an unofficial one.

Governor Reagan, speaking to newsmen on his arrival at the meeting, said he had "no quarrel" with the establishment of such courses.

However, he said, the militants' demand for autonomous control of the departments "just doesn't make sense."

"These phony dissidents are confusing the issue, They shouldn't have control of a black studies program any more than any other part of the curriculum," Reagan said.

Reservists Sought

The Marine Reserve Training Center in San Rafael has announced openings in the reserve enlistment program. Applications may be obtained at the center, on Madison Avenue in Santa Venetia, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

U.S., Paris Differ On Mideast Peace

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

France has called for a Big Four conference aimed at settling the Middle East crisis, but the United States is reported backing a peacemaking plan which would include provisions for direct talks between the Arab states and Israel.

The Washington Evening Star, in a story following the French announcement yesterday, quoted qualified sources as saying Secretary of State Dean Rusk outlined a form of two-track negotiations in a note handed to Soviet Charge d'Affaires Yuri N. Tcherniakov.

The Star said Rusk's note proposed talks between the United States and the Soviet Union, and separate talks between Israel and the Arab states under a U.N. "umbrella."

The talks between the two big powers, the newspaper reported, would be to help U.N. special envoy Gunnar V. Jarring mark out "the perimeters" for detailed Arab-Israeli negotiations. Jarring reportedly would mediate the talks between the Arabs and Israelis.

The French proposal, issued at the United Nations and in Paris, suggested that France, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union meet at the United Nations to discuss ways to end the Middle East dispute.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel said yesterday the Soviet Union's latest plan for peace in the Middle East displayed "a low level of thought, politics and expression."

The plan reportedly calls for both sides to declare in writing unconditional acceptance of the U.N. peace formula.

Garrison Switches, Asks Shaw Trial Delay

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has asked for an indefinite delay of the trial of Clay L. Shaw, 55, charged with conspiring with Lee Harvey Oswald and others to murder President John F. Kennedy. The trial was scheduled to start Tuesday.

Garrison claims that federal secrecy has crippled his case.

Asst. Dist. Atty. James L. Alcock filed a motion for postponement yesterday with Criminal District Court Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. A hearing was set for Monday.

The motion marked an abrupt reversal by the prosecution. A few weeks ago, Garrison said only his death could stop the trial.

Alcock's statement in announcing the new motion carried a strong hint that the Shaw case might never reach the courtroom.

Alcock's action—opposed by the defense—came shortly after a Washington hearing in which Court of General Sessions Judge Charles Halleck rejected Garrison's subpoena of autopsy photographs and X-rays of Kennedy.

Halleck told New Orleans Asst. Dist. Atty. N. V. Bertel Jr. that he would have to show that the autopsy records are necessary to the case and that "this is something more than a fishing expedition."

Saying he wanted to be sure Garrison was not simply trying to "obtain what surely must be sensational photographs," Halleck gave Bertel two weeks to produce evidence.

The conspiracy case contends that Kennedy was fired upon from at least two directions and that the autopsy material would prove it.

The autopsy photographs and X-rays were placed in the National Archives by the Kennedy family, with the stipulation that they not be made public.

Alcock criticized U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark for releasing Thursday night a report by a panel of four medical experts who checked the autopsy materials and backed up the Warren Commission.

Pacifica Resident Denies Lanes Holdup

Daniel Thomas Stathos, 22, of Pacifica, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge that he stole $1,500 at gunpoint Oct. 28 from Greenbrae Lanes, Larkspur.

Preliminary hearing on the charge was scheduled for Jan. 27.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Nixon Appointee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rocco C. Ciciliano, San Francisco, will be undersecretary of commerce under Maurice H. Stans.

Ciciliano, 46, was named to the post Friday, subject to Senate confirmation. He will specialize in maritime and tourist promotion activities.

He served in the Eisenhower Administration for four years as labor assistant secretary from 1953 to 1957 and then became a special assistant to the president in 1959.

He is currently president of the Pacific Maritime Association, the collective bargaining organization for management covering West Coast Merchant Marine activities.

Audrey Marries

Several hundred spectators thronged the cobbled streets in front of the City Hall to watch the arrival of the bride, star the movie "My Fair Lady."

It was Miss Hepburn's second marriage. The 39-year-old actress' 12-year-marriage to American actor Mel Ferrer ended in divorce last November.

Violence In Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Hurling rocks and Molotov cocktails from rooftops, striking students at Tokyo University clashed yesterday with more than 8,500 riot police trying to evict them from the campus.

Police fought back with tear gas canisters fired from guns and dropped from helicopters. They cleared out 11 buildings but an estimated 300 students remained holed up in the library. Most of the day-long melee was broadcast live on Japanese television.

Freed GI Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of three U.S. soldiers freed by the Viet Cong at a battlefield meeting Jan. 1 died Friday night in Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Spec. 4 James W. Brigham Jr., 21, of Ocala, Fla., had been on the "seriously ill" list for three days.

Brigham reportedly had head surgery while a prisoner of the Communists, and after his release he was found to be suffering from a brain abcess. He became unconscious after additional surgery Jan. 9.

JAMES E JOHNSON
A first for his race

Nixon Precedent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first Negro member in the 86-year history of the Civil Service Commission has been appointed by President-elect Nixon.

James E. Johnson, a California veterans official, will hold a position overseeing federal employment. There are 400,000 Negroes on the government's 2.9-million-member payroll.

Nixon also promoted Robert E. Hampton to chairman of the commission. Johnson was named to fill the two years remaining in the term left vacant by the resignation of John Macy, previous chairman.

Bite On Children

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Children under five will no longer ride free if Southern Pacific and Western Pacific receive permission they are seeking from the State Public Utilities Commission.

They filed a formal petition yesterday, contending the railroads were "operated at a substantial out-of-pocket" loss.

The railroads asked that one infant be allowed to ride free, but that other youngsters in a family be charged half-fare.

Boycott Spreads

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Swedish longshoremen will not unload California grapes from ships in any Swedish ports.

The Swedish Transport Workers Federation said yesterday their decision was taken after a request from American farm workers and a petition from the International transport Workers Federation in London.

Journalism Dean

Bayley, who takes office March 1, was a city hall and political reporter for the Milwaukee Journal for 13 years after World War II and from 1961 to 1963 served as the first director of public information for the Peace Corps.

Now 50, Bayley will be the first dean of the graduate school, which will offer a Master of Journalism degree, although the school has no undergraduate journalism department.

Fliers Found Dead

SAN JOSE (AP) — Skin divers have recovered the bodies of two San Jose State College students from Calaveras Reservoir where their rented plane crashed Wednesday.

The search, which began at daybreak yesterday after an oil slick appeared, ended with divers recovering the bodies of Klaus-Dieter Bergau, 19, of Santa Clara, and Maureen Daire, 18, of Troy, Ohio.

Mrs. King Honored

In a ceremony in the Verona City Hall, Mrs. King accepted the Zucchi-San Valentino Prize awarded annually to recognize the efforts of some individual representing love for mankind. The award is a gold and silver plaque depicting St. Valentine.

Berlin Riot

BERLIN (AP) — Police beat back a charge by about 100 dissident students who tried to enter the office of West Berlin Education Director Werner Stein today.

A police spokesman said some officer used clubs.

The students were protesting proposed disciplinary action against 14 of their comrades involved in earlier university demonstrations.

Draft Office Bombed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The national Selective Service System headquarters was slightly damaged early today by a fire bomb tossed through a first-floor office window, police said.

York, where illicit drugs bring a higher price.

Mason was released this morning, but the other seven suspects were held in lieu of $10,000 bail. They will appear in court for arraignment at 2 p.m. Monday.

In another incident later last night, two Berkeley men were arrested by Marin sheriff's deputies on the beach near Inverness on suspicion of being under the influence of a dangerous drug. Donald Frederick Walker and Anthony Wicher, who was found without his pants, told deputies they "were tripping out on acid."

COLLEGE

peacefully at San Francisco State yesterday while meetings were held to discuss that school's continuing student-teacher-administration standoff.

In San Jose, the president of the teachers union's state college council has called for a one-day, state-wide strike at California's 18 college campuses Wednesday in response to the firing of striking professors at San Jose State College.

The angry strike call by Dr. John Sperling came yesterday after officials at the San Jose campus ruled that 25 striking teachers had automatically resigned their positions by staying out for five days.

The administration indicated the attendance records of another 100 teachers were being checked with an eye toward termination of their employment.

The issue sparked a brief outburst of violence and vandalism at the campus after a noon rally called to voice support for the striking teachers. A city police officer was shot at but not injured and a band of militant students went on a rampage through several buildings.

At the rally Sperling said that if the state-wide strike does not persuade the state college trustees "to negotiate on the real problems then we will take them out again . . . that's what this strike is all about."

The San Jose teachers left their classes in support of the faculty-student strike at San Francisco State College, 50 miles north.

Owners Fight Houseboat Curb

The attorney for three houseboat owners has asked that Marin Municipal Court be stopped from taking action under Marin County's new ordinance requiring occupancy permits on the grounds that it is unconstitutional.

Carl B. Shapiro, who represents Alexis Tellis, Joan Buys and Douglas McCoy, maintains that the ordinance is unconstitutional on four grounds. He said that the boats are under federal jurisdiction and state jurisdiction and that the ordinance denies the right of protection against unreasonable search as well as the right of equal protection.

Shapiro's request for a writ of prohibition will be heard at 2 p.m. Feb. 3 by Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating.

Schools Art Show

Staff of the San Rafael City Schools is displaying many forms of art work in the board of education room of the administration building, Third and E streets. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays until Friday.

Houseboats Restrictions On Agenda

A new chapter in the Marin County Code to provide zoning regulations on floating homes and houseboat marinas will be discussed by the Marin County Planning Commission Monday morning.

The all-day meeting starts at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

Other morning items include a continued hearing on a plan for a system of trails across Tiburon Peninsula, rezoning of 48 acres south of Gnoss Field from planned industrial to resort and commercial recreation, and a proposed planned residential project on 2.6 acres at the intersection of Erica Road and Trillium Lane in Mill Valley.

At 2 p.m. the California Conference Covenant Church will present plans for a social hall, classrooms and church offices on five acres of land on Ellen Drive in Marinwood.

The First Congregational Church of San Rafael will seek rezoning to build 60 to 70 units of apartments at the southwest corner of San Pedro Road and Merrydale Road, Los Ranchitos. The church owns 4.56 acres, of which 3.3 acres is vacant.

The planning commissioners will also discuss new sign regulations.

Volynov is safe and well," Tass said. "The cosmonaut feels fine."

As in the case of yesterday's landing of Soyuz 4, Tass said, a huge orange parachute and jet engines broke the fall of the spaceship for the soft landing.

The Soviets hailed the space feats of the Soyuz mission as the first actual space platform put together in orbit.

Western space experts said what they did, however, was create more of a space bus than a true manned orbital platform.

December Crash Fatal To Man

Salvatore Aiello was thrown from a pickup truck which hit a curb and overturned, according to California Highway Patrol officers. The other occupant of the truck, Joseph V. Scoff, 49, also of San Francisco, died soon after the crash. It was not known which man was driving.

Aiello's death was the first traffic fatality in Marin this year, compared to none at this time last year.

Aiello was the 40th person to die as a result of traffic accidents occurring last year in Marin, compared to 38 fatalities in 1967.

Novato Given Grant For Downtown Study

A $31,020 grant to the City of Novato to study its downtown has been approved by the federal government.

The city applied in May to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the planning grant. The study is to be made by the San Francisco planning firm of Sedway and Cooke.

They disagreed, too, on the name of the conference, although the North Vietnamese spokesman said this was of "no importance." It seemed of importance to the Americans and South Vietnamese, who will continue to call this "The Paris Meeting" while the other side insists on "The Conference of Paris on Vietnam."

The reason for the allied stand, Jorden explained, was that the term meeting, while it means something more formal than the "conversations" of the past, does not imply all the formality of "conference," which would suggest a meeting of sovereign governments.

The Hanoi-front camp suggested Tuesday for the first meeting on matters of substance regarding Vietnam. However, W. Averell Harriman, the U.S. chief of delegation for the last eight months, planned to leave for home tomorrow, giving way to President-elect Nixon's appointee, Henry Cabot Lodge.

Vance said he would have to confer with Washington before he could definitely agree to a specified date, but he indicated the date would be soon.

There were two breaks, one of 35 minutes and one of 45 minutes, during the day's session. The delegates used them to repair to the offices assigned them in the International Conference Center, the former Hotel Majestic. But there were contacts during the breaks, including one between the North Vietnamese and an American delegate.

Fall Seriously Injures Girl

Karen Jacobsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jacobsen of 316 Golden Gate Avenue, was reported in fair condition today with multiple fractures in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital.

Belvedere firemen brought up the child by stretcher from the bottom of the 100-foot rocky cliff. Firemen were unable to report how far down the cliff the girl was when she fell.

Search Fails To Find Body Of Painter

The body of Harold Laereman, 47, of San Rafael, a painter who apparently fell off the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge Thursday afternoon, had still not been found today, Coast Guard officers said.

Fellow workers said they did not see Laereman fall, but they sighted him swimming in the swift current 60 feet below. They threw a large sheet of plywood and a timber barricade to Laereman but the strong tide carried him toward the Golden Gate before he could reach the wood.

Baha'i's To Observe World Religion Day

Baha'i's of Marin will observe World Religion Day with an opening meeting at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the American Legion Hall, 469 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Special speakers will be Dr. Megha Shaym and Ambrose Maxon, discussing the building of a "new world."

Second Museum Aide Quits

Lack of support from directors of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science in San Rafael was blamed today for the second high-level resignation in five months.

David Cavagnaro, education director at the museum for almost two years, left his post Wednesday, less than five months after Clara Evans, museum director resigned. She said she "did not have the support of the board."

Cavagnaro, hired to develop an education program at the museum, said he regularly submitted plans and programs but "all of it fell on deaf ears."

For example, he said about 18 months ago he asked that the room used for classes be remodeled for that purpose "for a couple of hundred dollars." The board, he said, promised the changes immediately, but remodeling is just beginning now.

Cavagnaro said when he began, two or three classes were offered per quarter and now there are 15 to 18 — all filled. "The response from the public has been outstanding," he said.

Cavagnaro, a 1960 graduate of Tamalpais High School, was an assistant at the California Academy of Science before taking the Marin museum job. He is now a photographer for the natural science division of the Oakland Museum.

His wife, Margie, naturalist at the museum, will probably continue working there for a couple of months, Cavagnaro said.

The couple plans to continue living in Marin's San Geronimo Valley and remain active in natural science education in the county.

MARSH

plained the shift was because Burke's plan now clearly violated the commission's plan, but in August it still was unknown what the plan would allow.

"Certainly it would be hard to imagine an applicant with more tenacity" said Bodovitz of Burke.

San Mateo County Supervisor Robert B. St. Clair, during the one hour debate before the vote, warned that rejection of Burke's plan would make the commission's master plan "a receptacle for lawsuits in the future."

He also warned that if the commission expected the Legislature to adopt the plan and keep controls over bay fill, then "reasonable compromises" such as Burke's plan should be approved. Otherwise, he declared, "our plan is in great danger."

"Maybe our plan isn't quite right if we can't have this kind of compromise," agreed commissioner Melville Owen of Kentfield, who voted against the fill permit.

Dr. William F. Upton of the Marin County Planning Commission joined Owen in the negative vote, while two Marinites were among those favoring the proposal, T. Fred Bagshaw of Mill Valley and Edward J. Slevin of San Rafael.

Summer Home Is Scene Of Burglary

Fred N. Wood of Portola Valley reported to sheriff's deputies that someone had stolen a wallet containing about $35 and credit cards as well as a small television set from his summer home at Bolinas.

The burglary occurred last Saturday, he said.

U.S. buildup in 1965 and early 1966.

Premier Tran Van Huong has expressed belief the Americans could pull out 10,000 men a month without compromising the allied combat effort. But a spokesman for Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander, said today "too many intangibles" are involved to consider concrete figures at this time.

Each of the American Army's line divisions numbers about 15,000 men, the airborne brigade about 5,000, and the Marine division about 22,000 at full strength.

Discussing the contingency plans, officers said that even if a full American unit was withdrawn, colors and all, it would not necessarily mean that all of its members would go along.

Men with six months or more of Vietnam service probably could accompany their unit from the country while those with less than six months would be transferred into units remaining behind.

At the same time, veterans from remaining units might be transferred into a departing one to flesh out its strength.

sound out and summon neighbors to the home attacked.

This kind of neighborhood involvement has been called for in recent weeks by Marin police chiefs and by Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, whose department Mrs. Woolridge credited with recently providing "the best service we've received in years."

She said the ridge area has in the past "been lightly patrolled, as have all outlying areas," but is now checked from time to time by an undercover patrol.

In other action, the association directors voted to petition the county public works department to place reflectors on the center line of Panoramic Highway and to paint white lines along the shoulders.

Variances Sought

Two side yard and one front yard setback variance will be considered by the Tiburon Board of Adjustments at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

Runoff Vote Monday At Novato High

Runoff elections for the president and commissioner of student affairs for the spring semester at Novato High School will be held Monday, after a close election for these offices yesterday, according to Asst. Principal Edward Kraft.

Of the 1,544 students in the high school, 1,286 voted, 152 were absent and 106 did not vote, Kraft said. This was the largest turnout ever recorded at the school, he said.

The vote count for candidates and offices, however, was kept secret in accordance with school administration practice.

Judi Painter and Steve Loegering will run off for the presidency. These two headed a field of six for the office. Others running were Phil Emswiler, Ron Federick, Dave Luc and Greg Rockwell.

Mike Koehler and Marc Ream will be in a runoff for commissioner of student affairs.

Mike Ahern won the vice presidency over Chris Arent and Becky Nordstrom. Pam Clark beat Sue Swabacker for secretary and Laurina Parr was unopposed for treasurer.

Kevin McDowell won the commissioner of social activities from Lynn Leonelli. Three commissioner positions were unopposed. They were: Chris Rohrer for commissioner of justice, Bob Koehler for public relations, and Glenn Holsclaw for athletics and awards.

Tam Valley May Lose Its Library

The Tamalpais Valley branch of the county library should be closed because of declining patronage, County Librarian Bruce D. Bajema recommended yesterday.

The recommendation will go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors Tuesday morning.

Cost of maintaining the branch, at Poplar and Locust streets in Tamalpais Valley, is $243 per month, including $100 for rent.

Bajema will recommend that a public meeting be held on Jan. 29 at the branch library to explain the closing and that the branch be closed by March 1.

Circulation of books at the Tamalpais Valley branch went as high as a thousand books a month back in 1966, but it declined steadily since then and hit a low of 182 books last month, the county librarian reported.

Burglary Sentence

Richard Lawrence Holstrom, 21, was sentenced to six months in jail and placed on three years of probation in Marin Superior Court yesterday for burgling a Bevedere home Aug. 5, 1967.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Elise Pedrusci Dies At 70

Elise Pedrusci, retired registered nurse and wife of former restaurateur Steve Pedrusci of San Anselmo, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 70.

Born in Gorduno, Switzerland, where she was reared and educated, she came to the United States in 1920, settling briefly in Modesto, then moving to San Francisco.

She received her nurse's training at San Francisco County Hospital in the late 1920s and pursued a nursing career until about 1944, when she retired. She was for many years a member of the Ross Art and Garden Center.

In 1937, she married Pedrusci, who in 1933 had established Julius Castle, a restaurant noted both for its cuisine and as a San Francisco landmark high on Telegraph Hill. He sold the restaurant in 1958.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Pedrusci is survived by two sisters and a brother in Switzerland.

A Mass of Requiem will be offered Monday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Rita's Church, Fairfax. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Memorial gifts to the Marin County Heart Association would be preferred by the family.

LOUISE FREELAND HARRINGTON

Memorial service for Louise Freeland Harrington of Sausalito will be held on Monday at 10 a.m. at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Harrington died Thursday of burns suffered in a fire Jan. 9 at her home at 34 Curry Avenue.

A graduate of Vassar, she lived in Marin coumty for 11 years. She was a volunteer at Sausalito Salvage Shop and the Easter Seal Society's adult recreation group.

She was born in Rochester, N.Y., and she lived in Illinois and New York before coming to California.

She is survived by her sons, John T. Ponting of Larkspur and Michael R. Ponting of San Francisco, and a stepson, Jonathan D. Harrington of Ossining, N.Y., and five grandchildren. Her parents were the late George Freeland and the late Edna Percy Riley of New York.

MISS ANN WIDDERSHOVEN

The child suffered brain damage at birth and was also a victim of cystic fibrosis.

A few years ago more than 100 community volunteers, many of them strangers to the family, assisted in daily patterning exercises to try and help Ann use her arms and legs.

Mrs. Widdershoven is the executive director of the Marin Easter Seal Society and has served on the board of directors of the Marin Aid to Retarded Children.

Survivors are her mother, and a sister, Elizabeth Widdershoven.

Private funeral was held today at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Inurnment was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to the donor's favorite charity.

Burglary Admitted

Bradley M. Zappa, 19, of San Rafael, pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to burgling the Western Boat Shop in San Rafael Oct. 23. He was told to return to court Feb. 17 for sentencing.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Inaugural Festivities Underway In Capitol

By MOLLY MARIN

In Washington, D.C. for the inaugural activities scheduled today through Monday are Congressman William S. Mailliard and his wife, along with Judge Janet Aitken, a frequent visitor to Belvedere; the Victor Levits of Belvedere and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwab of San Rafael. Mrs. Mailliard served as a hostess at the Distinguished Ladies Reception this afternoon at the National Gallery in Washington. Also participating in the inaugural activities are Congressman Don Clausen and Mrs. Clausen.

The Michael Goldwaters of Mill Valley received an inaugural ball and activities invitation but decided not to make the trip. Michael, of course, is the son of Sen. and Mrs. Barry Goldwater.

A 1966 Hamilton Air Force Debutante will watch the inaugural parade with more than passing interest Monday. Karen Traverso's fiance, John W. Martin Jr., cadet colonel and wing commander of the Cadet Corps at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, will lead cadets in the nation's capitol.

John's home town is Montgomery, Ala. and the couple met when he was assigned as Karen's escort to the Debutante Ball at Hamilton Air Force Base in 1966. She is the daughter of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Normand Traverso of San Rafael.

A YEAR-LONG tour of North America is planned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boat, longtime Tiburon residents, who leave next week. They will tour by travel trailer, heading first for Mexico, where they will spend two months. The tentative itinerary then calls for a northern trek up the Pacific Coast to Canada, crossing Canada and traveling down the East Coast of the United States for a stay in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Schleiger honored Bob and Dorothy at a dinner party Friday night and on Saturday the D. W. Billings home in Tiburon will be the setting for a party when many friends and former neighbors on Old Landing Road will wish the Boats bon voyage.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT F. MacKay have returned to their San Rafel home after a trip to Australia and the Fiji Islands. They spent 10 days on a sugar farm in Bundaberg, Queensland, Australia as the guests of a friend of Mrs. MacKay from her native England, who is married to an Australian. The MacKays then flew to Fiji, where they spent two days.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Girl Tells Of Restrictions While Being Helper At Home

DEAR HELEN:

I have a part time job, buy all my own clothes, even shoes; I pay for my school lunches, cosmetics, etc. I even pay my own dentist and doctor bills. I also give my dad three dollars a week to drive me to work.

At home I clean, iron, babysit, cook sometimes, and do all the dishes. How old do you think I am? Sixteen, 17? No, I'll be 15 this month.

Don't you think these things prove I'm not a baby any more. My parents don't believe so. They won't let me date or even know boys. At school the kids talk about dances and guys and I don't know what to say. I'm gradually losing my friends. Boys seem interested, but — they can't even call me.

If my folks trust me enough to leave the house to me and let me earn my way, why do they feel I'll get in trouble with the first date? I do love them, but I'm beginning to hate them a little too. Tell me what you think Helen.

— NOT OLD ENOUGH?

DEAR NOT:

If you assume all these responsibilities, you certainly are old enough to date. Parents who veto normal boy-girl friendships are either paranoid or else they balk at letting loose of a good thing. Perhaps yours think you don't have time for boys — because they'll take you from "more important' 'matters like housework and paying your own way at age-15. Let's hope they're merely scared, and that they outgrow it soon. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My problem is I'm living a rerun. My former boy friend, "A", is older than me. My new boy friend, "B", is a little younger. Everything "A" went through in school, "B" is now going through. They both hate the same subjects and teachers. They even look alike, and their families remind me of each other.

The difference is "A" was a rat who cheated on me and finally dropped me. He hardly ever took me any place. "B" treats me like a queen. So why, Helen, am I beginning to like "A" again, when "B" is so much better? I see "A" a lot because we hang around with the same crowd. Help, before I do something stupid — LIVING A RE-RUN

DEAR LAAR:

My I.G.A.P. (I'm Guessing Again Perception) tells me "A" is unfinished business. What you think is attraction for him is perhaps a subconscious urge to prove he can't do without you. . . . This so you won't feel "dumped." You chose "B" because he was "A" minus faults, remember?

Don't let a get even complex turn off a good boy friend. In your case, A plus B equals Zero. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 20-year-old wife and mother of a beautiful baby girl. Three months ago my husband and I started a joint checking account after the bank thoroughly investigated us. We were given personalized checks, but Helen, it's almost impossible to use them. We both look younger than we are, and sales clerks, even bank tellers, refuse to cash our checks. I guess they think we're trying to forge our parents' names. We'll be told it's against the policy of the store to cash checks, and then along comes an older person who gets her money or purchase with no trouble at all.

A few times we have even had lectures on "irresponsible youth." Any advice for us? — NOT REALLY TOO YOUNG

DEAR NOT:

Wouldn't your picutres on your drivers licenses help? Or why not trade at a few key stores where you'll soon become known? Most young people go through a period of mild distrust before they establish themselves and their credit. Someday you'll remember back and wish those too-young days were here again. — H.

Petaluma Miss Takes Honors, Is First Californian To Win

For the first time in the history of the Make It Yourself With Wool contest, a California girl has placed in national competition. Debra Ann Kuck, 14, of Petaluma was named alternate Thursday evening in the junior division of the contest which is sponsored by the American Wool Council, a division of the American Sheep Producers Council, and the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Association.

Debra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kuck of Petaluma and a freshman at Petaluma High School. She is one of the youngest girls to compete in the MIYWW contest and will assume top responsibilities if, sometime during the year, Karen Craft, 16, of Edson, Kan., is unable to complete her duties as first place winner in the division.

Named top seamstress in the senior division was Laura Kittrell, 17, of Archton, Miss. First place winners receive an all-expense paid trip to Europe this summer with all competitors being the recipients of numerous awards and prizes.

Debra's ensemble was of one-hundred per cent wool as required. It is of moss green, a two-piece vest and pleated skirt combination, which she wears with a white blouse and a green, orange and off white tie. The outfit compliments her brown hair and eyes and peach and golden complexion. She has entered the MIYWW contest for three years.

Along with sewing, Debra is a 4-H member, a Candy Striper and belongs to the National Holstein Association. She has been treasurer, recreation leader and sergeant-at-arms in 4-H clubs.

Competition was held at the San Francisco Hilton hotel where girls, representing 20 Sheep Councils from throughout the United States, modeled their garments for the judges and the public.

The Winners were chosen from 42 finalists from 45 states who were selected previously from 19,481 girls in district and state competitions based on the girl's ability with 100 per cent wool loomed or knitted in America.

Tinkerbelle Skipper Calls Trip 'Ultra-Togetherness'

By BETTY FROST

Unusual voyages on small yachts are the trademark of Robert Manry, the Cleveland newspaperman who first gained international fame with his single-handed Atlantic crossing on the 13 and a half foot sailboat, Tinkerbelle.

"What," friends had asked Manry, "are you going to do now to top that?" In the program presented yesterday, the third in the A.M. series, given under the sponsorship of the Family Service League of Marin, the sailor-writer gave the answer.

"A Landlubber's Dream," the talk topic, gave details of the voyage of Manry; his wife, Virginia; their daughter, Robin; son, Douglas; German shepherd dog, Chrissie; and the family cat, a girl named Fred. The 8,000 mile voyage from Cleveland back to Cleveland aboard the 27 ft. yawl-rigged yacht, the Curlew, took the family a year.

"Living in a space about the size of a family bathroom for that length of time was ultra-togetherness," Manry told the audience. "It's a wonder we're still speaking to one another."

"After the taste of adventure that our family has had with the Tinkerbelle, we wanted more," he said. Mrs. Manry and the children had met the yachtsman in England when Tinkerbelle arrived and stayed in London for a month.

Exploring North American waterways, the Manrys left Cleveland a year ago August, went through the Great Lakes, from Lake Huron to Lake Michigan, to Chicago, down the Illinois River to the Mississippi, down the Mississippi to New Orleans. They went across Florida entering the Caloosahatchee River, traveling through Lake Okeechobee and connecting canals to the Atlantic. Their route took them to the Bahamas, back up the inland waterway on the Atlantic Coast, past New York City, and into the Hudson River thence to the St. Lawrence waterway and back to Cleveland.

Colored slides emphasized the more idyllic parts of the long voyage. "When it was rough we were too busy to take pictures, and when we were arguing, we were too busy to take pictures," Manry quipped.

The children studied by correspondence course, with Douglas completing his eighth grade work. "Midway in her course, my daughter decided to take the advice of her high school principal, to consider the voyage itself an educational experience," Manry remarked. "I guess this makes her a correspondence school dropout."

Mrs. Manry continued a routine of household chores, and constantly had a bit of washing out to dry in the rigging. "The first thing you look for on a long voyage like this when you come into port is a place to take showers, next, a laundromat, then a good restaurant and the post office," the author said.

The famous yachtsman admitted that he had never sailed on San Francisco Bay, but regretfully turned down invitations from members of the audience to meet Bay sailors at Marin yachting centers. His tight schedule, he explained, calls for him to be in Portland tomorrow.

Miss Grant Engaged To Joe Costarella

FONCINE GRANT

An April 12 wedding at Hope Lutheran Church in San Mateo is planned by Foncine Grant of Belmont and Joseph A. Costarella of San Mateo. The announcement is made by the future bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rober W. Grant of Novato.

Foncine was graduated from Novato High School and College of Marin. Ronald W. Grant is her brother. She is employed by United Airlines as a ticket agent at the San Francisco International Airport.

Joseph is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Costarella of San Mateo. He is a graduate of Cubberly High School in Palo Alto and San Francisco State College, where he is now studying for a master's degree in industrial management. The future bridegroom is a communications staff assistant for United Airlines. He is the brother of Marlene Costarella of San Mateo and Dr. Robert Costarella of Albuquerque, N.M.

ON THE AGENDA

Harold Allison Offers 'Glimpse Into Future' At P-TA Meeting

Harold Allison, principal of Sir Francis Drake High School, will present a program on "Education Now for Tomorrow's World" at the Tamalpais High School library at 8 p.m. on Wednesday.

Allison's presentation for the Tamalpais High School Parent-Teacher Association is a result of his work as a regional chairman of the California Association of Secondary School Administrators' subcommittee on curriculum objectives, 1970-2,000. The committee was formed to meet the need for an updated statement of secondary school curriculum objectives, to equip the student for the world of the future.

The committee studied and assessed the works of long range forecasters, such as those of the commission on the year 2,000, the Rand Corporation, "Report on Long Range Forecasting Study'' and predictive works by scientists, sociologists, government commissions, economists, political scientists and industrial researchers. These were summarized by the committee to form a picture of the world of the future.

A statement of educational objectives was developed by seeking out the views of secondary school administrators throughout the state on how schools can prepare youth for the world of tomorrow.

"The committee feels,'' Allison said, "that the world of the future is going to be very different, and it will demand many adjustments in people. It is also becoming apparent that time is short to prepare the citizens of tomorrow."

Mrs. Richard Jessup, president of the Tamalpais High School P-TA, urges parents, students and members of the community to attend.

"This will be one of the few opportunities for parents to take advantage of this glimpse into the world of the future," she said. "Rather than merely feeling uncomfortable about change, we must become aware of what the future is likely to bring, and what we must do to provide an education which will enable our children to cope with complexities far beyond any we have encountered."

MILL VALLEY Bethel 119, International Order of Job's Daughters, will hold its initiation-inspection Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Mill Valley Masonic Temple. Laura Finzen will be the initiate.

The new Bethel Guardian Council members are Mrs. B. A. Pixley, guardian; Edward Windsor, associate guardian; Mrs. Dolph Jaeger, guardian secretary; Mrs. Roy Everett, guardian treasurer; Mrs. Stanley Grant, director of music; Mrs. Theresa Puharich, promoter of sociability; Mrs. William Maxwell, custodian of paraphernalia; Mrs. John P. Riedel, director of finance; and Mrs. William Howard, director of epochs.

Beaded Trimming Is Source Of Concern For Seamstresses

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I had a frustrating experience with some beaded trimming I bought. It was so stiff it simply wouldn't bend to fit the neckline of my dress.

I had to go out and purchase some more making this a costly mistake.

MRS. C.E.R.

DEAR MRS. C.E.R.:

This is one of the little things we often tend to forget when we are purchasing trimming of any kind. There is a large variety of both the flexible and the rigid trimmings to choose from, but you must choose the right kind for your own particular application.

We have experimented with beaded trimmings to see if it was possible to use them on a scoop neckline since this kind of neckline would not involve quite such an extreme curve that you would find on a regular jewel neckline. We dipped some trimmings in very hot water which removed the sizing from the backing used for the beading. It did soften up quite a bit and was more adaptable than before.

Another solution was to use your zipper foot and stitch a line of machine stitching very close to the last row of beading. Carefully pull up the lower thread until you find a curved edge that eases in enough for some necklines.

Perhaps you can use the trimming you bought on another dress. If it is still too stiff, use it as a trim for welt pockets, edging sleeves or a tab at the center front of your dress. It can also be used on a true mandarin neckline.

MRS. BERNICE HYATT, Norfolk, Va., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion:

You can use an invisible zipper foot to stitch cording on dresses and jackets. Just run the cord through the same slot that you use when you place the teeth of the zipper in it. Keep the edge of your fabric on the seam guide line of your sewing machine and sew. The zipper foot will guide the cording.

DEAR EUNICE,

I just made a simple sheath style dress out of a brocaded taffeta material and have discovered it pulled out at the seams.

MRS. L. McM.

DEAR MRS. L. McM.:

You gave me the clue to your problem when you mentioned that your dress was made of a taffeta fabric. Taffetas, silk shantungs and similar fabrics which are very closely woven, have a tendency to pull at the seams since there is absolutely no "give" in these fabrics.

I would always recommend underlining this kind of fabric. With the two layers of fabric treated as one, there isn't much of a chance for pulling out. If you are using this kind of fabric in a fitted dress, it is advisable to attach an inside belt of grosgrain ribbon at the waist, making it slightly tighter than the dress thereby causing it to take the strain.

DEAR EUNICE,

Why is it that some dresses wrinkle so badly and others don't?

MRS. L.R.S.

DEAR MRS. L.R.S.:

I imagine that you will find almost any fabric you purchase today will have a finish on it that keeps it almost wrinkle-free. This finish is used on linens and silks, as well as synthetics and doesn't change the physical aspects of the fabric; it just makes it much nicer to wear.

I never press my clothes between wearings since all the fabrics I work with are as wrinkle-free as you can get. If some of you are using fabrics that you have stored for a long time, you will find a big difference in the way they hold up compared to today's fabrics. I would also recommend underlining almost everything as an additional help.

ART REVIEW

Driftwood Artist's Works Inconsistent

The natural beauty and sculptural richness of driftwood's bleached grays, charred blacks, pocks, twists and burls, have not been lost on artist Hidi Flandor. Her show this month at the Unitarian Church, 240 Channing Way in San Rafael, has many exquisite specimens, reassembled or grouped into wall hangings and sculpture.

When Miss Flandor leaves the wood in its natural state it is lovely. She shows taste and sensitivity in combining chunks of differing shapes, grain and color, in adding things such as an old carved wood angel or in perhaps painting a deep hole bright red so that a barnacled plaque rises in space.

FINDS HUMOR

She finds the wood's own humor in "The Ark" whose natural form already has an amusing boat-like shape and also when she adds antlers to create a "God of the Forest."

In all of these Miss Flandor is totally sensitive to the wood's innate richness. That is why it is so strange to see her almost total disregard for it when she coats it with paint and sticks disassociated bits of junk in meaningless patterns across the surface or when she uses it as a ground on which to draw.

The drawings she does on these usually involve figures, often childlike black-lined forms against dreamlike patches of colors or suggested landscapes. The greatest mileage she gets by using driftwood surfaces comes from the irregular shapes some of them provide.

ORDINARY PLANKS

However, many are little more than ordinary planks. Further, she makes little use of the qualities the wood might have in itself. Only occasionally does it become an integral part of the work as it does in "Dance in the Rain," where slanted, eroding streaks of paint are brushed with color giving a soft rainy atmosphere. And there are few times where the drawings are as powerful as the thick-colored "Party," and as able to hold their own.

More often the drawing and the natural driftwood ground have nothing in common. Instead of becoming a unit, they are two incompatible parts, each awkwardly trying to project its own identity over the alien strength of the other. The natural poetry of the wood is lost, the light fresh quality of Miss Flandor's drawing is overpowered and you wonder if the trick was really worth it.

Marin City Asks Clinic To Return

Marin City residents asked for the return of a county family planning clinic to the community after County Health Officer Carolyn B. Albrecht said Thursday that 41 per cent of Marinites using the clinic were Marin City residents.

The Marin City Community Services District and Marin City Council heard Dr. Albrecht explain that the removal of the clinic to San Rafael last month was because four women had been accosted outside the clinic at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, and two cars of clinic volunteer workers were broken into.

The district board set a meeting for 8 p.m. Feb. 6 at the Manzanita Neighborhood Center to discuss moving the clinic into the Manzanita Center, providing better police protection, and getting a health department aide assigned to Marin City to teach sex education.

Dr. Albrecht will meet with the district and council boards, Manzanita Director Charles W. Story, sheriff's officers and members of the County Economic Opportunity Council staff.

Thursday's joint meeting of the council and district board was only for the discussion with Dr. Albrecht. The district board went on to the two other items — a proposed second access road to Marin City and better postal facilities.

County Public Works Director Donald B. Frost said the proposed access route to Tennessee Valley was the most feasible of several suggested. Board members, however, feared the road might end up as a congested shortcut for Mill Valley commuters heading for San Francisco.

Frost said other routes studied linked to Rodeo and Spencer avenues above Sausalito, but would be useful only for San Francisco-bound traffic. Those routes also would cost $500,000 instead of the $300,000 estimated for the Tennessee Valley route, he said.

CONCERT REVIEW

Opera Workshop Not Ready For Public?

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

There were bright spots in the College of Marin Opera Workshop scenes from 20th Century operas last night in the studio theater of the fine arts building, but in general they were more like class exercises and not up to public performance.

Nor did the reason appear to be just problems caused by illnesses, for only one or two substitutions were required together with musical director Scott Merrick's having to sing two roles from libretti.

SCANT STAGING

There was practically no staging, very little suggestion of costume and lack of dramatic skill, with some exceptions. Very distracting was the stage background consisting of two huge blown-up photographs, one of a man's sad, clownish face and the other of a galaxy whirling in space. The black curtain would have been better.

The most favorable comment on the work of the students as a whole was that they evidently had done some hard work on their roles and really knew them.

Outstanding among the scenes was the one from Menotti's "The Medium" in which contralto Florence Bierman showed great promise as Mme. Flora, both in her singing and acting. The light, sweet lyric soprano of Sylvia Hyde was very good, too, in the role of Flora's daughter Monica.

Deserving most commendation throughout the evening was John Graulich, who did a fine job of reading of brief notes on the composers and their style of writing and of introducing scenes. He had a good, strong bass voice and dramatic talent, heard and seen in Milhaud's "The Poor Sailor," Bartok's "Bluebeard's Castle" and Britten's "Albert Herring."

AGILE SOPRANO

Janice McDonald's soprano was agile and expressive in Weill's "Street Scene" and "Albert Herring," and soprano Sonya Lawson was better in the excerpts from Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief" than in "The Poor Sailor" and Prokofiev's "The Duenna."

Though she has an essentially good mezzosoprano, Marjorie Broughton's work was not up to what we have heard her do previously, especially with the Dominican College Opera Workshop. Static hand and arm positions were flaws in her roles in "Bluebeard's Castle," Menotti's "The Consul" and the prologue of D'Allapiccola's "The Prisoner."

POWERFUL BASS

Other workshop members performing with varying degrees of success were sopranos Karen Poston, Christina Jacqua and Ardith Anderson, baritones John Marshall and Tom Sheffield and tenor John Fitzmaurice.

Phyllis Murphy did her usual highly professional accompanying at the piano.

The program was much too long. It would have been better to spend more time on fewer scenes.

Other scenes will be presented tonight at 8 p.m.

Threat Of Bomb At Tam High

A telephoned bomb threat at Tamalpais High School delayed the start of classes until shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday, principal Robert Prather said.

Prather said "a male voice" called the school at 8:10 a.m., 20 minutes before the scheduled start of classes, and said "there's a bomb set to go off at your school and you'll never find it."

Students were kept outside while police, firemen and custodians searched the buildings. No bomb was found.

"There were a lot of cold kids," Prather said, but no complications in the search. The school followed search procedures worked out for such threats, he said.

Many Seek Aviation Board Seats

Applications are pouring in from residents interested in serving on the Marin County Aviation Commission, County Clerk George H. Gnoss reported yesterday.

The terms of four commissioners expired on Jan. 1. They are chairman Tris M. Coffin, Benjamin R. Ostlind, Douglas M. Christensen and Melville Dickson. The seven-member commission serves without pay.

As of Friday, the following 18 candidates, including one woman, all with aviation experience, had applied:

Al Hansen of San Rafael, business representative of Operating Engineers Local 3, San Francisco; Sinet Maurice Simon of Lucas Valley, employed by a pharmaceutical sales firm; Ray M. S. Swenson of San Rafael, employed by TV station KPIX; Mrs. S. W. Straw of Kentfield, housewife; John Merrill of San Rafael, vice president for Chevron Research Corp.; Landon J. Reid of San Rafael, real estate man; Lu Hurley, owner of Commodore Helicopters at Waldo Point and traffic director for KGO; Howard F. Hall of San Anselmo, an airlines pilot; William Charles Hasler of San Rafael, an airline pilot;

Edward R. Warner of San Rafael, furniture buyer for Macy's; John M. Strong of Novato, lithographer and part time rancher; Gordon C. Wright, Tiburon attorney; David B. McConnell of Novato, employed by Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Theodore N. Preovolos, Greenbrae dentist; Donald W. O'Neil, Corte Madera real estate man; John L. Baczynski of Novato, first officer for an airline; Joseph W. Burton, San Anselmo engineer; Jack Irwin, Bolinas aeronautical engineer.

County Clerk Gnoss said he has received dozens of telephone inquiries, and more applications are expected this week.

The grounds are mostly level with a gentle downslope complemented by a dozen stately and beautiful oak trees. More fruit trees than you can count. Exotic and mature shrubs & plants, winding garden paths, numerous patio areas plus outdoor deck and cookhouse with stove, refrigerator & wet bar provide a setting that will entrance you.

The residence offers FIVE bedrooms, all good size, a 12x33-ft. living room, a 14x22-ft. dining room reminiscent of the Hearst Castle on a smaller scale. Three full baths, family room. A little loving care could transform this small estate into a showplace. By the way, oceans of privacy.

EXECUTIVE CAR
'68 BUICK
LE SABRE 4-DR.
$3625

Here's a car that we've used here at the company during the past year. This gold 4-dr. Custom LeSabre has the black vinyl top plus the handsome black all-vinyl interior.

Not a scratch or mark of wear anywhere. Never licensed. The purchaser will be the first owner of record thus enjoying the full five-year GM warranty benefits.

Fully equipped including GM factory air-conditioning, power steering, power brakes, radio, tinted glass, ww tires and just about all the LeSabre luxury extras. Just over 8,000 miles on this like-new Buick.

Average Kelly Blue Book for a used LeSabre without any factory warranty is over $3700 but we'll sell this executive car just like a brand-new 1969 with the full warranty.

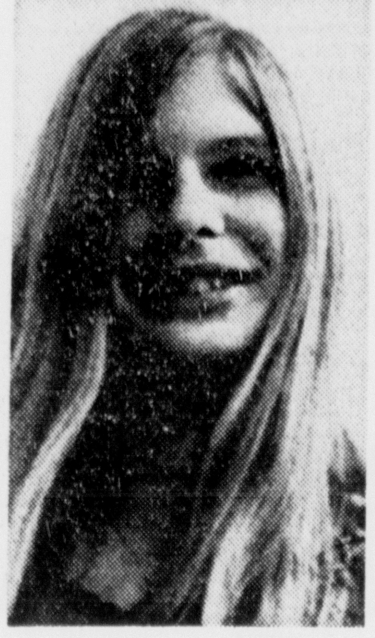
Fairfax Girl Sought By Her Parents



PATRICIA COOPER
Last seen Jan. 11

Patricia Elaine Cooper, 15, of 300 Olema Road, Apt. 1, Fairfax, is missing from her home, her mother, Margaret, has reported.

The girl was last seen Jan. 11 on Fourth Street in San Rafael. She is described as blonde with blue-green eyes, five feet, five inches and weighing 100 pounds.

Stolen Car Found

A 1969 Mercury Cougar reported stolen Wednesday morning from Budget Rent-A-Car at Third Street and Tamalpais Avenue, San Rafael, was recovered yesterday on Cole Drive in Marin City, sheriff's deputies reported.

Tax Appeals Expert Loses Own Appeal

Attorney Julius H. Selinger, who has been presiding over tax appeals by property owners for the past two years, switched hats yesterday and himself appealed for tax reduction before his colleagues on the Assessment Appeals Board.

Selinger's appeal, based on a novel legal point, was rejected by board members David G. Cohn, James F. McConnell, and Edward P. Morphy.

Selinger owns five parcels of land in the East San Rafael Assessment District, on Belvedere Street near Alto and Tiburon streets. The total market value is $227,000.

Street improvements in the district were financed by improvement bonds. Since he still owes $32,861 in unpaid principal on the bonds, Selinger contended this amount should be deducted from the $227,000.

"This is double taxation," he charged. He argued that the Constitution makes a distinction between mortgages and bonds so that mortgages should be taxed but bonds should be exempted.

After an hour and a half of discussion, members of the appeals board said they see no double taxation and ruled that the $227,000 market value should stand.

Unity Leader To Give Talk

Rev. Louis E. Meyer, chaplain of ministerial training of the Unity School of Christianity, Lee's Summit, Mo., will be guest speaker at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Unity-in-Marin.

Meyer has been associated with Unity for many years first as a minister in Kansas City, before taking his present post.

His subject of discussion will be "Jesus Christ, the Mainstream of Life."

BOYS WEAR DRESSES IN PROTEST

Apartment Hit For $1,500 Loot

Two men took more than $1,500 worth of items from the apartment of Michael Ricciardi, 15 Charlotte Street, San Rafael, Thursday afternoon, police reported yesterday.

A neighbor told police she heard noises in the Ricciardi residence, downstaris, and saw a heavyset man with wavy hair carrying a stereo set out of the apartment. Another man was waiting in a car, she said, and they quickly sped off.

Ricciardi told police a shotgun, 22 cal. rifle, a color television, and stereo system were missing. Police said the door knob was twisted off and this, they believe, was the method of entry.

$50 Award For Litterbug Act

A $50 reward will go to Kenneth M. Burge of Nicasio for spotting illegal rubbish dumping on San Geronimo Road last August.

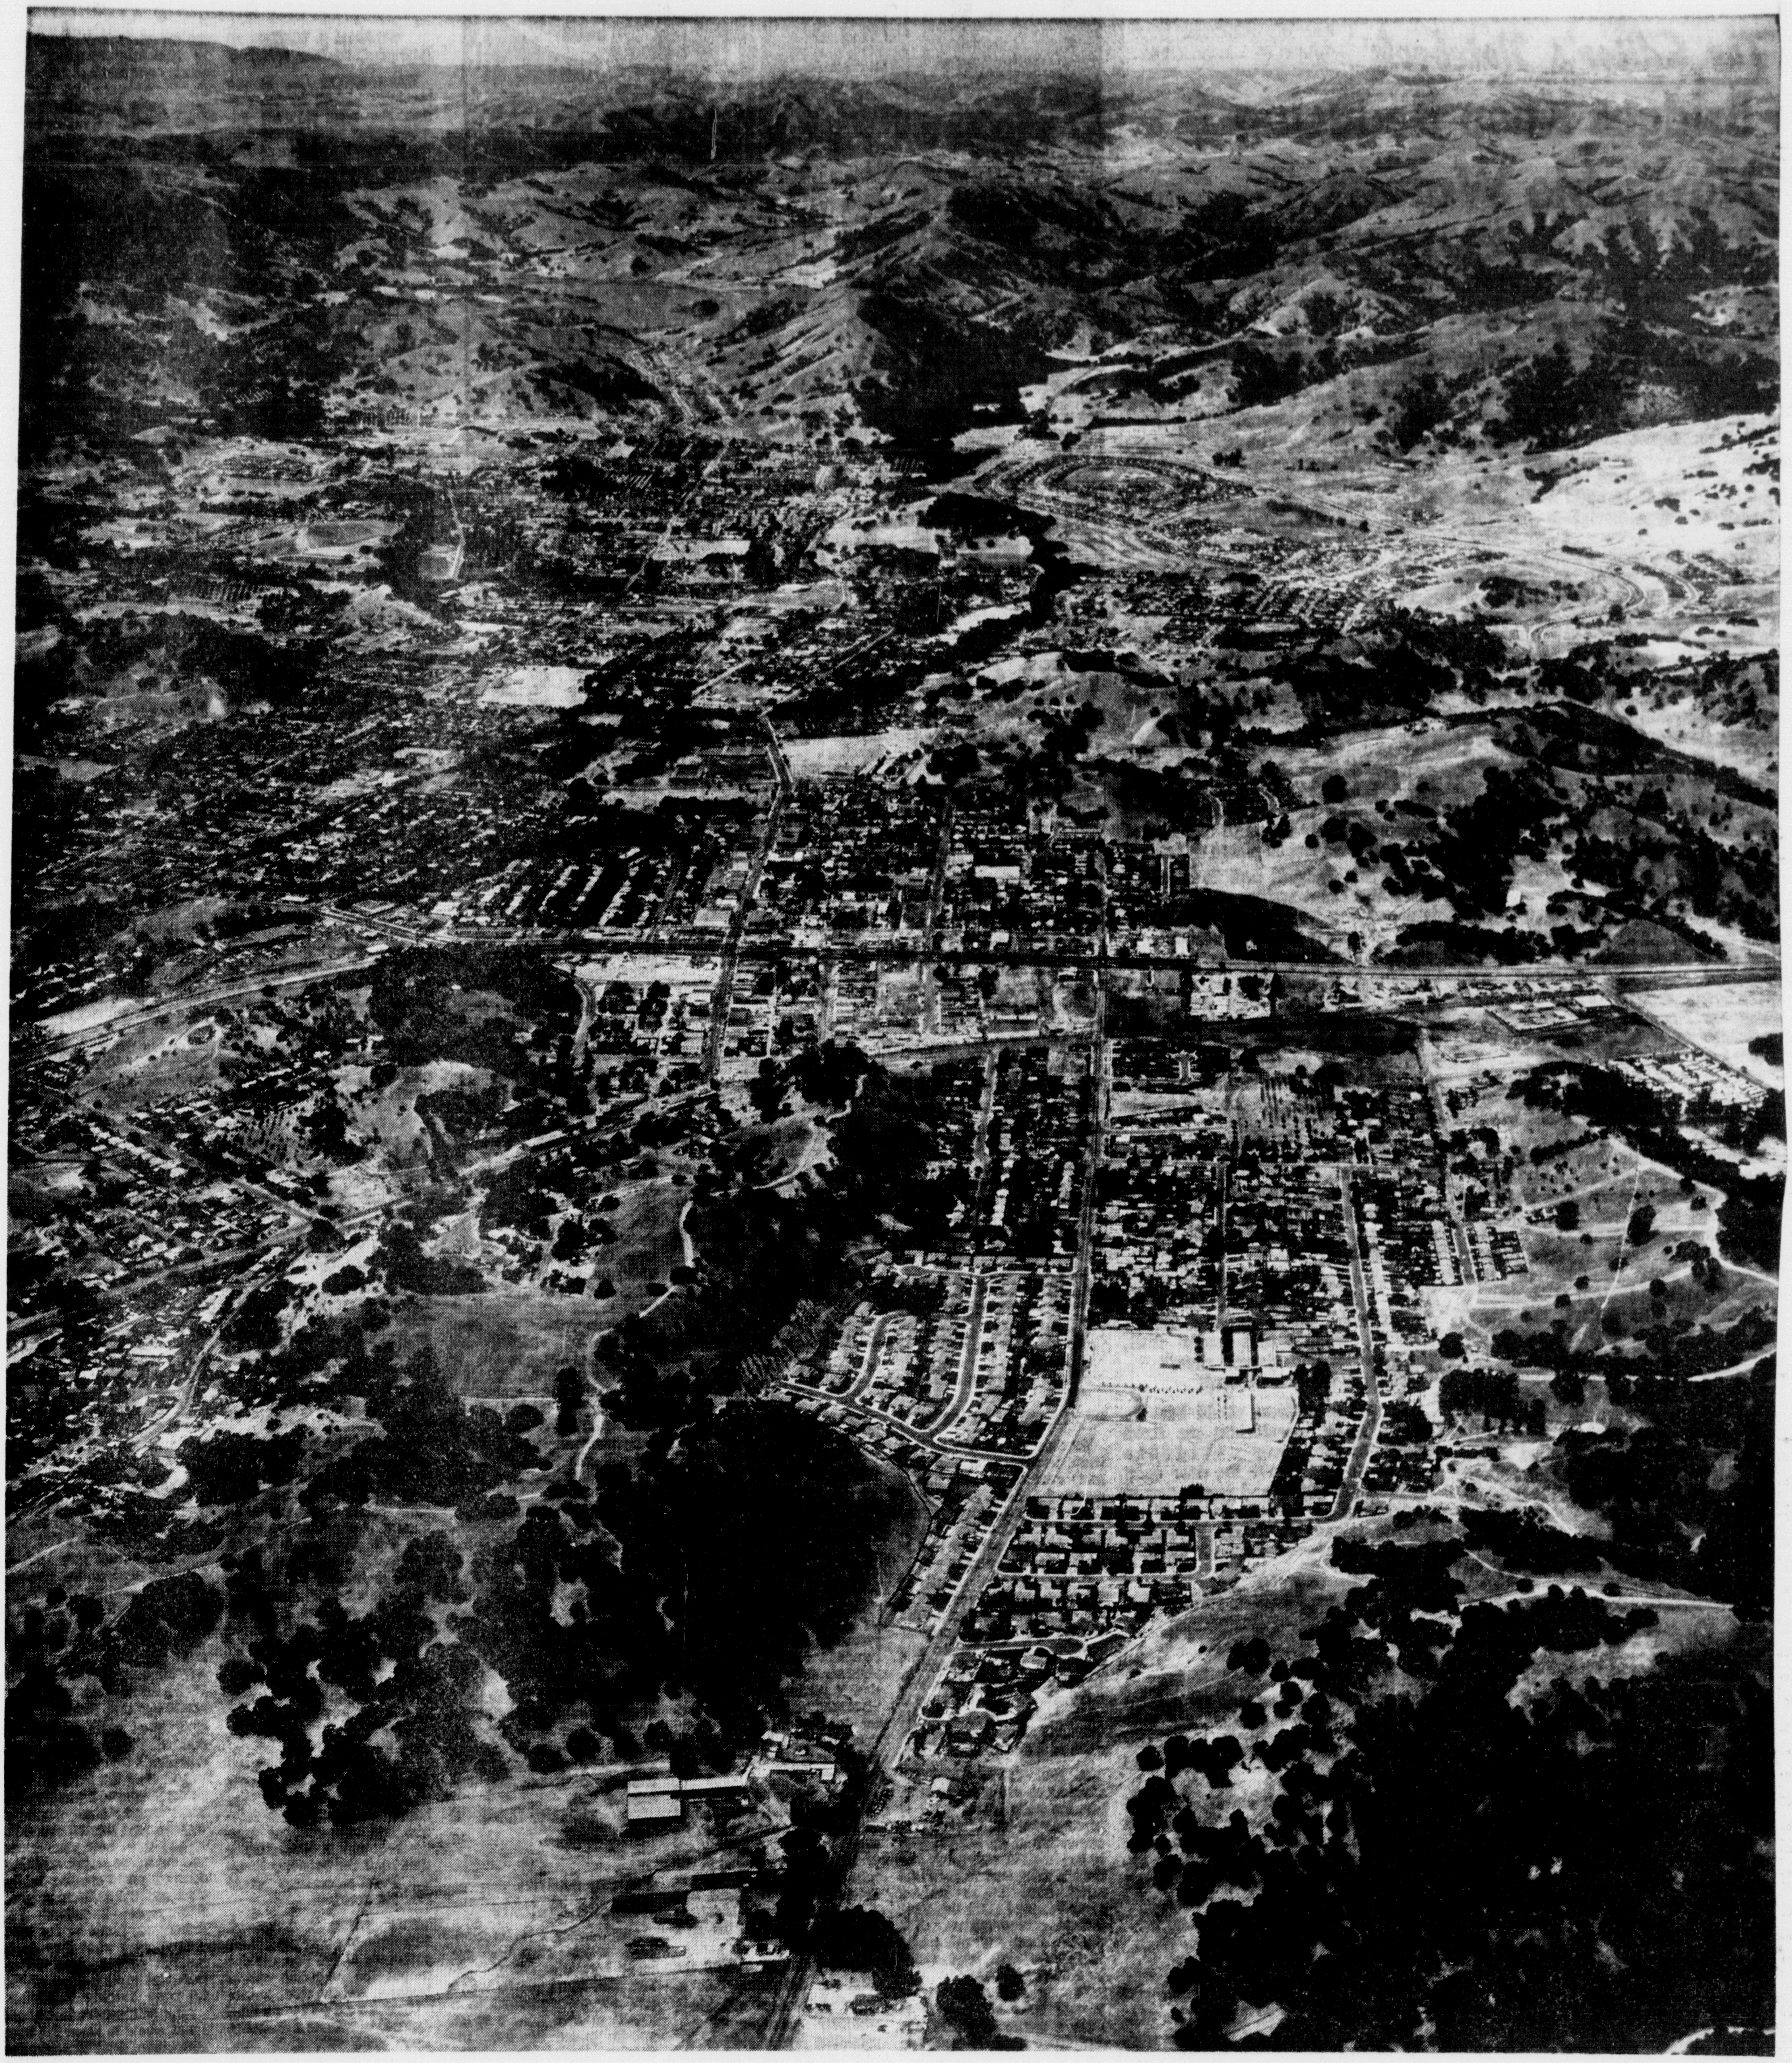
"This is the first such reward ever made since the county's antilitter ordinance was passed in 1954," said County Auditor Michael Mitchell, as he wrote out a $50 check for Burge yesterday.

Mitchell said he received certification from the district attorney that Burge was responsible for spotting illegal dumping by Thomas Z. McNicholas of Lagunitas last Aug. 8. McNicholas pleaded guilty on Aug. 20 and was fined $100.

County Ordinance No. 962, prohibiting illegal dumping, provides that a reward will go to any person giving information leading to the arrest and conviction for illegal dumping. Anyone found guilty may be fined up to $500 and jailed up to six months.

Special Guests

Ardon and Pat Lockyer, gospel singers and evangelists, will be special guests at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the North Marin Assembly of God Church in Novato.



Novato—Marin's Busy Northern Portal

The City of Novato, once an Indian village, is one of Marin's fastest growing communities. Incorporated only nine years ago — the anniversary is Monday — Novato has nearly doubled in population snce 1960 and now is 29,700. Once abundant with deer, elk, quail and other game, Novato reportedly has the oldest recorded history of any community north of San Francisco. In 1776, when the Spaniards established Mission Dolores and the Presidio of San Francisco, an exploration part ywas sent north into Marin County. The groups met a hospitable band of Indians at Olompali and helped the Indians build an adobe — the first in the North Bay area. But Novato's face has changed from primitive to plentiful, as shown by the sprawl of civilization in this aerial view of the city and environs. The city, however, clearly identifies with a rich history. Consider the names DeLong, Silva, Pacheco, Atherton. DeLong Avenue, named after Francis DeLong, an owner of an early apple orchard named Rancho Novato, intersects (center left) with Diablo Avenue and Highway 101. Other points are Stafford Lake (upper left), San Marin subdivision (center background) and San Marin Drive to Highway 101, Atherton Avenue and North Marin Water District headquarters (right), Olive Avenue and the intersecting Southern Pacific Railroad tracks (center) and the downtown area along Grant Avenue (center left). Bridges Keep Reducing Navigable Waterways

WHILE THE BAY CONSERVATION and Development Commission and its supporters marshal their forces to forestall the gradual filling of the Bay, a counter movement is in motion.

The ultimate result of the counter movement, unless it is checked, will be to defeat the very purposes of BCDC.

Here's the way the counter movement works. Someone — usually a public highway building agency — gets a Coast Guard and/or Army Engineer permit to build a low level bridge across a navigable body of water.

This has two results. First, it makes it uneconomic to do any dredging upstream or inland from the new bridge because it is no longer possible to move a big dredge in to do the work economically. Second, all but smaller boats which can get under the fixed bridge are foreclosed from using the waters upstream or inland. These two results pretty well insure that there will be no more maintenance dredging above the bridge.

Without dredging, it is only a question of time until nature fills the waterway with silt and natural debris. Man will do his bit with such as old beer cans, too.

IF YOU WANT TO SEE examples of this, take a look at Novato Creek. In the early days before railroads or highways, Novato depended on waterborne freight. Freight vessels came up Novato Creek to a point upstream from where Highway 101 crosses the creek today.

Now, it is all shoaled and filling all the way down to the low level Highway 37 bridge on the Black Point cutoff route.

Mahon Creek in San Rafael and Corte Madera Creek in the Ross Valley have the same history. The head of commercial navigation in San Rafael once was above D Street. The head of navigation on Corte Madera Creek once was Ross Landing, the approximate site of College of Marin.

Today in San Rafael, the Mary Street bridge effectively cuts off everything above that point. The old waterway for practical purposes — other than as a kind of open flood sewer — is gone. Save for some recent flood control work which has partly opened the old creek channel above Bon Air Bridge, the same is true of upper Corte Madera Creek. It is finished as a natural waterway.

INSTEAD OF SLOWING DOWN, this trend seems to be gaining in velocity.

A recent notice from the 12th Coast Guard District announces application for a fixed bridge to replace the lift bridge at Washington Street in Petaluma. This is likely to be granted. The head of navigation on Petaluma Creek will be cut back accordingly. The creek can be counted upon subsequently to silt, shoal, and ultimately become a muddy mass of decaying debris above the new fixed bridge.

Up in Eureka, the Northwestern Pacific Railroad has applied to replace a swing bridge with a low level fixed bridge over Eureka Slough, thereby effectively preventing any future recreational boating use or dredging of the slough above that point.

Probably the most painful to contemplate among recent applications is that of the San Joaquin County Public Works Department, which seeks to construct a new fixed bridge across the historic and beautiful Mokelumne River on Galt Road near Thornton.

If you read the privately printed memoirs of Capt. John Leale, published as "Life of a Tule Sailor," you will be reminded that large commercial vessels formerly sailed in and out of such now land-locked places as Lodi.

The San Joaquin and Sacramento River and Delta system of waterways is now being "discovered" by recreational boaters in growing numbers.

But the bridge builders are busy chopping off navigable streams. Before long the rivers and delta waterways may become as choked with boat traffic as Los Angeles freeways at rush hour. As boating traffic grows, low level bridge construction is shrinking the mileage of navigable waterways.

THERE IS ONE RAY OF HOPE on the horizion.

Not so long ago, the Army Engineers considered only what they referred to as "the effect of the bridge on navigation."

Now the Coast Guard will, in granting or denying a permit, give consideration to "other pertinent factors such as wildlife and water fowl, public parks, and historic sites."

Bully for the Coast Guard!

The public interest would best be served by a moratorium on fixed bridge building over navigable streams so as to leave the door open for future dredging and restoration to navigational use of these beautiful and historic inland waterways by future generations of recreational boaters.

Teens And Telephones

If you have a teen-ager around your house and he or she is permitted free access to the telephone, you doubtless have a new dimension on the meaning of the term, interminable conversation.

Not only are they lengthy, they are frequent. Unless curbed to some extent, they can hopelessly tie up the phone line.

We recently read a survey about teen-agers and their passion for phoning. Why, they were asked, did they hold long conversations on the phone with people they saw face to face several times a day?

The most common answer was, it's easier to talk on the phone than person to person. This is probably the same answer a psychiatrist would give, except he'd charge $50 and say don't worry, all teen-agers are insecure.

Bouquet And Brickbat

BOUQUET to the California Public Utilities Commission for taking the role of the public's representative — its rightful role — in opposing the Northwestern Pacific Railroad application to abandon rail service to Sausalito.

BRICKBATS to two young men who claimed (their idea of humor?) a student strike at College of Marin, to take their own kind of advantage of the college's closing Monday morning because of flooding.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

THE PROPRIETOR of a suburban tavern elected to have all his menus etched on planks of wood to add rustic atmosphere to the establishment. Then one of the watiers lost his heart to the cashier, but his dreams were shattered when she appeared one evening on the arm of a husky sailor. Enraged, the waiter smashed one of the wooden menus on the noggin of the husky sailor — proving once again that love is indeed a menu-splintered thing.

Peace Talks Needed In Middle East

This is with reference to the actions of the UN Security Council and the role that this government has played in promoting the censure resolution against the state of Israel.

This action will not bring peace to the Middle East.

Peace will only come when the Arab Nations and Israel sit down and settle their differences at a peace table.

For a state of war to exist for over 20 years is incomprehensible. The cynicism of both the United States and the Russians in their attempts to serve their client states has produced three wars in this period of time. Leadership in the securing of peace requires the aggrieved parties to solve the differences face to face. No peace solution rammed down the throats of these nations will produce a lasting peace. . .

I urge our government to use all its influence to urge the nations of the Middle East to begin peace talks now.

Member Denounces Teacher Federation

I can no longer, with a clear conscience, contiune my affiliation with the American Federation of Teachers. Thus, I am submitting my resignation as a protest to an organization that supports insurrection under the guise of a strike.

For a strike to exist, a majority of an organization must vote to strike. The students at San Francisco did not exist as an organization, and the majority did not agree to strike. I cannot support a union that is intolerant of constituted authority and approves of the violent activities of the dissident students. And, I cannot support a union that cannot differentiate between anarchy and constitutional rights. It is incomprehensible that the violent activities of a dissident minority could be labeled as "exercising their constitutional rights" as stated in the AFT strike issues, Paragraph 1, Section B. It is also incomprehensible that the AFT should label San Francisco State with racism. This tactic is usually utilized b ythe left-wing radicals to ferment disorder.

The real issue at San Francisco State is not the 15 demands submitted by the students or the strike issues submitted by AFT. . . . I shall state the real issue and the strategy in student revolt as outlined by John R. Searle in the New York Times Magazine, Dec. 29, 1968. The strategy involves three stages. Stage One: Pick any issue on which the administration cannot give in and which is related to a sacred topic, the First Amendment, race, or war. Demonstrate, violating as many rules as possible, to assure punishment. Stage Two: Make the university authorithories the target of protest. . . . The number of demonstrators will grow and TV will pick the leaders and dignify the uproar. . . . Stage Three: Force the administration to call the police. There will be widespread revulsion; sympathetic professors will become active in protest, and opposition to it will collapse. The original issues will have been forgotten, but the president will probably be fired, the faculty set to bickering and the campus closed . . .

The real reason for the issue at San Francisco is to close the campus. After the campus is closed, the militant minority state that they will rebuild the campus along socialist, collectivist lines.

Police, Sheriff Respond Quickly

After reading a recent front-page article regarding our many burglaries and the opinion that some people voiced that our policemen act in a casual manner, may I speak up in praise of both the Fairfax Police Department and the county sheriff's department.

Several weeks ago a prowler entered our home, thinking it was unoccupied, and in response to a call, the Fairfax police were present within five minutes. We are not within the city limits and I appreciated their rapid response regardless. The sheriff's department men arrived only minutes later and I felt most fortunate to have such speedy and thorough protection.

LINES ON LIVING

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

We must live in the present tense, in this world and now. And, even while now hardly seems the most beautiful of times, we must nevertheless cherish the gift of the present hour, as it is ours to live in reality and experience.

Dreams are the visions of the future. Nightmares are the regrets of the past. But the life of today, in the words of Thomas Carlyle, "is no idle dream, but a solemn reality." To live in the solemn reality of today means to live life as a whole and to feel it in all its throbbing fullness of the moment as it clearly lies at hand.

IN THE MIDST of all the distractions and annoyances of life, the daily horrid grind of apprehension and of cares, we cannot fail in the central task of building our character. For the one thing we can never get away from is meeting ourselves. And since this most intimate confrontation of self is the one most permanent rendezvous in life, it had better be a pleasant one.

To hew a character in the present tense of today is to mold a destiny for tomorrow. And every hour is precious in the irretrievable opportunity of the moment. To the cynic who asks what can be accomplished in the short duration of a fleeting moment — we say, perhaps not much at a time, but not little in a lifetime; if life abides by the deeper voices which have stirred in Robert Herrick the cry for a fullness of life, in declaring: "Gather ye rose-buds while ye may; Old time is still flying: And this same flower that smiles today: Tomorrow will be dying."

THE CALL for an awareness of today that sees old time flying is probably life's most stern challenge. The waste of time of wallowing in past tears and guilt, in worry over things that never will be, in the gross neglect of gathering rosebuds of beauty and of grace, while we may, is life's greatest undoing.

By learning to appreciate every hour for whatever it offers us and by snatching every moment with grace and gratitude, we may gather the rosebuds of a fuller and nobler life. What we give to life will come back our way. What we add to it will be credited to our living account with compounded dividends.

This will help us to avoid the predicament of that pampered lady who bitterly complained to her doctor of the night air she so utterly disliked that it became her obsession. "But madam," replied the doctor to the disgruntled lady, "during certain hours of the 24, night air is the only air there is."

Surely there are hours of "night air" and moments of disquietude in our life that we may not like: yet we are expected to make the best of our time by endowing it with an acceptance of loveliness and understanding, as we look upon the larger picture of life as a whole.

The wisdom of making the most of our time lies in crowding the hour with glory, whenever possible; in appreciating joys of the present, wherever they may be found; in a daily new-found awareness of longing to live and not merely in a desire for living long.

Swedes' Recognition Of Hanoi Embarrasses Incoming President

WILLIAM S. WHITE
(Marquis Childs is on vacation)

WASHINGTON — It is becoming plainer by the day that the new Nixon administration must simply bite the bullet on Vietnam no less stoically than the old Johnson administration has had to do.

As many of this government's professional intelligence people had believed all along they would do, the North Vietnamese Communists are using the Paris peace negotiations, and the transitional hiatus in Washington, for a kind of international filibuster. Not only are they waiting for Richard Nixon to take office; they are also waiting to test his mettle not merely at Paris but in all probability also in the field of military action.

THE COMMUNISTS, moreover, are being given significant assistance by the world's neutralist forces, notably Sweden, in an expression of open hostility to a new American presidency that is without known example in history. Sweden's decision to grant full diplomatic recognition to Communits North Vietnam — and also to Castro Cuba — on the very eve of Nixon's inauguration is an act of belligerent nose-thumbing toward a friendly and heavily burdened world power that is little short of infamous.

Not content with having given shelter to American deserters from Vietnam during the Johnson tenure, the Swedes have now clearly moved to marshal their form of "world opinion" to embarrass the Nixon tenure in every possible way. They will sooner or later be associated in this by like-minded countries, none of which is, of course, important in itself but all of which are important in the sense of propaganda.

IN ALL THESE circumstances it is difficult to understand the wave of euphoria and complacency about the prospects in Vietnam that is obviously sweeping this country and much of the world. For the odds are high that not some early diplomatic settlement in Paris but rather heavier fighting on the actual firing line now lies ahead in Vietnam.

Indeed, the public's great expectations of some quick and miraculous exit from the war are creating a climate of manifest danger to rational American negotiation in Paris. This danger, of course, is that public opinion will insist willy-nilly upon a kind of settlement that would not be in the national interest.

President Johnson himself, in opening the way for the Paris talks, sought urgently to warn that hard times and hard fighting would almost surely still be the order of the day. But it is patent that his words of caution have been largely obscured in the general atmosphere of optimism unlimited.

IT IS THUS the greatest of pities that so ordinarily tough and objective a personage as Averell Harriman, the retiring head of the American diplomatic team in Paris, should use his valedictory statement mainly to "warn" Americans against any notion of "winning a war."

Johnson and Nixon personally have approached this whole business with the highest of realism; and this should be the standard all down the line. Nixon for his part has already done everything in his power, especially by his diplomatic appointments, to make it utterly plain that he is not coming to power in order to give this game away. It now seems almost certain that he may find it necessary to go even farther. If current political realities do not force him to do so, the new military realities in Vietnam will.

For the change in the guard at the White House has, in this great contest, changed nothing else whatever.

ART BUCHWALD

How Kellerman Took Revenge On One Of The Post's Elite

WASHINGTON — Several months ago the Saturday Evening Post arbitrarily cut three million subscribers from its lists and announced it was keeping only those readers who had the purchasing power as well as the status worthy of the new, sophiticated SEP format.

I reported at the time that those dropped from the list of subscribers suffered a grievous blow to their egos as well as to their positions in the community. If the Saturday Evening Post considered you a deadbeat, you didn't have much choice but to either pretend you were still getting the magazine and live a lie, or move out of the neighborhood before anyone found out.

One of the tragedies of the decision to cut its subscription list in half was that the Saturday Evening Post turned brother against brother, mother-in-law against daughter-in-law, friend against friend. The people who got the Post after the decision had been made lorded it over those who had been dropped from the list, and it looked for a time as if the Saturday Evening Post subscribers would rule the world.

BUT THEN it happened. Without warning, the publishers of the Post decided to put the magazine out of business, and the three million elite suddedly found themselves without a magazine they could call their own. Those on top found themselves on the bottom, and those on the bottom (the ones who had been dropped arbitrarily months back) found themselves riding high.

I wish I could report that there was some Christian charity shown toward the SEP subscribers, but there had been so much bitterness in the past that when the Post announced it was going out of business, the "deadbeats" celebrated throughout the land.

KELLERMAN, who had been arbitrarily dropped by the Post last May because he only owned one car, was paid a visit by Sanskrit, whose subscription to the Saturday Evening Post made his credit rating in Chevy Chase as good as Jean Paul Getty's.

As Kellerman answered the door, Sanskrit said, "I don't like to ask you this, but I was wondering If I could read your Life magazine when you're finished."

"Not on your life, Sanskrit," Kellerman said. "You seem to forget that only two months ago I asked to read your Saturday Evening Post and you said, 'I don't know if the Post would want you to or not. It's not up to me. I don't make the rules.' "

"YOU'RE NOT going to bear a grudge over an incident like that, Kellerman? I did let you have my Look, didn't I?"

"I did'nt want your Look—I wanted your Saturday Evening Post. You said you'd be happy to let me read the Post but if they found out about it at Curtis, they might cut you off and you and your family weren't in a position to stick your necks out. Do you remember that, Sanskrit?"

"I acted hastily," Sanskrit pleaded. "There was so much pressure. I saw what happened to you after the Post cut your subscription and I was afraid it would happen to me. I saw the way the kids treated your kids at school — how your credit was cut at the stores, how they dropped you from the bridge club and the swimming pool. One night I swear it, Kellerman, I said to my wife, 'I don't care what they do to me I'm going to give Kellerman last week's copy of the Saturday Evening Post.'

"But you weren't home, and I was afraid to leave the issue at the front door. The next day I got cold feet. I know it's hard to justify, but I ask you, Kellerman — would you have acted differently if the Saturday Evening Post had canceled my subscription instead of yours?"

"WE'LL NEVER know, Sanskrit, and I hope I never have to make the decision. But I want you to feel what it's like to be on the bottom, without a magazine that you can call your own. I hope you suffer the way I did."

"Please, Kellerman, if you won't give me Life, let me at least have a peek at the Reader's Digest."

Kellerman smiled. "I don't know if The Digest would want you to or not. It's not up to me. After all, I don't make the rules." And with that Kellerman laughted hysterically and slammed the door.

MISSION DOOMED?

Mideast Again Explosive

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The tenuous Middle East peace structure appears near collapse again, this time as a result of mounting Arab commando raids and Israeli reprisals.

Despite a year of effort by U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring, the situation has deteriorated rapidly to the point where many are expressing fear of a new all-out conflict.

This is reflected not only in statements from Arab and Israeli leaders, but in the efforts of the four big powers to seek an urgent peace settlement.

Some U.N. diplomats feel that Jarring's peace mission already is doomed and that nothing short of a big power pressure can save the situation at this stage.

Israel has taken a firm stand against any attempt of the Big Four to impose a settlement, but both the United States and the Soviet Union have a tremendous influence in the area and any agreement by them would be bound to carry weight.

One of the most recent causes for concern was the involvement of Lebanon in the new wave of clashes. Lebanon remained outside the lightning war of June 1967 and has maintained a moderate policy in comparison with other Arab countries.

The Palestine liberation forces, however, are using Lebanese territory as a base just as they use Jordanian, Egyptian, Syrian and other Arab countries. It is this which led to the Israeli commando attack on the Beirut airport Dec. 28 and the subsequent tension between Israel and Lebanon.

Nearly all the major incidents in the past year have involved the so-called Arab liberation forces and Israeli military reaction to their raids into Israel.

The Arabs contend that the 1.3 million Arab refugees from Palestine have a legitimate right to seek the "liberation" of their former homeland and that these groups are patriots who deserve the help of other Arabs.

The result is a large-scale training program with bases in several Arab countries. One of the most widely publicized groups is Al Fatah, but the group which admitted responsibility for attacking an Israeli airliner at the Athens airport was the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The U.N. Security Council has appealed without success to all parties to avoid violence, but has skirted the question of responsibility for the commando groups.

Viet Pacification Gains Largest Yet

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. military command in Saigon raised some eyebrows last month by announcing that the South Vietnamese government—in just two months—had gained control over another million people.

The command said its computers showed 73.3 per cent of South Vietnam's 17.5 million people were now living in "relative security"—a record increase of 6.5 per cent over the figure given for October.

These were the largest "population control" gains recorded since the United States set up its computerized system to evaluate pacification progress two years ago.

FIGURES DOUBTED

In a war where every statistic can be questioned, the figures aroused skepticism.

In view of the current frustrating efforts to get substantive peace talks started, both the Allied and Communist sides can be expected to claim as much control over the South Vietnamese population as possible, for bargaining purposes.

The fact is that South Vietnamese government forces, spurred on by the prospects of peace talks and a possible cease-fire, have been pushing rapidly out through the country into "contested" rural areas which they never before could hold.

They claim control over these areas, where the Viet Cong has not fought back.

GAINS NOT SOLID

It remains to be seen how lasting the gains will be. The statistics are subject to posible "revision" by the Viet Cong if and when the Communists decide to take up the challenge.

The Viet Cong still collect taxes and maintain underground agents in many of the areas that are rated as under government control and relatively secure.

At night, the Viet Cong slip past government outposts in hamlets that appear secure during the day. Assassination of local officials continues, in "controlled" districts despite the reported gains in security.

South Vietnam has a total of 12,650 hamlets, or small rural communities, spread throughout the country. But only 216 of them, with 686,000 people, are rated as "completely" secure on the basis of reports from U.S. advisers in the provinces.

Nevertheless, the new statistics do indicate some real advances.

MILITARY PULLOUT

The withdrawal of several North Vietnamese Army divisions and a number of Viet Cong units from the populated areas to border regions, plus a nationwide decline in Viet Cong military action, have permitted a stepped-up rush into the countryside.

The current government push, called the accelerated pacification campaign (APC), has resulted in South Vietnamese troops moving into more than 1,000 contested rural hamlets, containing more than a million people, since Nov. 1.

As a result of this massive push into the countryside, the computers that digest pacification reports from the provinces have been "upgrading" the APC hamlets from their former contested status to "relatively secure" standing.

Even within the relatively secure group, however, there are several categories. Most of the newly won hamlets come under the lowest rating of "C," which now includes more than five million people.

In these "C" hamlets, the emphasis must be placed on the "relative" aspect of relative security. Viet Cong guerrillas are still capable of harassing actions in the hamlets and continued Viet Cong taxation of the villagers is suspected.

It will be a long, hard pull for most of these hamlets to move up to a "B" rating, which would mean much greater security and developments.

CONTROLLED BY REDS

At the other end of the stick, 2.34 million people—or 13.4 per cent of the total population—are listed as being completely controlled by the Viet Cong.

Actually evaluating conditions in the large number of hamlets that lie between complete government control and complete Viet Cong control is an extremely difficult task.

When night falls over the countryside, distinctions blur.

"Many of the hamlets in this area are pro-government in the daytime and pro-Viet Cong at night," a hamlet chief in Long An Province, south of Saigon, told a reporter. The chief of another province northeast of Saigon told a U.S. aid official, "everything in this province is secure in the daytime. Nothing is secure at night."

"We share the peasants a little less with the Viet Cong at night now," said one U.S. expert. He noted there has been improvement in night operations by South Vietnamese troops.

KILLINGS CONTINUE

"But they are not seeking or making much contact with the Viet Cong. If security was really adequate at night, assassinations, terrorism and tax collections would go down. Instead they've remained about the same."

Who knows for sure if and when all the hidden Viet Cong political agents in any given hamlet have been identified?

"Few organizations have matched the skill of the National Liberation Front in maintaining internal security," one veteran observer remarked. He cited as a grim example "the showcase" village council in Phuoc Tuy Province, elected in 1967, whose members all turned out to be Viet Cong.

Despite all such uncertainties and qualifications, there are indications of pacification progress. One such indicator is the rising number of Viet Cong defectors; another is the increasingly effective "Phoenix" program designed to coordinate intelligence and root out the Viet Cong political network in the countryside.

GENERALS MISS

But too many generals have underestimated the strength of the Viet Cong too many times in the past for anybody to be making many predictions. No one is sure what the Viet Cong might do or try to do, to wreck the new pacification program in the coming months.

Senior U.S. officials do say they think the Communists are incapable of launching an offensive on the scale of the Tet offensive of last Jan. 31, which dealt a severe blow to the pacification program. They also doubt the communists can mobilize an attack on the level of the "mini-Tet" offensive of last May.

Yet no one in the U.S. Mission at this stage is going overboard in interpreting the latest signs of progress or the apparent weaknesses of the Viet Cong.

"Everyone knows this is a long, slow grind," one U.S. official said. "There aren't going to be any instant coonskins on the wall."

An American official was asked why the government troops are being pushed into new hamlets so rapidly when it appeared one of the lessons of the past was that pacification had to be an extremely slow process to be effective.

"Time is running out," the official said. "We're in a different ball game now. We want to be in the best possible position before a cease-fire. We want to establish hamlet and village governments everywhere." And he struck this note of confidence:

"This is an expansive, risk-taking campaign. But I don't think the enemy is capable of rolling it back."

THIS WEEK In The World

Hopes For Peace Shining Brighter

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

President Johnson's final messages to Congress and an indication that the peace talks in Paris at last might be getting down to business this week gave Americans inkling of the shape of things to come.

On Wednesday, the President sent Congress a budget for fiscal 1970 which would provide a surplus of $3.4 billion— provided the 10 per cent income tax surcharge was continued for another year. Johnson also called for increased social security benefits beginning in January, 1970, and correspondingly higher taxes to pay for them.

He suggested a 1 cent increase in first-class postal rate and a 3 cent reduction in the air mail rate, providing 7 cent postage for letters of either type.

On Tuesday, the President appeared in person before the Congress to deliver his final State of the Union message. It was an occasion charged with emotion, and Johnson was interrupted dozens of times by applause.

He spoke hopefully of the prospects for solutions to such problems as the Vietnam War, the arms race, military tension in the Mideast and social tension at home.

Hope for an early Vietnam settlement seemed brighter Thursday, when negotiators in Paris finally compromised their arguments about furniture for the conference room and agreed to begin negotiations Saturday.

The weeks-long dispute about the shape of the conference table was resolved by agreement on a round table for negotiators, without nameplates, flags or markings, flanked on either side by a small rectangular table for secretaries.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

New York: Reports of systematic milking of the city welfare system by forged-check rings caused a storm of controversy. Mayor John V. Lindsay reaffirmed his faith in Human Resources (welfare) Administrator Mitchell I. Ginsberg.

Moscow: The Soviet Union proudly proclaimed Thursday that its cosmonauts linked two manned spacecraft in earth orbit and transferred two spacemen from one spaceship to another. The linked ships were described as the "world's first experimental space station."

INAUGURATION TRIMMINGS

Oath Of Office Only Requirement

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —If meeting constitutional requirements were the only consideration, Monday's inauguration of Richard M. Nixon as president could be accomplished in less than three minutes.

Article II of the constitution says that a president-elect, before entering upon the execution of his office, must take the following oath:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

The constitution doesn't say when, where or where or before whom the oath is to be taken. It does not require a big outdoor ceremony at the Capitol or an inaugural address by the new president. It says nothing about inaugural parades, concerts, balls and galas.

MANY ADDITIONS

All these things have been added to the simple oath-taking envisioned by the founding fathers through customs which have evolved piecemeal over the past 180 years.

As a result, it now takes three days instead of three minutes to get a new chief executive properly installed in the White House.

George Washington established two inaugural precedents which have been followed by all of his successors. He placed his hand on a Bible while taking the oath. And he added, at the conclusion of the oath prescribed by the constitution, "So help me God."

SOME LONG-WINDED

Subsequent presidents have been considerably more long-winded, with William Henry Harrison setting the all-time record for volubility.

Harrison in 1841 spoke for nearly two hours, while he and his audience stood outdoors in a cold rain. Harrison contracted a bad cold and died a month later.

His sad experience may have had a salutary effect on his successors. Few inaugural addresses since his time have lasted longer than half an hour.

If some have seemed longer, it is because inaugural oratory, has not been distinguished for its eloquence. Every president probably hopes to say something in his inaugural address that will go down in history, but only a handful have succeeded in doing so.

Among those who did say unforgettable things were Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy.

JEFFERSON'S SPEECH

Jefferson in 1801 warned against "entangling alliances," and thereby coined a phrase that was to remain a slogan of U.S. foreign policy for 140 years.

The nation was torn asunder by civil war when Lincoln made his moving plea:

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in."

In another dark hour of American history, with the economy in the grip of a great depression, FDR assured an anxious people:

"The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

Kennedy summoned Americans to a new frontier of sacrifice and service in a sentence that has been quoted thousands of times in the past eight years:

"Ask not what your country can do for you: Ask what you can do for your country."

INAUGURAL PARADE

The inaugural parade down Pennsylvania Avenue, which follows the oath-taking ceremony on the Capitol steps, is the most venerable of the extra-constitutional customs which now surround the installation of a president.

The first inaugural parade was held for Thomas Jefferson in 1801. It consisted of one band and one marching unit from the Washington Navy Yard. (By contrast, Nixon's inaugural parade—a relatively brief one by modern standards—will have 56 bands, 44 floats, and marching units from all service academies.)

William Howard Taft was the first president to take his wife along for the ride down Pennsylvania Avenue. Warren G. Harding was the first to use an automobile instead of a horse-drawn carriage. Harding set another precedent, too: His was the first inaugural address broadcast to the nation by radio.

FORMAL BALL

The custom of holding a formal inaugural ball on the night after the oath-taking dates back to 1809 and was the contribution of party-loving Dolly Madison, beautiful wife of President James Madison.

The ball became a permanent feature of subsequent inaugurations.

The party following Andrew Jackson's swearing-in, however, was more of an inaugural brawl than a ball. Old Hickory's rough-hewn followers poured into the White House wearing muddy boots, trampled the fine carpets, consumed all the food and liquor on the premises, and then brought out their own jugs of mountain dew. The party lasted all night and ended with a considerable smashing of glasses, dishes and furniture.

FIRST LOCATION

Inaugural balls for many years were held in the Pension Building, an ancient red brick structure near the Capitol whose architectural elegance was perhaps best appraised by Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman, who once said:

"It's a shame the damn thing is fireproof."

The Pension Building was considered as a site for the Nixon inaugural ball, mainly on grounds of historical nostaglia, but it was decided instead to hold this year's ball in six sections—five in hotel ballrooms and the sixth in the handsome new building of the Smithsonian Institution.

The Pension Building is being used, however, as temporary office for the 1969 inaugural committee.

Most presidents have elected to wear formal dress—cutaway or club coat and striped trousers—for the inaugural ceremony at the capitol. But some, including Lyndon B. Johnson, have appeared in business suits. And a few have sought to make their inaugural attire convey a message. James Madison, who wanted to encourage Americans to use home-grown wool instead of importing cloth from England, had an inaugural suit made entirely from the wool of certified native American sheep.

IMAGINATIVE TAILOR

James Buchanan had an imaginative tailor in his home town of Lancaster, Pa., run up a suit of Lancaster black satin. The lining was embroidered with the coats'-of-arms of all the states.

Nearly every inaugural has a memorable mishap. A cowboy riding in Lyndon Johnson's inaugural parade thought it would be jolly to lasso the president as he passed the reviewing stand—causing great consternation among secret service agents.

Dwight D. Eisenhower's parade fell more than an hour behind schedule because of a meandering elephant named Miss Burma who couldn't resist drifting off course to flirt with the spectators.

Perhaps the worst fate befell celebrators of Ulysses S. Grant's inauguration. It got so cold in the hall where the ball was held that all the champagne froze.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Weinberger Sees Balanced Budget

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A balanced budget for California is the rosy picture painted by Finance Director Caspar Weinberger in discussing the upcoming budget being prepared for delivery to the legislature early in February.

Weinberger said this week the balance is being achieved despite "special dedicated funds which siphon off substantial amounts of tax revenues to programs controlled by constitutional or statutory distribution formulas and which are virtually immune from any priority determination or policy making by the "governor or the Legislature.

He added that two-thirds of each budget is isolated from controls by the governor, and indicated highways and welfare are two such areas.

Weinberger claimed the administration has affected economies which will produce a $200 million annual savings. He also said the new budget will require no new taxes and will allow for a substantial reduction in personal income taxes as well as the continuation of local property tax relief.

Weinberger added that the budget balancing is not restricted only to the 1969-70 budget, but promised "we can do the same thing for 1970-71."

Meanwhile, the first bill approved by the 1969 Legislature has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The legislation enables the Republican State Central Committee to hold its first meeting of the year in Sacramento on the fourth, rather than the third, Sunday in January.

The urgency bill was introduced by Assembly Speaker Pro Tem Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, to permit attendance at the inauguration of President-elect Richard M. Nixon. The bill received unanimous approval of both houses.

Cost of education is the subject of a bill, AB 75, by Assemblyman John L. E. (Bud) Collier, R-South Pasadena, which would provide for students to sign notes to reimburse the state for part of the cost of their education.

The students would begin the reimbursement after leaving school and when they become employed with a minimum of a $6,000 taxable income bracket. The notes would be for a maximum of 20 years.

Petition circulators will be faced with new restriction sif a bill, introduced by Assemblyman James A. Hayes, R-Long Beach, is approved by the Legislature.

It will make it unlawful for circulators of petitions in connection with initiatives, referendums and recalls to use the money they collect for personal expenses not authorized by the person donating the money.

Hayes cited charges made during the Reagan campaign that persons involved in the campaign might have been using some of the donated money for personal purposes such as paying for food, clothing and shelter. The bill would make the persons receiving the money the trustees of it. Penalty on conviction would be $5,000 fine or up to two years in prison.

Credit Card Firm Has 179 Per Cent Growth

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — While world money experts have been worrying about gold reserves and balances of payments, a financial "revolution" has been taking place much closer to home for the average consumer. The use of credit cards is booming.

Bank of America, the largest credit card dealer in the world, reported yesterday that 1968 saw a fantastic 179.2 per cent increase in the number of persons using its cards.

Nationwide, the bank estimates the total number of all credit cards in circulation is at least 250,000,000 — more than enough for every man, woman and child.

BankAmeriCard accounts for 16.75 million card users, an increase of 10.75 million over the 1967 total.

Sales soared from $458.9 million in 1967 to $814.5 million last year, an increase of 77.5 per cent. The number of merchants who accept BankAmeriCard went from 155,000 to 397,000.

A Bank of America official, John Dillon, said 1968 was the biggest year yet in the so-called credit card revolution since the cards were approved for interstate business just two-and-one-half years ago.

"It is rare indeed that any business service of our size can experience doubling of its customers and retail outlets," Dillon said. "Our nation has become extremely credit card-oriented in the relatively short period of two - and - one - half years."

The revolution has "firmly taken hold" Dillon added, saying Bank of America thinks it will easily rack up a billion dollars in credit sales this year while boosting cardholders to at least 22 million persons.

PSA Volume Up

SAN DIEGO (BW) — Pacific Southwest Airlines flew 3,997,524 passengers in 1968, 651,040 more passengers than in the previous year. The additional passengers represent a 19 per cent increase over 1967, PSA has announced.

Four Drivers Are Sentenced

Four persons were sentenced in Marin Municipal Court Thursday for drunken driving offenses. They were:

Guy Claude Parvex, 42, of San Francisco, fined $150 and placed on six months of probation for his driving Sept. 10 on San Rafael Avenue, Belvedere.

Bettini Timmins, 44, of 102 Homestead Boulevard, Mill Valley, fined $175 and placed on probation for six months for the same offense on Bridgeway, Sausalito, Jan. 4.

Thomas George Kelly, 38, of 4144 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, fined $150 and placed on probation for six months for drunken driving Dec. 5 on Highway 101.

Donald Warren Anderson of Walnut Creek, fined $125 and placed on probation for the same period for his driving Jan. 9 on South Novato Boulevard, Novato.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Handicapped Driving Safety; New Disease Often Fatal

VAN DELLEN

Many who are physically disabled drive to and from work. Being able to hold a job is an important part of rehabilitation but getting them to work safely is also important. The majority have lost function of the legs as a result of polio or amputation.

Some have disabilities that permit only hand-manipulation of a vehicle. Many more have handicaps that require minor modifications on the controls of the car. In others, disability is so slight, they can handle a conventional vehicle.

A SWEDISH STUDY revealed that the group with slight disablement had more traffic accidents and more serious traffic offenses. A second group, amputees with artificial limbs, were the worse offenders. Those with involvement of the right side had fewer accidents than persons with comparable limb losses on the left.

But more important, was the fact that, as a group, disabled drivers had no more accidents than able-bodied drivers. The former might have fewer mishaps if those in the third group were willing to drive cars modified to fit their particular needs.

The integument is so sensitive that the victim will not allow anyone to touch it. Large blisters develop and rupture leaving denuded areas.

According to Dr. Kenneth M. Halprin of Portland, Ore., the syndrome is on the increase. In some, it follows the use of certain drugs; among infants, it is associated with a staphylococcal infection.

According to his report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, one-third often die within a week. The remainder suffer very little, considering the appearance of the skin, and recover completely within two weeks.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

BLOWS NOSE OFTEN

A reader writes: Why would an 11-year-old boy blow his nose all the time, even though nothing comes out? Every few seconds he reaches for a tissue. Is this a nervous habit or should his nose be examined?

REPLY

This could be habit but he deserves to have a thorough examination to determine whether the passageway is blocked by a deviated septum, polyp, swolled membrane, or a peanut. Now and then nasal irritation stems from an unusually dry, crusted membrane.

THUMBNAIL IS CROOKED

A reader writes: Last year I injured a thumbnail. After it healed, ridges developed and now it always comes in crooked. Is there any surgical treatment to correct such a defect?

REPLY

Not if the root of the nail is damaged.

'HOLDING' LIQUOR

A. G. writes: Is a person less able to tolerate alcohol as he grows older?

REPLY

Yes, but in many instances increased tolerance occurs because of the more frequent and longer use of liquor.

RINGWORM ACQUISITION

J. M. writes: Can athlete's foot be caught in a public bathhouse?

REPLY

Yes, but it is not a common means of transmission.

OBESITY AND PREGNANCY

O. writes: Does overweight prevent conception?

REPLY

No, except in the relatively few cases in which obesity is on a glandular basis.

"Why do we look down to pray when God's up THAT way?"

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Jan. 18, the 18th day of 1969 with 347 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter and Mars. The evening stars Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1919 the Versailles Peace Conference was formally opened near Paris.

In 1943 Moscow announced that the German siege of Leningrad had been lifted. It had lasted since the fall of 1941.

In 1966 the late Indian Prime Minister Nehru's daughter, Indira Gandhi, was named Prime Minister of India.

In 1968 the United States and the Soviet Union agreed on a draft of a nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

A thought for the day: Henry David Thoreau said, "That man is the richest whose pleasures are the cheapest."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't Tackle Big Mountains At First–Try The Small Ones

As a good bridge player you must have faith in your ability to make a difficult contract. If you can make the contract only if a certain king is at your right, have faith that the king is actually there, but do not believe any more than you must. Faith will move mountains, but practice on small mountains to begin with.

DIAMOND LEAD

West led the nine of diamonds, East put up the ten and South won with the ace. Since South was a good player he now knew how to play the spades.

If you are peeking at the East-West cards rap yourself over the knuckles and concentrate on working out the correct reasoning. You should know how to play the spades even without looking at the hands of the defenders.

WATCH TRUMPS

Since you are sure to lose two diamonds and one spade you cannot afford to lose a trump, and you cannot afford to misguess the spades. You must rely on the king of hearts to be at your right, where you can finesse through it.

The opening lead told you that East started with K-Q-J-10 of diamonds, and the hand is hopeless unless East also has the king of hearts. If East had the ace of spades too he would have opened the bidding. Therefore you must assume that West has the ace of spades.

LEAD SPADE

Following this reasoning you lead a spade at the second trick. West plays low and you win with dummy's king. Now you lead the queen of hearts for a finesse and easily bring home the contract.

What if East had the ace of spades in spite of your faith? Then West would have the king of hearts and you were never going to make the contract. You go down two instead of one, but you don't mind giving up an additional 50 points in the course of making your only real play for a game contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠-A 9 7 6
♥- 7 4
♦- 9 8 7
♣- Q 6 5 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since you have only six points in high cards you know that the combined count is only 24 points at most. This is not likely to be enough for game, so there is no advantage in getting any higher than one no-trump.

Terra Linda Rips San Rafael In Wild Marin League

From an ice-cold afternoon to a red-hot night—that was the Terra Linda High School mystery trip this week, and it helped throw the Marin County Athletic League basketball race into a real early mess last night.

The Trojans, who didn't hit much of anything in a Tuesday afternoon loss to Novato, turned into regular deadeyes aginst archrival San Rafael, handing the Bulldogs their first loop loss at Terra Linda last night, 84-64.

Meanwhile, Novato was handling overmatched San Marin, 80-49, to take the league lead with a 3-0 won-lost record while Tamalpais bumped off Drake, 69-54, in San Anselmo and Redwood outgunaed Mario Catholic, 80-61, in Kentfield in a wild night of high-scoring games.

TIMMEL STARS

Mike Timmel, last spring's super-pitcher with a 10-0 won-lost mark that helped the Trojans to the MCAL baseball title, was the most accurate Trojan of them all, proving that he can throw something besides a baseball.

The burly 6 foot, 3 inch senior, in a kind of unconscious nonchalance, flicked in 26 points, hitting 10 of 17 shots from the floor, mostly from outside, and cracking for a perfect six-for-six night from the free-throw line.

The Bulldogs were nowhere near perfect at the free-throw line, especially in the first half, and that started all their troubles.

CLOSE START

The Trojans, making 16 of 19 free throw attempts, broke open a close game which had San Rafael on top, 16-15, at the end of the first quarter, by outscoring the Bulldogs 14-2 midway in the second period. They took a 42-26 halftime lead, with the Bulldogs winding up with a 4-for-14 showing from the charity line, a doomsday set of statistics.

The lead skied to 62-29 at the end of the third quarter, as Timmel hit three straight fielders in the final minute.

SUDDEN THREAT

The Bulldogs suddenly threatened to turn this already wild ballgame upside down with Ray Taylor and guard Bruce Nave leading the charge. They worked the Trojans over for a 17-4 advantage, and trailed by only 66-56 with almost four minutes left.

The Trojans called time out and when play was resumed, Taylor fouled out, Pat Purcell sank a pair of free throws for the Trojans, Timmel drove for a bucket and Purcell whipped in a long jumper and that was it for good.

Taylor had scored 10 of his 14 points in the final period and Nave added 8 of his 15 points in the same quarter.

Purcell, who started slowly, wound up with 19 points and lanky Mike Penden, who had a bad day against Novato, moved around for 16 points before fouling out.

Novato

Novato's cagers got their first up-close look at their brand new cross-town rivals last night but getting aquainted proved to be tough for San Marin.

The Hornets, now 14-4 on the season, never did get used to John Howard, the junior ace of San Marin, but they played well enough to hand out an 80-49 thrashing after a close first half.

Howard kept it close in the first half, scoring 18 of his 24 points as Novato led by only 30-24.

But with Ed Herrnberger and Steve McNally splitting up 35 points between them, the

Giants And Indians Expected To Split

Gabe Paul's opposition to Chub Feeney as baseball commissioner is the tipoff that the long and happy spring relationship of the Cleveland Indians and San Francisco Giants is coming to an end.

Paul, president of the Indians, rounded up the American League votes that blocked Feeney's bid for the commissioner's job at a meeting of major league owners last month in Chicago.

Feeney, vice president of the Giants, was top man of all candidates at Chicago. He received all 12 National League votes and five of the American League's 12. He needed at least nine from each league for election. Paul's vigorous opposition was the main reason Feeney failed to get the necessary three-quarter majority in the American League.

Long Spring Rivalry

For 35 years the Giants and Indians have played the largest number of spring games and then gone on barnstorming tours after breaking spring camp. It has been baseball's longest and friendliest spring rivalary. Of 433 games played, the Giants have won 224, the Indians 201, with eight ties.

The spring partnership of the Giants and Indians started in Florida in 1934. It continued in Arizona when the teams moved there two decades ago, the Giants to Phoenix, the Indians to Tucson.

Harmony Is Disrupted

Paul, who had been general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, became general manager of the Indians in 1962 and president the next year. With Paul's approval, the spring reatiolnship between the Giants and Indans contiuned. But in recent years minor discords disrputed what once was a most harmonious scheduling arrangement.

There will be no interruption in this year's spring arrangement between the Giants and Indians. They will go on tour as usual after breaking spring camp. But this spring's tour to Albuquerque, Amarillo, Shreveport and Memphis probably will be the last.

A strained relationship between the president of one club and the vice president of the other precludes a partnership at team level.

Could Be Seattle Pilots

The Seattle Pilots, the American League's new expansion team which has established spring training headquarters at Tempe, may become the Giants' new spring touring partner next year.

It isn't likely the Giants would pick Charley Finley's Oakland Athletics for the tour. Finley was one of the American League owners who nixed Feeney at Chicago. And Finley's move from Kansas City to Oakland cost the Giants more than half a million dollars at the gate last season.

Palmer Stalks Barber, Devlin In Kaiser Golf

By JIM CHURCH

NAPA (AP) — Hoping to improve his putting, old pro Arnold Palmer stalked Miller Barber and Bruce Devlin today in the third round of the $135,000 Kaiser International Golf Tournament.

Barber, of Sherman, Tex., held the inside track to the $27,000 first prize after firing a five-under-par 67 yesterday, giving him a two-day total of 135, nine under par.

He was a stroke ahead of Australia's Devlin, who also shot a 67 to go with his first-round 69.

Palmer, who birdied four holes and said "it could have been a real good round with good putting," shot a 68 for a 137 total, seven under.

Barber and Palmer played Silverado's 6,849-yard north course while Devlin played the 6,602-yard south course, described by all three as having tougher greens.

The last two rounds will be played on the par 36-36—72 north course by 92 who made the cut at 145, one over par. Sixty-five broke par.

FOG, FROST

Fog and frosty greens held up more than 150 golfers for two hours yesterday.

Playing the back nine first, Barber blazed to five straight birdies, bogeyed a hole and then birdied his last. "It's easier to putt on the north course," he declared.

The first-round leader, 23-year-old Bob Lunn of Sacramento, found the rocky, rolling south course much rougher as he closed with two bogeys and wound up with a 73 to go with his earlier 67.

"I was struggling for every par," said Lunn, tied with Charles Coody of Abilene, Tex., at 138, a stroke behind Palmer.

SIFFORD FAILS

Failing to make the cut were Los Angeles Open winner Charles Sifford, who had a 74-72-146, and Alameda Open winner Dick Lotz, who shot 74-73—147.

Last year's Kaiser winner, Kermit Zarley, stayed in the running at 70-73—143.

Grier Jones of Wichita, Kan., fired a six-under-par 66 for yesterday's best round and stood at 140.

'Bad News' Just That For Warriors

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

An unscheduled jet flight carried Jim Barnes to an unhappy landing last month, but "Bad News" has bounced back to help keep the Boston Celtics off the ground.

Barnes, whose nickname backfired on him 2½ weeks ago in a freak airport mishap, returned from the injured list last night and sparked Boston to a 102-99 National Basketball Association victory over the San Francisco Warriors.

The brawny, 6-foot-8 veteran came off the bench in the fourth quarter and put in three big baskets as the third place Celtics remained one game behind Philadelphia and 1½ ahead of streaking New York in the Eastern Division race.

EXHAUSTED

Barnes had missed nine games with multiple injuries after being caught in the exhaust of a jet engine and hurled 50 feet against a steel fence.

Trailing 78-76 early in the final quarter, the Celtics tied the game on Emmette Bryant's long jump shot and went ahead on a field goal by Barnes.

Jeff Mullins dropped in a free throw for the Warriors, but Barnes scored another two-pointer. Then Mullins and Barnes each hit from the floor before Bailey Howell's three-point play gave the Celtics a decisive 87-81 lead.

Aussie Runner Cops L.A. Track Headline

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Australia's Ralph Doubell emerged as the athlete of the night in the Los Angeles Invitational Indoor meet as the winner of the 1,000-yard run in 2:07 flat, one second off the world record.

Doubell, Olympic gold medal winner in the 800 meters in 1968, put on a final burst on the final lap to out-distance Wade Bell of the Oregon Track Club, with 2:11.5.

Peter Snell of New Zealand set the indoor record of 2:06.0 here in 1962.

In a co-feature before a disappointing crowd of 8,105 in the 13,600-seat Sports Arena, last night, George Young, the Arizona school teacher from Casa Grande, came from off the pace to win the 2-mile run in 8:42.2.

John Lawson of the Pacific Coast Club, former national cross country champion from Kansas, was second in 8:42.6 to upset famed Ron Clarke of Australia, timed in 8:44.2.

Tracy Smith of the U.S. Army, who set the early pace, finished fourth in 8:45.8.

NO ALIBI

Clarke, embarking on another U.S. tour, offered no alibi but said, "I'm just not built for indoor tracks. Those turns kill me."

Other winners included Willie Davenport in the high hurdles in 7.0 flat and John Carlos in the 60-yard dash in 6.1, the same clocking for second place George Gaines, unattached but now at San Jose State.

There were several late scratches.

Pole vaulter Bob Seagren bowed out on directions of his athletic director at the University of Southern California, Jess Hill, because the meet did not have certification from the NCAA.

Long jumper Bob Beamon showed up with his right hip bandaged. He said he hurt it in the Washington, D.C., meet last week. He hopes to resume competition in a week or two.

Sprinter Charlie Greene was reported snowbound in his home at Omaha, Neb.

Big League Baseballers May Strike

NEW YORK (UPI)—The possibility of a strike by major league baseball players continues to grow day-by-day as the players and club owners get farther apart on the pension fund issue.

The pension issue remained unresolved today and the strike possibility loomed stronger after an announcement that an overwhelming 98.7 per cent of major league players have voted to reject a club owners' offer to increase the players' benefit plan by $1 million a year.

The players want a greater share of the television-radio revenue poured into the pension fund.

'MISLEADING'

A spokesman for the Major League Players Association said the vote, as of yesterday, was 6 for, 461 against. The offer had been branded as "misleading" by Marvin Miller, the players' attorney, immediately after the owners submitted the proposal last month.

He had called the benefits for each player "minute" and predicted a massive rejection.

"Negotiating meetings with owners' representatives will continue, and when an appropriate agreement is offered it will be submitted immediately by the players association to its members for a vote," a spokesman said.

Casals Wins By An Upset

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Rosemary Casals of San Francisco defeated Billie Jean King of Long Beach, today in the semifinal round of women's singles of the New South Wales Tennis Tournament and meets Margaret Smith Court for the title tomorrow.

Miss Casals, seeded sixth, eliminated Mrs. King, top ranked in the tourney, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, in a match dulled by the intense heat. It was 103 degrees in the shade at the time and officials guessed the temperature on the center court approached 120.

Later, the two American professionals combined and were defeated in the women's doubles final by Mrs. Court and Judy Tegart 15-13, 4-6, 6-3.

Atmosphere Big Factor As Cal Trims Stanford

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those who attend basketball games in Berkeley's Harmon Gymnasium might think the atmosphere could be improved. It's poorly lit, the fans sit jammed together on hard benches and the noise is unbearable.

But the friendly confines of Harmon Gym are loved by California's basketball players and coaches. The atmosphere might have been a factor in last night's 73-65 Pacific-8 basketball victory by the Golden Bears over arch rival Stanford.

Cal and Stanford were the only Pac-8 teams to see action last night. UCLA plays Houston to highlight tonight's games.

The Bears and Indians played a close first half and Cal took a 37-36 intermission lead. Don Griffin scored 17 first half points for the visitors.

But in the second half, Griffin got his fourth personal foul early and spent much time on the bench. Meanwhile, Jackie Ridgle of the Bears went to work.

The quick sophomore jumped the home team into a 12-point lead with nine minutes left. Then Griffin came back into the game and got the Indians' running attack working.

Stanford cut the Cal margin to 63-62 with four minutes to play. But California slowed the ball down and with 29 seconds to play, Ridgle iced the victory with a pair of free throws.

Ridgle wound up with 30 points. Griffin was able to score only four after halftime and wound up with 21.

Cal is now 2-1 in Pac-8 play and Stanford is 0-3.

Petaluma Trips Santa Rosa Five

Petaluma High School's quick-striking basketball Trojans, hungry for a North Bay League Section I title, kept pace with league-leading Montgomery by downing Santa Rosa High 71-59 last night.

Petaluma ran up an 18-6 first-quarter margin, moved to 37-19 at the half and coasted home, as Ross Goree led the scoring with 16 points.

Petaluma is now 3-1 won-lost in NBL I, while Montgomery of Santa Rosa, which edged the Trojans earlier this year and plays them again in Petaluma near season's end, hiked its league-leading mark to 3-0 by routing Hogan of Vallejo, 80-57. Ukiah (1-3) beat winless Vallejo (0-3) 56-37 for its first league win.

Redwood Wins Marin League's Water Polo Title

Redwood High School of Larkspur clinched the first Marin County Athletic League water polo title yesterday by routing Terra Linda 16-7 at Redwood.

John Malvino had eight goals for Redwood, taking up some of the slack as league-leader Greg Myers was held to three scores. Coach Bill Purcell's unbeaten Giants, now 10-0 on the year, got outstanding defense from Ken Levin and Dino Clinch, who held Terra Linda's Dave Newman to just two goals, four below his average. Tom Guthrie also scored twice for the Trojans.

Novato Wrestlers Down San Rafael

NFL Winds Up Long Season In 19th Pro Bowl Tomorrow

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's Pro Bowl time and a football game in which the players who have been attempting mayhem on each other for months either team up or conclude the violence until another long season rolls around.

The 19th Pro Bowl goes on tomorrow in Memorial Coliseum, featuring the East and West squads—selected stars from the Western and Eastern Conferences of the National Football League.

The publicized heroes, of course, are the quarterbacks—Don Meredith and Fran Tarkenton for the East, Earl Morrall and Roman Gabriel for the West.

The struggle may be seen on CBS television at 1 p.m., PST.

It figures to attract around 50,000 live humans if the weather remains good.

LONG SEASON

In 1959 a record 72,250 attended the game. That, of course, was before this era when the pros begin whacking each other around to the echoes of July 4th fireworks and continue, it seems, until almost Easter parade time.

Only the bravest would dare predict the winner tomorrow. Events in Miami, Fla., one week ago sent hundreds of experts underground. They have not surfaced yet. Remember the Super Bowl?

For the record, however, the West has prevailed in 11 games, the East in seven.

There will be a sudden-death playoff in the event of a tie.

The star talent is indeed deep. The starters include, for the West, Morrall, John Mackey, Tom Matte, Ken Willard and Clifton McNeil on offense. For the defense, Deacon Jones, Merlin Olsen, Dick Butkus, Tommy Nobis and Mike Curtis.

The place kickers, who might decide it all, are Sam Baker, a three-time Pro Bowler, and Bruce Gossett, in his first one.

MARIN BOWLING

Eastland, Asay Roll Top Scores

Lou Eastland and Larry Asay blasted out top scores in the 905 Classic to rule the roost in the past week of Marin County Bowling.

Eastland, bowling instructor at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, rolled games of 226, 259 and 234 for a robust 719 series on the lanes he likes best. Asay put all his pins in one basket, banging out a 279 game on nine straight strikes. He ended the evening with a 684 series.

Barbara Henderson, desk gal at Country Club Bowl, dazzled them in the Ladies 615 Classic when she rolled a 255 game on her way to a 562 series. That 255 line even had an open, a 4-6 split, preceded by four strikes and followed by five more.

PICKIN' 'EM UP — Bill Leeber, 150 average roller in the Lutheran Early Mixed at Country Club, had games of 201, 234 and 192 for a 627 series . . . Nancy Menary, the gal who heads the week's women bowlers at Country Club Bowl with that 576 series, went way over her 148 average (and yes, she's the wife of San Rafael City Attorney David Menary) . . . Jack Ecton is top man so far in the Meals for Millions Tournament with a 748 score at Greenbrae Lanes; he's followed by Eastland, 721 at Country Club and Charles Fetheroff, 712 at Nave Lanes . . . Improvement is what it's called, Gallagher's team in Tuesday Nite Owls at Nave Lanes: went from last place last year to winners of the first half this time.

THIS AND THAT — George Sumner (119 avg.) bowled his first 200, a 210 in the San Quentin Mixed Fours at Country Club . . . In the Mystery League at Nave Lanes, Joe Robinson rolled a neat 122 triplicate, Earle Swensen converted the tough 4-7-9-10 split, and Emily Smith slowly went up the ladder, 160-161-162 . . . Joan Nelson, 139 avg., had a 526 score to smile about in the Reno League . . . Farrell Pallnow was consistent — just look at that 168-169-167 in the Friday Nite Leftovers at Nave . . . Nancy McPherson was tops in the Country Club bantams, a 215 game . . . Lil Scotto was best in the Marin County Mixed Travel League at Nave Lanes, 575 series and 210 game . . . Ken Thompson went 84 plus better than he was supposed to (if you believe in averages) when he rolled that 233 line in the Mystetry League at Nave Lanes . . . Cleta Chisholm almost had that elusive 145 triplicate in the Classy Lassie League at Nave Lanes, but that darned 147 last game got in the way. Although Cleta didn't get that triplicate, what about that spread out 3-6-7-8-10 conversion she made.

WOBBLING PINS — In the Monday Washday League at Nave Lanes, Naomi Dunbar and Louise Nave each rolled even 200 games to top the scores . . . Robbie Robbiano picked up the 6-7-9 split in the Merry Mixers at Country Club Bowl . . . Cathy Pantages (141 avg.) rolled a 190-544 in the Bowlerettes at Country Club and Marge O'Neill was only two pins away from a 111 triplicate . . . In the Hi-Lo's at Country Club, Jean Joseph (141 avg.; had a 214-538, and Herbert Heublein (155 avg.) rolled a 210-555.

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

STEVENS

You remember that song, the words of which evade me at the present, that pays homage to the nonproductionary, sad but determined fishless angler, who still persists in hoping for miracles?

It must have been around 40 years ago, Bert Swanton, of Swanton's Resort on Hastings Slough, pointed out the subject of his tale: he was a little pinched-bodied fisherman as high as I and probably as many years. I wasn't introduced, so the persistent little gamester must remain incognito.

THE BIG POINT of the story is, of course, that the man fishing in the same bay-like water entering a wide area of Hastings Slough was the same man I had seen years before fishing that same spot, where he had landed a trophy striped bass of 12½ pounds, and according to Bert, had been coming back to the same area, through the intervening years, but never repeating his star performance.

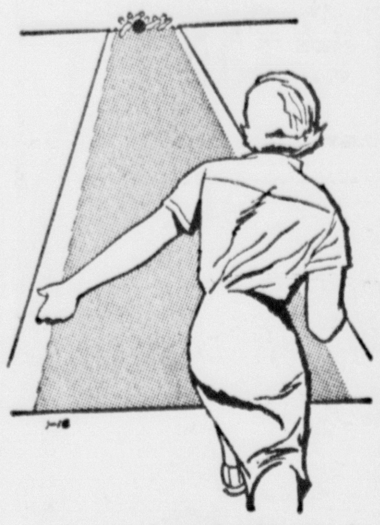
My repeating the above is not for the lesson to be taught, the wandering hop, skip, and jumping present day striped bass fisherman, but does point out the danger of the other extreme — casting your bait in the same area that had appealed to you and rewarded you on other occasions.

IT IS A WELL-KNOWN fact amongst oldtime striper strivers that given the same weather conditions, an area of say 12 square feet, fished with the same species of bait, at the same depth, and using the same aggravating tactics as the day before would, nine times out of ten, produce approximately the same results.

Whereas I had no intentions to preach a sermon, the opportunity came so evident that I followed through. If any lesson in angling emerged, after three or four readings, it was, I assure you, not accidental.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



A mark of good etiquette is to leave the foul line after the bowl with only a glance at the result of your effort. Those who stand at the foul line and "talk to themselves" will delay action on the alleys to the sides. Bowlers there can't start because they can't be sure what the girl standing at the line will do.

Pro Grid Draft Rules Set

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets, out front of the pro football pack since their Super Bowl conquest of Baltimore, will take a back seat to the Colts and 24 other clubs for two days when the National and American leagues conduct their third combined draft.

The Jets, first AFL world championship team, will be the first from their league to pick last in the Jan. 28-29 draft, which appears certain to open with the selection of Heisman Trophy winner O.J. Simpson of Southern California by the AFL Buffalo Bills.

The Bills get the No. 1 choice because they had the worst 1968 won-lost record in either league. Except for the Jets and the Colts, who pick next-to-last, all other teams will draft according to their won-lost percentages. Coin flips determined the first-round order for 10 deadlocked teams.

Previous trades have given the Colts the most selections, 22, in the 17-round draft, during which 442 players will be selected. The NFL's Los Angeles Rams will get an unprecedented three first-round choices, having acquired the top picks for Washington and Detroit via trades.

GROUND RULES

Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced the order of selection and ground rules for the draft yesterday. A 15-minute time limit per selection will be in effect in the first two rounds, with a five-minute limit thereafter. No round will be started after 9 p.m., EST, but a round will be completed once started. The same time limits were in effect last year, when the draft was completed in two days.

The Rams traded rookie quarterback Gary Beban to Washington and quarterback Bill Munson to Detroit for 1969 first-round picks.

Two other teams, San Diego of the AFL and San Francisco of the NFL, have more than one first-round selection. The Chargers acquired an additional No. 1 pick from Denver for quarterback Steve Tensi. The 49ers obtained New Orleans' first pick for receiver Dave Parks, who signed with the Saints after playing out his option at San Francisco.

The Saints still will have a first-round selection, having picked up Minnesota's in a trade for quarterback Gary Cuozzo.

Wild Night In Marin Cage League

Hornets, helped by a 27-12 third-period splurge, put it away.

McNally now has a dead-even 20-point average in three league games, just a point ahead of Terra Linda's Mike Timmel.

Redwood

Redwood wound up in Marin Catholic's lions den again, let things get warm a little then doused out the host Wildcats with a 48-point second half enroute to an 80-61 victory.

The Giants, now 2-1 in league play, led by only a point at the half, but Roger Smith and John Boro, hitting perfectly from the field, ignited the third-quarter charged and it was all over for the Wildcats.

It was Jerry Piro, however, who was the steadiest Giant of them all, spacing out 25 points to lead all scorers. Smith wound up with 12 and Boro had 15 points while Skip Corsini and Jim Peters added 10 points each.

Mike Murray led a flock of Wildcat players with 20 points.

Tamalpais

Tamalpais survived a typical early Drake start, then went on to carve out a 69-54 verdict over the Pirates to move within whispering distance of the league lead.

The Indians didn't score a point for the first three minutes and trailed 10-0 before sub Jim McCammon got them going.

They got within 30-33 at the half, then blitzed the Pirates, 39-21 in the second half to win going away.

Sharp-shooting guard Ken Gommeringer led the way with 20 points, followed by McCammon with 12, center Bill Secor with 17 points and 21 rebounds and Don Mackin with 11 points.

Fred Westcott led the pesky Pirates with 15 points while Bob MacLean chipped in with 11 points.

Rancho Cotate Loses

Rancho Cotate High School basketball team of Rohnert Park was blitzed 64-47 by Analy at Sebastopol last night, despite 22 points by ace guard Greg Woods. Rancho Cotate is now 4-7 won-lost on the year and 0-2 in North Bay League Section II.

Namath 'Sentimental' Pick

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sixty hand-picked players wound up practice today for tomorrow's American Football League All-Star Game in the Gator Bowl, with the East a sentimental favorite because of the presence of glamor quarterback Joe Namath and 10 of his world champion New York Jets teammantes.

The game, expected to be played on a dry field in 60-65 degree temperatures, will attract close to 45,000 fans. Each member of the winning team gets $1,500. To each loser goes $1,000. Jacksonville charities and the league also share in receipts.

The game will be televised by NBC starting at 11 a.m., PST.

"It figures to be an even game," said Wally Lemm of Houston, coach of the East. Hank Stram of Kansas City, the West's head man, concurred. He said a game of this kind, with the players together only one week, could go either way.

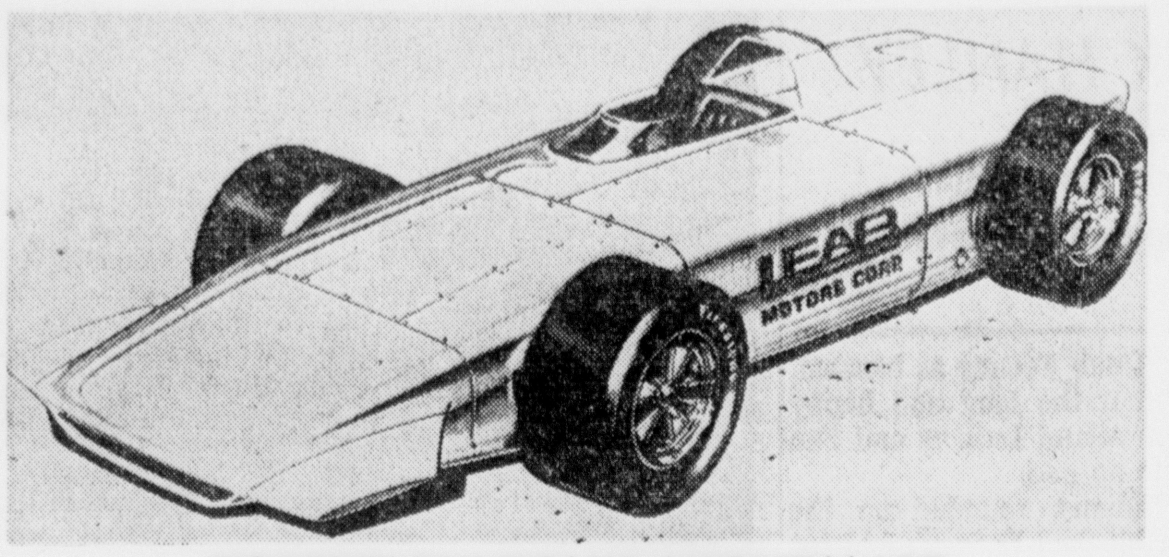
"A lot could depend on the breaks," he said.

John Hadl of San Diego, who'll start at quarterback for the West, and Namath will have familiar receivers and the game is expected to be an aerial battle. Sharing quarterbacking with Namath will be young Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins. Veteran Len Dawson of Kansas City is to take over for Hadl in the second half.

Lining up with Namath will be the Jets' two top receivers—Don Maynard and George Sauer Jr. Should he choose, Stram can place three San Diego receivers on the field with Hadl. They are Lance Alworth, Gary Garrison and tight end Jacque MacKinnon.

Failure of Matt Snell, Jets running ace in the Super Bowl, to make the East squad caused some eyebrow raising. But both teams are well fortified with runners. The West has Cincinnati's Paul Robinson, a rookie and the league leading rusher; Oakland's Hewritt Dixon and Denver's Floyd Little. The East can call on Houston's Hoyle Granger, rookie Jim Kiick of Miami and New York's Emerson Boozer.

Each team has a proven place kicker. The East has the Jets' Jim Turner, who kicked 34 field goals during the season and led the league in scoring. He booted three three-pointers in the Super Bowl. The West has Jan Stenerud of Kansas City, second only to Turner among league scorers and producer of 30 field goals.



ROBERT FULTON'S NIGHTMARE

Robert Fulton's steamboat may have been considered radical in its day, but hardly more so than industrialist-inventor William Lear's design for a steam-powered racer, which he hopes to build with the aid of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and former Indianapolis 500-mile winner Parnelli Jones and enter in this year's Memorial Day race. The 18-inch steam engine will be in the rear of the car and is expected to produce about 450 horsepower, burning white kerosene. (UPI telephoto)

A Manly New Honor For O.J.

Combined AP & UPI

The University of Southern California tailback, who set an NCAA record for ground gaining with 1,709 yards in 10 games this fall and scored 22 touchdowns, edged baseball's Denny McLain, pro football's Earl Morrall, auto racer Cale Yarborough, college basketball's Lew Alcindor, tennis player Arthur Ashe and others.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — George Kelly, line coach at University of Nebraska, has been named linebacker coach for Notre Dame.

Kelly, a non-lettering guard for the Irish in 1950-51, succeeeds Johnny Ray, the defensive whiz who resigned from head coach Ara Parseghian's staff to take over the head coaching reins at Kentucky.

PHILADELPHIA — Jerry Wolman, financially embattled owner of the Philadelphia Eagles, said he has conditionally agreed to the sale of his NFL club, reportedly to a Norristown, Pa., trucking executive.

HOCKEY

The scheduled opening game of the much-heralded series between the Russian national team and several Canadian teams was canceled as the Russian failed to arrive on time. The USSR's Olympic and World Championship team is en route after threatening to pull out of the tour last week.

BASEBALL

GLENDALE — Baseball's double-talking living legend, Casey Stengel, continues to improve in a private hospital here after surgery for a perforated peptic ulcer.

However, the 78-year-old Stengel remains in an intensive care unit due to his age. Only his wife, Edna, has been permitted to see him since the Jan. 10 operation.

BOXING

NEW YORK — The Sports Lodge of B'nai B'rith will present lightweight champion Bob Foster, who defends his title Jan. 22 against Frank DePaula, with an award for "high principle and achievement in sports" at a dinner Jan. 25.

BOWLING

TEMPE, Ariz. — Don Glover of Bakersfield won 12 of 14 match games to lead four other finalists into the final round of the Professional Bowlers' Association $45,000 Valley of the Sun Open.

Joining Glover in the finals were Don McCune of Munster, Ind.; Ralph Engan of Money, N.Y.; Dick Ritger of Hartford, Wis.; and Jimmy Mack, Grover, N.J.

Lombardi As Baseball Czar? Well, He Would Consider It

By MURRAY CHASS

NEW YORK (AP) — Vince Lombardi, whose Green Bay Packers won pro football's first two Super Bowls, said yesterday he'd consider taking the job of baseball commissioner if it were offered to him.

At the same time, however, Lombardi showed that his loyalty still lay with the National Football League, hesitatingly picking the Baltimore Colts if there were a rematch of their Super Bowl clash with the New York Jets.

Lombardi, now general manager of the Packers, stressed that no one from baseball has contacted him about the vacancy in the commissioner's office, but, he added:

"I think I would have to listen to an offer. I'm a football man, certainly. But if they thought enough of me to ask, I'd owe it to them to listen. I'd owe it to myself to listen."

Lombardi made the remarks to Howard Cosell in a television interview for ABC's Wide World of Sports.

After sitting through approximately three hours of taping a 20-minute segment, Lombardi said he believes the rumors about him and the baseball job started with some baseball players.

The main topic of the show, however, was the Super Bowl. When he was asked which team he would pick if the game were played over, the Packer boss started to say, "I'd have to say . . .," then made a lengthy pause before adding:

". . . The Colts but not nearly the overwhelming favorites. I'm sure the Colts would play a different kind of game."

Then he paused again and said, "I'd hesitate to say who would win."

Lombardi also was asked the significance of the Jets' 16-7 victory, the first Super Bowl triumph for the American League over the National.

"This is good for football," he said. "As much as I didn't like it immediately after the game —I had some doubts about what it did for football—in retrospect I have to say it's good for football over-all.

"With the common draft, the leagues are getting closer and closer. That and they're getting tradition. I'm a great believer in tradition. The Packers, for example, have been around for 50 years. The American Football League has been around for nine years now.

SOME HISTORY

"They're beginning to get some history, and they're beginning to get some tradition. This is really important to a team and the players.

Speaking of the Jets, the Packer boss added:

"Weeb Ewbank did an outstanding job getting his team ready to play against the Colts. I'm not just talking about the game plan or the football part of it. He had them ready mentally. Seventy-five per cent of the game is mental—how you feel the day of the game. He had them ready."

Big Sales At Sports, Boat Show

A 55-foot, $70,000 Chris Craft Constellation twin-cabin cruiser, sold by Chester Shumate of Seaway Marine of San Rafael, is among the largest sales reported so far at the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show.

With more than an estimated one million dollars in sales already on the dotted line, dealers and manufacturers at the 27th annual event are concluding that an all-time sales record will be reached by tomorrow, final day of the Cow Palace exposition.

Boats ranging in price from less than $2,000 to more than $50,000 have been sold thus far.

"There's a much bigger crowd this year, and the people seem to have more money in their pockets," said Les Warren of Aloha Boat Sales, San Jose. Warren reported the sale of five 24-foot Venture sailboats the first two days of the show.

Noel Mackay, western regional manager for Trojan, reported the sale of four boats totaling more than $50,000.

Another $50,000 plus sale was reported by Ken Baker, president and sales manager for Las Vegas Boats of Los Altos.

"This is the very first time our Las Vegas line has ever been shown; in fact, we haven't even shipped any boats to our dealers. Yet, we made 14 sales on Sunday alone."

Though sales were high, prospects for the entire year seemed to be even greater, according to Bruce Barndt, local distributor for Owen's Yachts.

A record 152,153 persons attended the opening weekend of the colorful exposition, which features more than 500 exhibits filled with the latest in fishing, hunting, camping and other outdoor sports equipment.

Ho-Hum, Rangers Top Seals Again

OAKLAND (AP) — The New York Rangers dealt the fifth beating of the season in as many tries to the Oakland Seals last night, hanging on for a 3-1 victory before a crowd of 4,982.

Phil Goyette, Ranger center who figured in all three New York scores, opened the firing with a fast shot past Seal goalie Gary Smith at 1:03 in the first period, taking a rebound from defenseman Brad Park who had intercepted a Seal pass and missed the net. A minute before the first period ended Don Marshall scored. The second period was scoreless.

Bill Hicke flipped in a five-footer for Oakland at 4:35 in the third period, and Oakland put the pressure on New York goalie Norm Ferguson. But the Rangers wrapped it up at 15:12 with a screened 30-foot shot by defenseman Rod Siegling.

Sonoma Staters Beaten By Davis

Sonoma State's Cossacks, hampered by the suspension of leading scorer Ramon Solomon, took it on the chin from defending Far West Conference basketball champion Cal-Davis 85-69 last night.

The Aggies, who share the league lead and favorite's role with San Francisco State's Gators, were paced by Bob Johnson with 19 points as five men hit double figures. With Solomon suspended for missing practice, the Cossacks were led by Ron Trujillo's 21 markers. The game was played at Sonoma's Rohnert Park home

Catholic Views Change

By LOUIS CASSELS
(UPI Religious Writer)

The Roman Catholic Church is by a wide margin the largest religious body in the United States and in the world.

It has 47 million adherents in the United States, more than 600 million in the world. By comparison the largest U.S. Protestant denomination (Southern Baptist Convention) has 11 million members and the world Protestant population is about 250 million—less than half the Catholic total.

Statistics attesting to Catholic numerical supremacy are less disturbing to Protestants today than they were a few years ago. The ancient church of Rome, which once seemed impervious to change, has undergone such sweeping changes in the past decade that some of its members are complaining they hardly recognize it any more.

One of the fruits of this 20th Century reformation has been an entirely new attitude toward Protestants. Previously they were schismatics and heretics. Now they are "separated brethren."

There also is a new Catholic attitude on religious liberty spelled out officially by the Vatican Council in one of its most important decrees. The Roman church in centuries past held that "error has no rights"—the implication being that governments should tolerate "heretical" sects only to the extent that it was politically expedient. The Vatican Council laid down the doctrine that freedom of religious choice is a God-given right which must never be contravened by any government of state-supported church.

Thus, after 500 years of cold war, Catholics and Protestants are finally co-existing peacefully, and through the ecumenical movement are even making the first tentative moves toward drawing together.

In spite of the dramatic—not to say miraculous — improvement in relations within the Christian family, there still is a widespread tendency for Protestants to think of Roman Catholicism as an entirely different religion. And many Catholics continue to speak of Protestantism as though it were as alien to their own faith as Shintoism.

There are differences — real, stubborn, important ones. But, in the words of the Rev. Hans Kung, "What unites Catholics and Protestants is incomparably more vast than what separates them."

The greatest bond is that both profess Jesus Christ as lord and saviour. Both also affirm the incarnation, the atonement and the resurrection. Both acknowledge the continuing presence of the Holy Spirit in the Christian community. Both look upon the Bible as a divinely inspired book through whose pages the authentic word of God can be heard afresh by every generation.

Both believe in the forgiveness of sins, the efficacy of baptism, the power of prayer, and the promise of everlasting life to those who place their trust in Christ.

It is only in the context of this enormous body of common faith that Catholic-Protestant differences can be discussed without giving them disproportionate importance.

OTHER BELIEFS

The most basic difference concerns authority in the church. Catholics believe that Jesus entrusted the apostles, and particularly their leader, Peter, with plenary power over the church.

They believe further that this power has passed down to the duly consecrated bishops of every generation who are successors to the apostles. With supreme authority residing in the Pope, as Peter's successor as bishop of Rome.

And they believe that the Holy Spirit so guides the pope and his fellow bishops as to make it impossible for them to fall into error when making formal pronouncements on essential matters of faith and morals.

THE DOCTRINE

That, in a nutshell, is the Catholic doctrine of hierarchial authority and infallibility. It is, of course, a doctrine which Protestants have repudiated since the time of Martin Luther. Following Luther's lead, Protestantism acknowledges only one ultimate authority on matters of doctrine—the Holy Scriptures.

Catholics also differ conspicuously from Protestants in their attitude toward the mother of Jesus. The Virgin Mary is seldom mentioned in most Protestant churches except at Christmas time. But she plays a very large role in Catholic devotions. Prayers are addressed to Mary in the believe that she will intercede with her son on behalf of the petitioner.

To emphasize Mary's importance as the human vehicle of the incarnation, and to underscore her elevated status in heaven, the Roman church has affirmed that she was "immaculate" (sinless) from the moment of her conception in her mother's womb, and that upon her death she was "assumed" body and soul into heaven so that she did not suffer the corruption of flesh which is the common fate of ordinary mortals.

These beliefs—both of which have been promulgated within the past 115 years as infallible dogma—are rejected by Protestants who find no warrant for them in scripture.

PRAYERS TO SAINTS

Catholics pray to a multitude of officially designated saints in addition to Mary, seeking their heavenly intercession. The Roman church teaches that each human soul is judged at the time of death and, depending upon the presence or absence of "sanctifying grace," is consigned to heaven, to hell or to purgatory, an in-between realm where sinners undergo "temporal punishment" to cleanse them of sin and prepare them for the perfect holiness of heaven.

Christians on earth, it is held, can invoke the assistance of saints in heaven in procuring release of suffering souls from purgatory.

In effect, the accounts of the souls in purgatory are balanced by placing to their credit some of the virtues which the saints have on deposit in heaven's "treasury of merits."

Protestantism rejects both veneration of saints and the idea of purgatory.

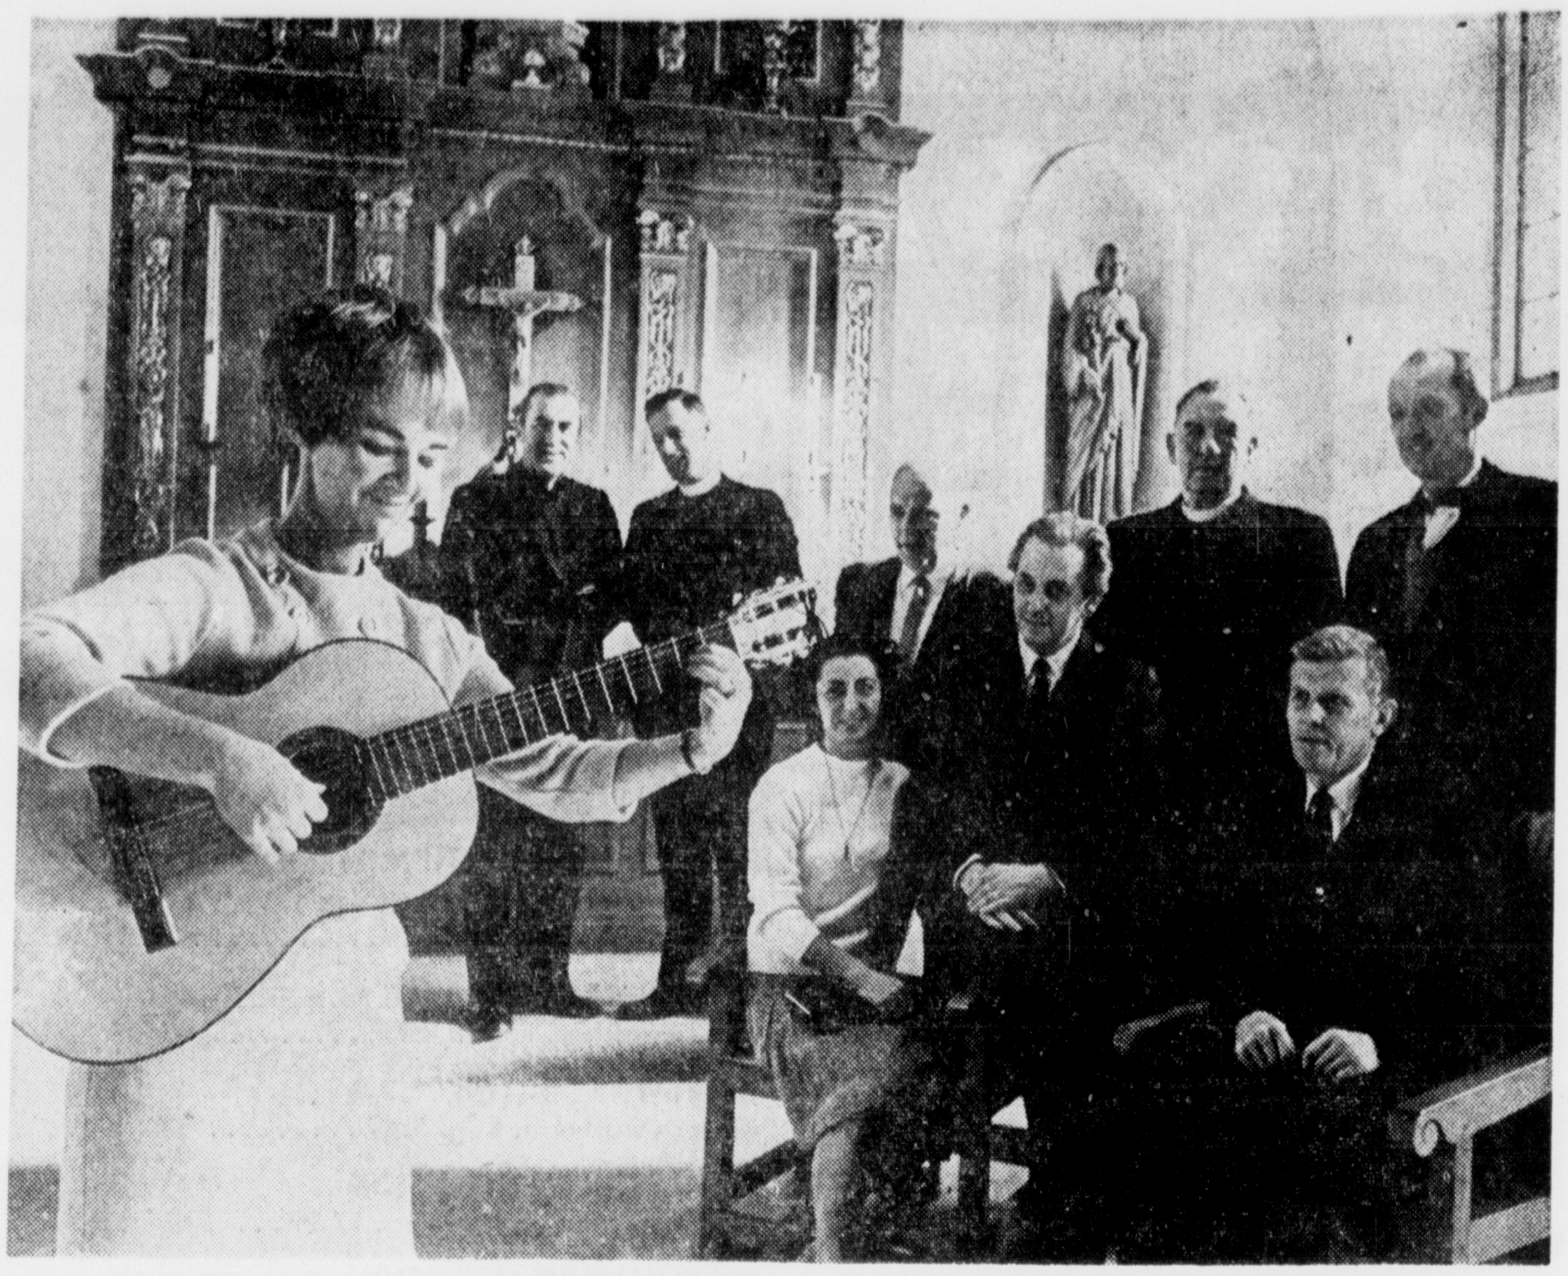
STORMY PERIOD

The Catholic Church is going through a stormy period at present. Discordant sounds arise on one hand from progressives outraged by Pope Paul's birth control encyclical, and on the other from traditionalists shaken up by Vatican Council reforms such as the change from Latin to English in the Mass.

Some devoted Catholics fear the result of these roiling internal dissensions may bring a major schism or widespread defections.

What the future holds, only time will tell. But the past indicates that this ancient and incredibly durable institution will come through this time of trial as it has so many others in the past years.

Next week: The Lutherans.



SPECIAL UNITY WEEK ENTERTAINMENT

Barbara Riordan gives a preview of the folk guitar mass to ministers and directors connected with San Rafael's Christian Unity Week which begins at 7:30 p.m. today with opening services at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth and E streets. Special services will be held throughout the week, climaxing with a dinner on the Dominican College campus next Saturday. The folk mass will be held at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at St. Raphael's and will feature 20 additional guitar players. In the background (left to right) are Rev. Hugh Hardin, St. Paul's Episcopal Church; Francis R. Smith, co-chairman of the week's events; Rev. Arthur Nitz, Trinity Lutheran Church, and Dr. Philip Whitmer, First Methodist Church. Seated (left to right) Helen Smith, co-chairman with her husband of unity week; Rev. Henry Kent St. Luke Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Charles Griffin, First Presbyterian Church.

FIRST OF JUNE

St. Columba's Vicar To Resign

Rev. Francis W. Read, vicar of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness since 1960, this week announced he will retire from the active ministry in June.

Read, at 65, is one of the senior clergy in the Episcopal Diocese of California in which he transferred in 1947 from the Diocese of Los Angeles.

Besides his duties at St. Columba's he holds membership in the Diocesan Council and the Committee on Canons.

His former charges in the diocese include St. Stephen's in San Luis Obispo and St. Matthias at Seaside. In connection with these two churches, he served as rural dean of Monterey and San Luis Obispo.

During World War II, he served as an Army chaplain, seeing duty with the Seventh Division in the Aleutian and Marshall Islands campaigns.

Before his ordination 30 years ago, he practiced law in Los Angeles, receiving his degree from the University of California at Berkeley. He received his training for the ministry at the Yale School of Divinity, New Haven, Conn.

Following his retirement Read will become associated with the American Church Union at Pelham Manor, N.Y., and will assist with the publications of the American Church Theological Quarterly and the American Church News. His final service at St. Columba's will be on Trinity Sunday, June 1.

Mill Valley Minister Will Take School Sabbatical

Rev. D. Murray Hammond, rector of the Episcopal Church of Our Savior in Mill Valley, will depart Monday on a five-month sabbatical leave to study at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass.

Hammond has been awarded a Proctor Fellowship and will participate in the special program for the retraining of clergymen who have been in the field several years.

He will take courses in theology as it relates to decision making, authority, group and individual freedom and how groups and communities make decision. He will study at the Episcopal Theological School, Harvard Divinity School and Harvard University.

Accompanying Hammond on the leave will be his wife, Muriel, and their three children, David, 16, Christopher, 14, and Teresa, 12. The family will rent a home in Arlington, Mass.

Rev. Paul Evans of Mill Valley, editor of Western Collector, a magazine for antique dealers, will assume Hammond's duties until he returns June 15.

TO LECTURE — Gordon F. Campbell of Santa Monica, who is currently on a state tour as a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will talk at 3 p.m. tomorrow at San Rafael High School auditorium under sponsorship of the First Church of Christ Scientist of San Rafael.

Confession Boxes Held Out Of Date

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — There is no good reason why Catholics should have to go into cramped "confession boxes" to receive the sacrament of penance.

So says the liturgical commission of the Catholic diocese of Wilmington, Del.

In a booklet bearing the endorsement of Bishop Thomas J. Mardaga, the commission suggests that new or renovated Catholic churches provide comfortable rooms, "adequately heated and ventilated," for penitents and confessors.

"Some Catholics are increasingly dissatisfied with the quality of their experience in receiving the sacrament of penance," the booklet states.

"Their experience of the conventional confession booth is forbidding and frustrates their desire to be helped by a candid dialogue with the priest, because of the semi-darkness, because of the total visual separation of priest and penitent, and because kneeling is the only possible posture.

"In order to make it possible for people to more fruitfully receive the sacrament of penance, small rooms rather than confessionals are preferable.

"Such a room should have natural lighting and be adequately heated and ventilated."

PULPIT GUEST — Dr. David Noel Freedman, professor of Hebrew and Old Testament literature at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will be guest preacher at the 10 a.m. services tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo.

Evangelistic Mission Set

Rev. Agnar S. Tanner, staff member of the Commission on Evangelism of the American Lutheran Church, Minneapolis, will begin a four-day preaching mission tomorrow at the Marin Lutheran Church in Corte Madera.

"The Wonder of These Days," will be the general theme of the mission. He will speak tomorrow at 8:30 and 11 a.m. and each evening, through Wednesday, at 8 p.m.

A parish pastor for many years, Tanner has served congregations in the Midwest and at Pasadena, and Brooklyn, N.Y.

90-Year-Old Priest Tackles Major Issues

VERSAILLES, Ky. (AP)—"Disobedience and the like starts in the home and it goes out into church life and civic life," says a 90-year-old retired Catholic priest.

"Today, you have more obedient parents than you have obedient children," Rt. Rev. Msgr. Herbert F. Hillenmeyer said in an interview.

Hillenmeyer, a priest for 66 years, has retired from a Fort Thomas, Ky., pastorate to become chaplain of a nursing home here, but his interest in the world's problems still is keen.

In rapid succession, he expounded his views on such controversial topics as the Pope's encyclical on birth control, civic disobedience and delinquency.

"The Holy Father's pronouncement was nothing new," Hillenmeyer said, "just a reaffirmation of the general attitude of the church."

Priests' rebellion against the edict, like other problems facing the modern world, stem from a lack of obedience and a decreasing amount of charity in the world, Hillenmeyer believes.

"There is still charity in the world. I don't say it is devoid of charity, but it's growing less and less and less," he said.

Hillenmeyer said it is easier to understand "the laity, at lease some of them," rejecting the Pope's stand against birth control, but he thinks it shocking that priests would rebel.

"Years ago, a priest rebelling against the authority of the bishop, why that was an unheard of thing...

"I look at it this way: whatever I have as a priest to administer the sacraments, I have from the church. The church doesn't owe me anything, but I owe the church a whole lot."

The spirit of disobedience and rebellion on college campuses and in the streets also confounds the priest.

"I don't say in regard to young people that there aren't some points they're fighting for that aren't worth consideration, but their attitude of rebellion-...is just beyond me," he said.

Then there is the increase in recent years of priests leaving the church, many of them because Catholic doctrine forbids the clergy to marry.

"You have to remember that the Lord chose 12 apostles—he handpicked them...and even our blessed Lord had one traitor among his 12.

"These men who kick over their traces, why when they became priests they weren't drugged into it. They knew the responsibility and the condition," he said.

All of these problems, he added, stem from early home life.

"You just ask the sisters who teach in the schools. They'll tell you how much easier it was to teach children 25-30 years ago than today."

In earlier days, he added, children did what they were told. "They may have pouted a little bit, but their pouting didn't amount to much."

This lack of early training, he said, leads to breaking of laws, including such incidents like "I saw in the paper the other day where someone broke into a school and destroyed all kinds of things.

"Years ago, I don't say people didn't break in places, but when they did, at least there was a reason. They wanted to steal some money or something else.

"But to break into a school just to destroy it, well, I don't know what it's coming to.."

CHURCH PLANS 'SPACE RACE' ACTIVITIES

With the course still uncharted, the Christian Church of San Rafael, will begin a "race to space," beginning with tomorrow's services, and continuing through April 6.

According to Rev. Charles Boman, minister, said, "The race will send the Christian Church into a realm yet unknown — an unknown area of spiritual and physical growth."

The church membership will be divided into two teams — Apollo and Gemini. The targets will be "to be more like Christ" (spiritually) and to break the Bible school record (the physical factor), Boman added.

go to the snow

All about snow sports and resorts . . . where to go, what to do . . . what to wear . . . a snowfall of ideas from the I-J and Marin's leading snow sports and apparel stores.

Jack Lucey '69

ADVANCED AMATEURS are fussy about the skis they use and often spend hours testing for flexibility, size and other qualities before making a selection. Here Rick Herrmann and Georgia Wandtke examine the supply at the Ski Shack in San Rafael. Miss Wandtke is wearing the latest in "ice cream" snow attire, with after-ski boots to match.

Marin Shops Stock Best In Ski Gear

They'll Supply Equipment, Clothes And Information

By HARRY CRAFT

Many of America's four million skiers have already been enthusiastically testing mountain slopes and snow packs for the past month.

Others, caught up in the usual sequence of events over the holidays, may just now be finding time to buy new equipment or the latest in ski plumage, to make reservations at a resort or to scan the Sierra in search of a modest hill with "sitzmarks" that is within easy weekend driving distance.

When skiing first got its start in the 1800s, basic equipment generally consisted of rugged 12-foot skis with leather toe straps or homemade birch bindings, and a long, stout pole used as a combination brake, rudder and bumper.

Today, depending on how new you are to skiing or how advanced, there is a wide range of gear available to make the sport more pleasurable — from complete, low-cost packages to special skis for deeply powdered slopes.

The occasional skier more than likely will find it easier on his pocketbook to rent whatever equipment he needs for occasional winter forays and leave the buying to the highly skilled, the more dedicated and the professionals.

Marin County stores are able to equip just about everyone for this highly popular sport — novices, advanced amateurs and boomers, as well as the housewives, working girls and entire families that now invade snow areas with gay abandon. Almost all specialty stores have rental departments and several are wells of information on the best slopes.

THE SKI SHACK on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael has added a few items to its shelves this season. New here are the L-21 Northland skis and also Zebra and Volkl fiberglass skis. The store continues to handle the Attenhofer, Erbacher and Hart lines.

It has also expanded into fur parkas in a number of price brackets — up to Hudson seal quality.

The Ski Shack has large stocks of rental items — as large as its stocks for sale — ski pants, jackets, parkas, boots, ski racks, tire chains, toboggans and "saucers" for the youngsters. Records of customers' sizes and specifications are kept for their convenience in reordering for their next snow trip. Check here also for weather and snowfall conditions at the resorts.

BATTENS AND BOARDS on the Bridgeway, Sausalito, has added the new Voit fiberglass skis to its lines, which also include Head, Fisher and Rossingol.

Stocks include ski poles, hats, boots (a special here is Lange Boots), ski racks, ski pants, jackets, mittens and boot trees. Large inventories of children's sizes are carried. And the store handles rentals as well as sales.

THEN THERE ARE the well known Stan's Ski Shops, with stores in San Rafael, Strawberry and Novato — extensively stocked with skis, toboggans and sleds, clothing and other gear for the snow. Both rentals and sales are handled.

THIS YEAR, the A to Z Rental Center on Jacoby Street, San Rafael, has added a line of skis, poles, toboggans and tire chains to its rental equipment.

The A to Z Center in Mill Valley does not have this equipment, but may open such a department next year. I checked, too, with Davis Rents in San Rafael. But except for tire chains, no snow equipment is rented there.

DEPARTMENT STORES are always a source of winter wear. Check out the Emporium (it also has a complete children's ski package this year) and other Northgate stores and Macy's in downtown San Rafael. Scandinavian Designs in San Rafael has a sale on imported sweaters, great for the ski country.

Remember that Disco (formerly known here as Disco Wonderworld and before that as MAC-Disco) now has two stores in Marin — the one on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, and the more recently opened store in Larkspur. Clothing shelves are stocked with warm wear for the snow country and the sporting goods department handles skis, boots, goggles, boot-trees, mittens, socks, pants and jackets.

MARIN SURPLUS STORE in San Rafael usually carries mittens, ski socks, after-ski boots, knit caps and face masks, pile-lined waterproof caps, sweaters, ski and snow jackets and parkas.

No skis or poles are sold, but the store does have "bear paw" snowshoes this year, as well as sleeping bags and tents for the snow, if you are devoted to roughing it.

BOTH THE mail order stores, Montgomery Ward and Sears and Roebuck Co., continue to feature snow gear in their fall and winter catalogs. Automobile supply stores have ski chains, which you may as well buy if you make many high country trips.

Check your local drugstore for those sundry aids to complexion and skin comfort in cold weather such as lotions for snow and sunburn protection, skin refreshers, snow tan aids and preparations against chapped lips.

While I haven't checked the used good stores — Goodwill, Salvation Army Store, Sunny Hills Bargain Box and St. Vincent de Paul — there is a rapid turnover on these shelves and snow gear of some sort frequently appears. Check the Independent-Journal want ads, too.

IF YOU NEED transportation to the winter resorts, there are several automobile rental agencies in Marin.

Newest one to open here is an office of Budget Rent-A-Car System in the Greyhound bus depot, San Rafael. For holiday weekends in the snow, cars are being equipped with ski racks and chains without extra charge.

NEW THIS YEAR is Huski Ski Club, Inc., P.O. Box 4267, San Rafael, which undertakes 12 Saturday trips for juveniles to the ski country during the season. Instruction is given, along with several supervised programs.

Ernest E. Gray of Lucas Valley is director of the ski school and is certified as an instructor by the Far West Ski Association. His wife Suzanne is general manager of the club.

Another activity of Huski is handling snow tours for adult groups on a one-day or weekly basis, including all ski arrangements, transportation and accommodations.

WINTER SPORTS — FUN AND BIG BUSINESS, TOO

Skiing is not only a lot of fun, but it is also big business.

This year an estimated two and a half million people will ski in California, spending more then 14 million hours in schussing and slaloming over snow-covered slopes.

They'll also spend millions of dollars in equipping themselves for the sport.

Those dollars go for everything from goggles and bindings to lift tickets and lodgings.

To outfit himself, the skier will probably spend a minimum of $130. And on the mountain, he will dig into his wallet again.

A typical weekend at a ski area will cost anywhere from $40 to $100, not including transportation. And the average distance traveled by a Californian to reach a ski site is 198 miles.

A Bank of America study showed that a majority of California skiers fall in the $6,500 to $10,000 income category, although about a fourth earn between $10,000 and $15,000.

Not the most inexpensive pastime, skiing contributes heavily to the California economy, not just at the resorts but in cities well removed from the snow country as well. Sporting goods stores and departments in towns that have never seen snow still stock and sell skis, poles and all the other apparatus that the skier crams into and on top of his car, before departing for the colder climes.

It's A Good Way To Enjoy The Snow Often And In Comfort

By RALPH CHATOIAN

"Love of skiing and a good way to get to the snow" is the often heard answer when you ask a member of a ski club why he joined the group.

Some clubs travel by bus and others by automobile caravan, but the objective is usually the same — to get to the snow often for some skiing.

Many clubs in Marin County are for high school-age members, with four of the high schools having their own official ski clubs for students.

SAN RAFAEL High School's ski club has between 60 and 80 members with about 40 making each trip to the snow. Because of the heavy demand for reservations when the club travels, the list of the lucky is determined on a first-come, first-served basis, according to Sue-Ann Joy, adviser for the club.

President of the club is Debbie Noble, assisted by Jennifer Hoyt. The trips are limited to one-day outings, with parents and sometimes members of the Parent-Teachers Association accompanying the teen-agers as chaperones. The club conducts cake sales and other functions throughout the school year to help pay the expenses of the ski trips.

The club plans a minimum of four trips this year, said Mrs. Joy. The schedule calls for travel to Dodge Ridge and Alpine.

NOVATO HIGH School Ski Club has about 50 members and has plans for two or possibly three trips to the snow this season. Trips by the Novato group usually are to Squaw Valley or Tahoe City.

Carolyn Barnato, club adviser, said the club in the past has chartered buses for the trips, but this year will use private automobiles to cut expenses.

It's the third year for the club, which is headed this year by Nelson Brinckerhoff. Linda Parker is vice president and treasurer.

THE TAMALPAIS Ski Club at that Mill Valley high school is one of the older high school ski organizations in Marin. There are about 30 members. Students Rocky Nilan, Pat Bowen, Dennis Lippitt, Howie Ortman, and Bill Everts head the group, the adviser is Gretchen Hoskins.

The club charters buses for weekend excursions to the mountains with plans this year calling for trips to Sugar Bowl, Shasta and Alpine.

Teachers who like to ski accompany the club members on the overnight trips.

REDWOOD HIGH School Ski Club planned four trips to the snow for after the Christmas holidays. Girls physical education teacher Myrna Reed is the club's adviser. It is the 10th year she has supervised the group.

The 38 members of the coeducational club have passed ski tests to earn their places in the group. Tests were taken during past trips. Non-club members can make the trip with the club and then while there take a skiing test to qualify for club membership. This gives the student priority when there are more interested students than accommodations for the trip.

Friday through Sunday trips are planned for Heavenly Valley, Sugar Bowl and Mount Rose, said Mrs. Reed. The club hopes to be able to engage in races with other high school ski clubs this year.

THE NORTH Bay Ski Club is made up of high school students from Marin County, but is not an official club of any one school. It is headed this year by Matt Silverman as president. Vice president is Vic Goldberg and secretary is Lorena Smith.

The club, which holds its meetings at the Ski Shack at 521 Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael, has plans for five weekend trips this season. Destinations include Heavenly Valley, Alpine, Squaw Valley and Sugar Bowl.

Membership now stands at about 50, said Silverman. He emphasized that the club is open to all high school students. Adult chaperones accompany the members on snow trips, Silverman said.

The club was started six years ago by Betty Sundborg, then a student at San Rafael High School.

THE MARIN Ski Club is for adults and the membership is limited to 80. About 75 per cent of the members live in Marin County with the other 25 per cent coming from communities elsewhere in the Bay Area.

The club has its own cabin at Soda Springs, which is only two miles from the ski runs at Sugar Bowl. And "own" is a very apt description, since the A-frame cabin was built and designed by club members as a club project.

Brian Wittenkeller of San Anselmo is president of the club this year. His officers include Cliff Moder of Sleepy Hollow, vice president; Paul Bauman of San Francisco, second vice president; Phylis Watterworth of Mill Valley, secretary; Phil Garrow of Belvedere, treasurer; Martha Smith of San Francisco, recording secretary, and Bill Mann of Terra Linda, lodge manager.

Other key positions in the club this year are filled by Louise Ginsberg of San Anselmo, social chairman; Scott Watterworth of Mill Valley, racing chairman; Judy Smith of San Rafael, membership chairman, and Clare Stevens of Mill Valley, historian.

In addition to the regular trips to the cabin this year, members of the Marin Ski Club have planned longer trips to Alta, Utah, and Jackson Hole, Wyo.

THE MOGUL Ski Club is based in San Francisco, but has members from throughout the Bay Area, including Marin County. It is open to boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 17 and is designed to give youngsters an opportunity to develop skiing techniques safely and correctly. The lessons are given by accredited professional ski instructors.

The program includes one-day trips on weekends to Northern California areas such as Squaw Valley, Alpine Meadows and Boreal Ridge. Trips are on chartered buses, with pick-up stations throughout the Bay Area.

Representative centers of the Mogul Ski Club in Marin County are at the three Stan's for Sports locations — Mill Valley, San Rafael and Novato.

For the more advanced young skiers, there is also a Team Mogul Squaw Valley Racers group for competitive racing.

ANOTHER SKI club for youngsters is the Huski Ski Club, a San Rafael-based club which is in its first year. Suzie Gray is general manager of the club, and her husband, Ernie, a Far West Ski Association certified instructor, heads the Huski Ski School.

The club is for youngsters 9 through 18, with a schedule of trips to Alpine Meadows and Boreal Ridge already under way.

Wanda Stratford of Lucas Valley is community representative for the club. She said the club is divided into three divisions — Huski Ski Club, Huski Junior Leaders and Huski Racers.

The junior leader program is for youths 15 to 18 and trains them in basic ski procedures designed to prepare them for junior ski patrols or to qualify them as apprentice instructors.

COLLEGE OF Marin Ski Club has 30 members this semester, with plans for about five or six trips to the show this season. The club had its first trip over the Christmas holidays to Heavenly Valley.

Adviser is Frank Kalmar, food service manager at College of Marin. He said more trips to Heavenly Valley are planned, with a possible trip to Dodge Ridge squeezed in. The trips are usually for two and sometimes three days.

Loren Bruck is president of the club this semester. Other officers are Larry Nelson, vice president; Baily Stroum, treasurer, and Jean Sassani, secretary. New officers will take over for the spring semester, starting Feb. 10.

Kalmar said the club is thinking about organizing a ski patrol team that would be a chapter of the United States national organization.

Tahoe Townhouses With Skier Appeal

Frontage on beautiful Lake Tahoe would seem in itself to be a sufficient selling point for any residential development.

But important as its waterfront locale is to McKinney's Landing, set amid pines and firs on the north shore of Tahoe at Brockway, Calif., its developer, W. Bruce Shafer of Sausalito, says that a good 60 per cent of the buyers and potential buyers list its proximity to skiing as their principal or prominent attraction.

The Landing, with 15 luxurious mountain homes now completed and another 10 to be finished by July 1, is but five minutes from Ski Incline, 10 minutes from Mount Rose, 20 minutes from Squaw Valley and Alpine Meadows.

Purchasers whose interests lie in winter-time occupation have the opportunity of then renting their vacation homes at high rents to others whose recreation preferences lie in such warmer weather pursuits as boating, swimming, fishing and golf. (One four-bedroom, two and a half bath home was rented for $450 for one week during the recent holidays by its absent owners.)

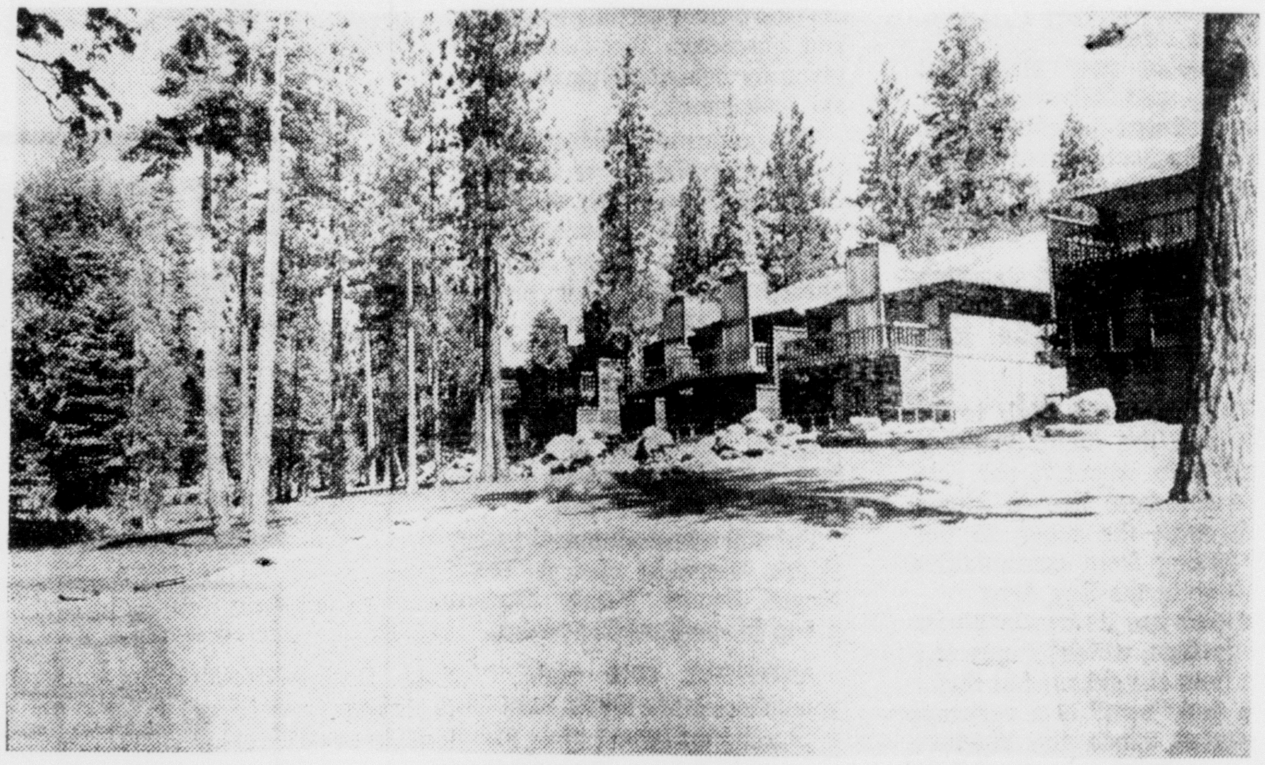
The McKinney's Landing units are constructed in contemporary townhouse style and are priced at from $39,500 to $55,000.

Faradg Gilan-Farr of San Anselmo was the designer.

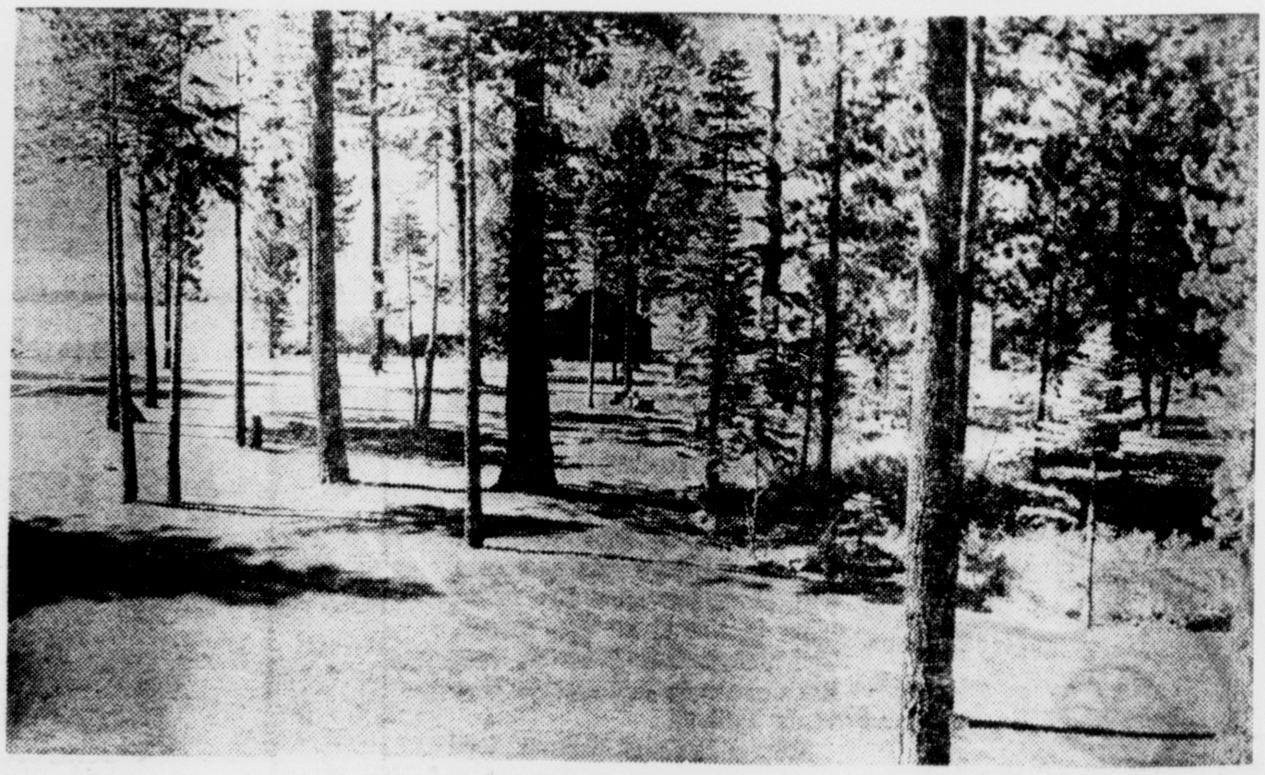
There are four different floor plans of three and four bedrooms, and from one and a half to three baths.

Appropriate to the ski country locale are the fireplaces of Feather River travertine that help to warm each of the townhouses.

THE ELEGANT TOWNHOUSES designed for developer W. Bruce Shafer of Sausalito by Faradg Gilan-Farr of San Anselmo for his McKinney's Landing development on Lake Tahoe's north shore are in an attractive contemporary style that blends well with the wooded surroundings. This is a front view. Occupants have only to hop in their cars in the winter months and within minutes they can reach any one of several major ski resort areas.



THIS REAR VIEW of the McKinney's Landing townhouses at Brockway, Calif., shows also the stand of pines and firs that add beauty to the site. Each buyer receives a grant deed to his individual lot, plus membership in a non-profit corporation that jointly owns the common areas.



THE COMMON AREA jointly owned by the McKinney's Landing townhouse occupants consists of a stately grove that reaches to the Lake Tahoe waterfront. There, a 225-foot pier and a 100-foot beach are reserved for the exclusive use of the owners of the Landing.

Make Sure Your Car Is Ready

The California State Automobile Association has issued the following winter driving tips for persons who plan to drive in skiing country.

To prepare for the snow, completely winterize your car by doing the following:

1. Add anti-freeze to your radiator to prevent cracking of the radiator and engine block during sub-freezing weather. Add a special solution to your windshield-washer reservoir to keep it in operation.

2. Use winter-grade lubricants for easier morning starts in cold weather.

3. Take along chains, chain tighteners, repair links and a tarp (which will keep you dry while installing or removing chains).

4. Be sure you have a flashlight and flares.

5. Carry a tow chain to use if your car gets "snowbound."

6. Keep an ice scraper in the glove compartment (it's the only thing that seems to clear a windshield of ice and snow on a cold morning).

7. Transport your skis in a closed trunk or on a sturdy, well-attached ski rack on the outside of the car. Use a lock on your ski rack. Skis inside the car or on an open trunk can be hazardous.

WHEN DRIVING on snow and ice to start if traction is poor:

Start your car in a higher gear than usual on slick roads where traction is poor. (Start in "drive" with an automatic transmission.) Accelerate carefully — just enough to keep the engine from stalling.

Avoid spinning the wheels. Ease along slowly until traction is good.

WATCH THE air temperature:

Many winter accidents happen because so few drivers know that skidding in the snow and ice is more likely to occur when the temperature is at the freezing point or slightly above than on hard frozen ice. When ice is wet or melting because of rising temperature, it can take twice as long to stop than when the temperature is below freezing.

Remember to cut your speed by half or more when driving on barely frozen or thawing ice. Watch for icy patches on bridges, underpasses, hills, northerly slopes, and shady patches of the road.

Be sure you haven't accumulated too much slush-ice under the fenders. If the slush freezes solid, the trapped front wheels make it impossible to steer.

When parking, it's a good idea to park the car in gear, rather than using the emergency brake. Slush accumulated while driving can freeze around the cables or rear brake shoes while the car is parked overnight, thus locking the emergency brake.

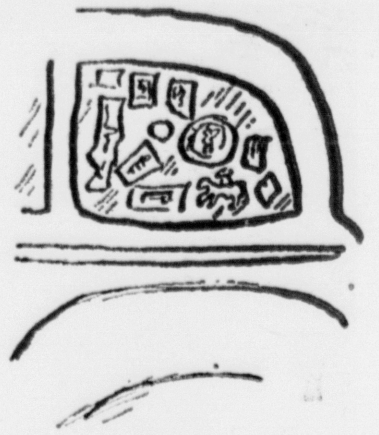
BE SURE your tires have good tread and your chains are not worn. High speeds can wear out snow chains in just a few miles, so drive slowly. Maximum speed limit in California in chain control areas is 25 miles per hour. When chains are required, snow tires or studded tires cannot be substituted (unless otherwise stated).

Letting air out of the tires does not increase traction. Be sure your tires have the right air pressure.

Make sure you can see out of all your windows. The proper use of your heater and defroster is vital to visibility.

TRY THE brakes while driving slowly and when no other traffic is near. Find out just how slippery or slick the road is and adjust your speed accordingly. The slicker the road, the farther you should stay from the vehicle ahead of you.

Never pull out to pass in slush.



Always remember that it takes from three to 12 times as far to stop on snow and ice as it does on dry pavement, so give yourself plenty of room.

The best technique for stopping an automobile on snow or ice is a light but fast up-and-down pumping of the brakes. Jamming and "freezing" on the brakes almost invariably locks the wheels. This will throw your car into an uncontrollable and dangerous skid. Never apply the brakes in a puddle or on an ice slick.

TO STAY out of skids:

1. Keep the speed of the car well below dry-road speed.

2. Keep the car pulling steadily and take curves cautiously.

3. Avoid any sudden turning, swerving and braking.

4. Drive smoothly, and accelerate and decelerate slowly.

5. Don't drive on road edges and shoulders.

6. Don't change to a lower gear on slippery surfaces at too fast a speed.

TO STOP a skid:

1. Should you find yourself in a skid, don't panic. Keep calm and under control.

2. Avoid braking. Slamming the brakes on during a skid locks the wheels, causes loss of traction and increases the skid.

3. Steer in the direction the rear end of the car is skidding. As the car begins to straighten, straighten the front wheels, too. When you are once again heading in the desired direction, either lightly pump your brakes to slow down slightly or gently accelerate to continue moving.

4. Avoid oversteering. Turning the steering wheel too far whips the rear end into a skid in the opposite direction.

5. Keep the car in gear. This helps reduce speed and produces maximum control.

6. Avoid lifting your foot from the accelerator suddenly. Some expert drivers accelerate moderately to help get out of a skid.

The guideline is: Drive with common sense. Any other course can turn what you have planned as a pleasurable outing in the snow country into a nightmare. Before you can ski, you must first get there safely.

Where Marinites Go For Their Ski Fun

A Short Drive Takes Them To The Finest Snow Resorts

By GARY TISCHLER

For the wino, it's a steady wine-tasting job.

And for the inveterate skier, heaven on earth, the dream come true, that is the Sierra, the multi-varied playground of the snowflakes.

LITTLE JENNIFER Wolters of Ross is as much at home on skis as in her ordinary walking shoes, as she demonstrates here at Alpine Meadows. The photo is by her father, Don Wolters, who is the official photographer at the popular Alpine Meadows resort.

FOR SKI BUFFS living in Marin, the whole paradise is only a four-hour drive to the Sierra, four-and-one-half hours to Lake Tahoe and four-and-a-half hours to Yosemite National Park.

Let's take a quick look at the whats, wheres and hows of the various ski paradises, beginning with the North Lake Tahoe area on California State Highway 89.

One of the top attractions is Squaw Valley, five miles north of Tahoe City. It features beginner, intermediate and expert slopes, has an all-day lift ticket, with the trappings of all areas — ski patrol, first aid, rentals, lodges, meals and snacks A whopping 15 double chairs lifts are operating along with a 9,000-feet gondola.

ALPINE MEADOWS, located two miles north of Tahoe City, has five double chair lifts, three T-bars, five pomas, four beginners lifts along with slopes for beginners, intermediates and experts. It also features a ski school, ski patrol, first aid and rentals.

Powder Bowl, located two miles north of Tahoe City at the entrance to Alpine Meadows, has two poma lifts, two rope tows and slopes for beginners and intermediates.

Homewood, seven miles south of Tahoe City, has two double chair lifts, slopes for all classes, with night skiing on weekends.

Granlibakken, one mile south of Tahoe city, has three rope tows, one poma and a jump hill with slopes for all three classes.

SKI PAPPOOSE in Squaw Valley has two pomas, six rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes.

The Tahoe Ski Bowl, seven miles south of Tahoe City, has

There's Snow Fun Without Skis

Believe it or not, there are still people who ramble all the way to Tahoe and never go near a pair of skis.

They do other things.

Such as drink. Or gamble.

And there are even real snow buffs who don't like to ski but still are in a sporting, active mood. Or those who like to put a little variety in their wintertime activities.

The assortment of ski resorts and headquarters offer a variety of snowy activities for the non-skier or skier-plus-other-things.

The Tahoe Sno-Hill in South Lake Tahoe, for instance, has everything but skiing. It caters exclusively to all sorts of winter snow play, except skiing.

TAHOE SNO-HILL has 10 well defined tobogganing runs and trails some 4,000 feet long with lift tows for toboggans. For the kiddies, there are Sno-saucers, under continuous safety supervision. For the real small fry there is a snow play area. The equipment is all furnished by Tahoe Sno-Hill.

Also in the Lake Tahoe area, Squaw Valley offers an enclosed skating rink and Mount Rose and Heavenly Valley both have toboggan hills.

At Boreal Ridge on Donner Summit, there is a snow play area for children and saucer rentals are offered. Laing's, two miles east of Emigrant Gap, features a toboggan hill.

AN EXCLUSIVE toboggan setup is at Bumble Bee Toboggan Hill in Central California on State Highway 108 near Strawberry. It features supervised toboggan runs, a saucer hill, saucer rentals and a warming hut.

The Calaveras Big Trees State Park has a toboggan hill, warming hut and recreation hall.

Toboggan runs are also available at the Cottage Springs and Little Sweden areas in central California.

Dorrington, on State Highway No. 4, has a snow play area, snowmobile, ski-plane and toboggan rentals.

Lodgepole in Sequoia National Park has an ice rink, skate rentals and a food bar.

one double chair lift, three rope tows, and slopes for all classes.

Now, on to the South Lake Tahoe Ski Area:

Echo Summit, three miles west of Myers, South Lake Tahoe, has one platter pull, three rope pulls, beginner and intermediate slopes.

Heavenly Valley, off U. S. Highway 50, near the end of Ski Run Boulevard, in South Lake Tahoe features a 4,025-feet aerial tramway, 10 double chair lifts, slopes for three classes and three ski huts.

The Sierra Ski Ranch, two miles west of Echo Summit, has two pomas, three rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes.

IN NORTHERN California, Cedar Pass, 19 miles east of Alturas by way of State Highway 299, has one rope tow, slopes for beginners and intermediate skiers. Horse Mountain Ski Area, 45 miles east of Eureka by way of Highway 299, has slopes for all three classes with three rope tows.

Lassen Park Ski Area, nine miles northeast of Mineral via State Highways 36 and 89, has one poma, two rope tows, slopes for beginners, intermediates and experts.

Mount Shasta Ski Bowl, 14 miles northeast of Mount Shasta by way of U.S. Highway No. 5, has one double-chair lift, one T-Bar, and two rope tows along with slopes for all three classes.

Plumas-Eureka Ski Bowl, one mile north of Johnsville off State Highway 70, features one poma, three rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes.

SKI SAFARI Basin, with ski safaris departing from House of Ski at Ski Village Drive in Mount Shasta, near U. S. 99, features four-wheel drive buses, snowmobiles or helicopters to transport skiers of all classes.

Yuba Ski Land, 12 miles east of Sierra City by way of Highway 49, has two rope tows, beginner and intermediate slopes, but no ski schools.

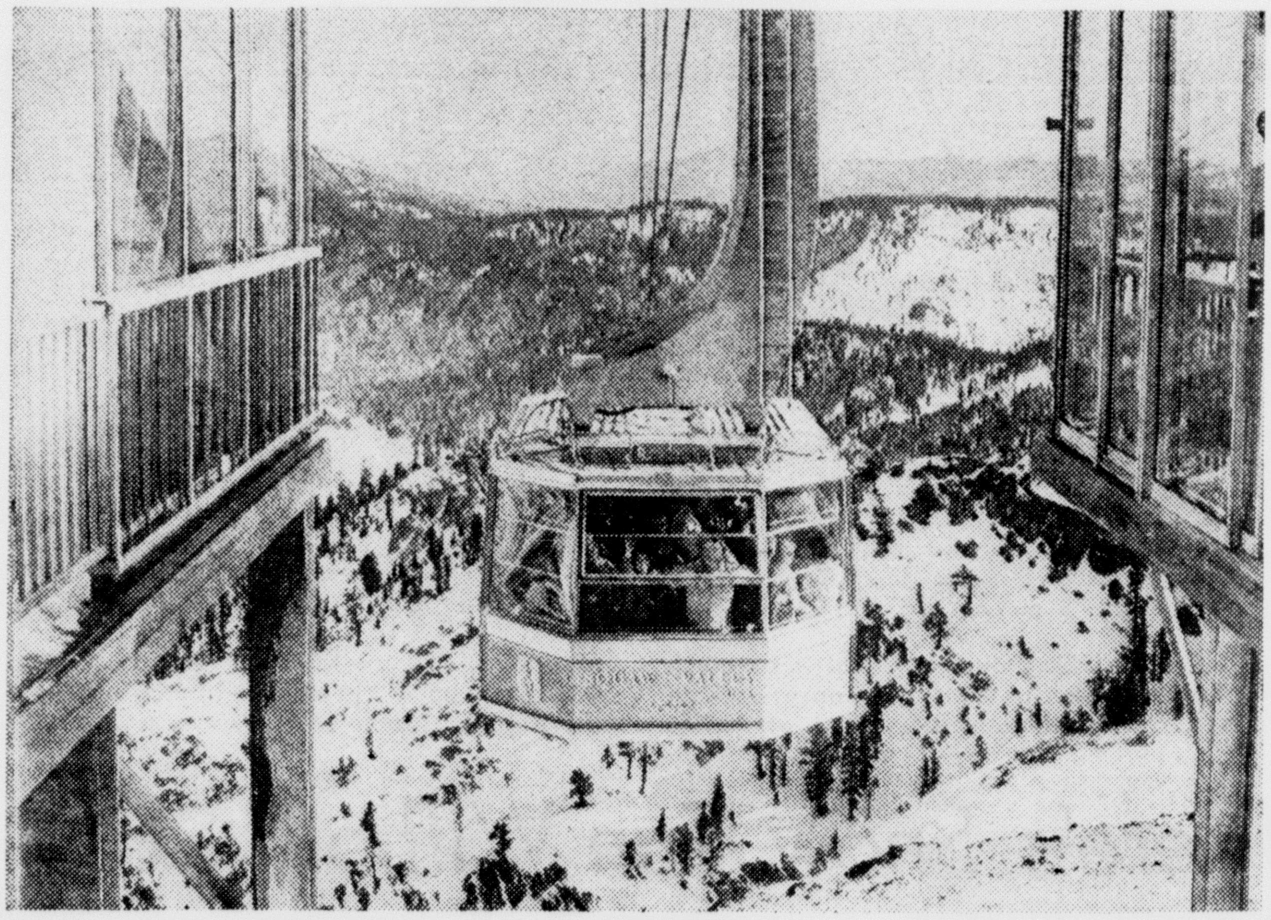
INFORMALITY reigns at Alpine Meadows, and family groups can choose between the outdoor terrace outside the main lodge where they can watch the skiers as they eat, or the interior of the lodge where a warming fire burns in the lobby fireplace.



THE LARGEST aerial tramway in the world is this two-car system at Squaw Valley. Each car can carry 120 skiers plus operator on a five-minute, 25-mile-per-hour ride up 2,000 feet to a new snow field.

"WHERE SERVICE IS A MATTER OF PRIDE"

A MOTHER and two sons set off from the lodge at Badger Pass in Yosemite National Park for a day's exercise and enjoyment on the ski slopes.

Where They Go For Skiing

In the Donner Summit Ski Area, the Sugar Bowl, on old U. S. 40, two-and-a-half miles off the Soda Springs exit on U. S. 80, has four double chair lifts, one poma, two rope tows and slopes for beginners through experts.

Also popular are Boreal Ridge, at Castle Peak exit at Donner Summit, Donner Ski Area and Soda Springs.

In Central California, popular areas include Badger Pass in Yosemite National Park, which features four T-Bars, ski touring and slopes for all classes. Also used extensively is Dodge Ridge, four miles east of Pinecrest, via State Highway 108, with an assortment of two pomas and four rope tows as well as four double chairs. Slopes for all classes.

Other Central California areas include Bear Valley, between Tamarack and Lake Alpine on State Highway No. 4, via State Highway 88 and 49 and U. S. 99; China Pack, 65 miles east of Fresno via State Highway 168; Cottage Springs, eight miles east of Arnold on State Highway No. 4, and Peddler Hill, 40 miles northeast of Jackson via State Highway 88.

Further afield, there are the Sierra Nevada mountains, the Mount Rose Ski Area on Nevada State Highway 27, Aspen, Colo., Vail, Colo., Sun Valley, Idaho, and Jackson Hole, Wyo.

Photographing The Skiers And The Snow

For 40 years, Dr. Frank H. Howard of San Rafael has been photographing skiers and the country through which they ski — in North America and in Europe.

His work reflects not only his experience in photography, but his experience in skiing as well. In 1961, at Sugar Bowl, he won gold, silver and bronze medals in slalom competition in the National Veterans' Championships.

The pictures appearing on these pages, too, were originally shot in color, but black and white prints have been made from the color negatives especially for the Marin Magazine.

The secret to successful photography in the snow country?

Quite simple, says Dr. Howard. Just be sure you follow explicitly the instructions which the manufacturers provide along with their film.

After all, they're the real experts.

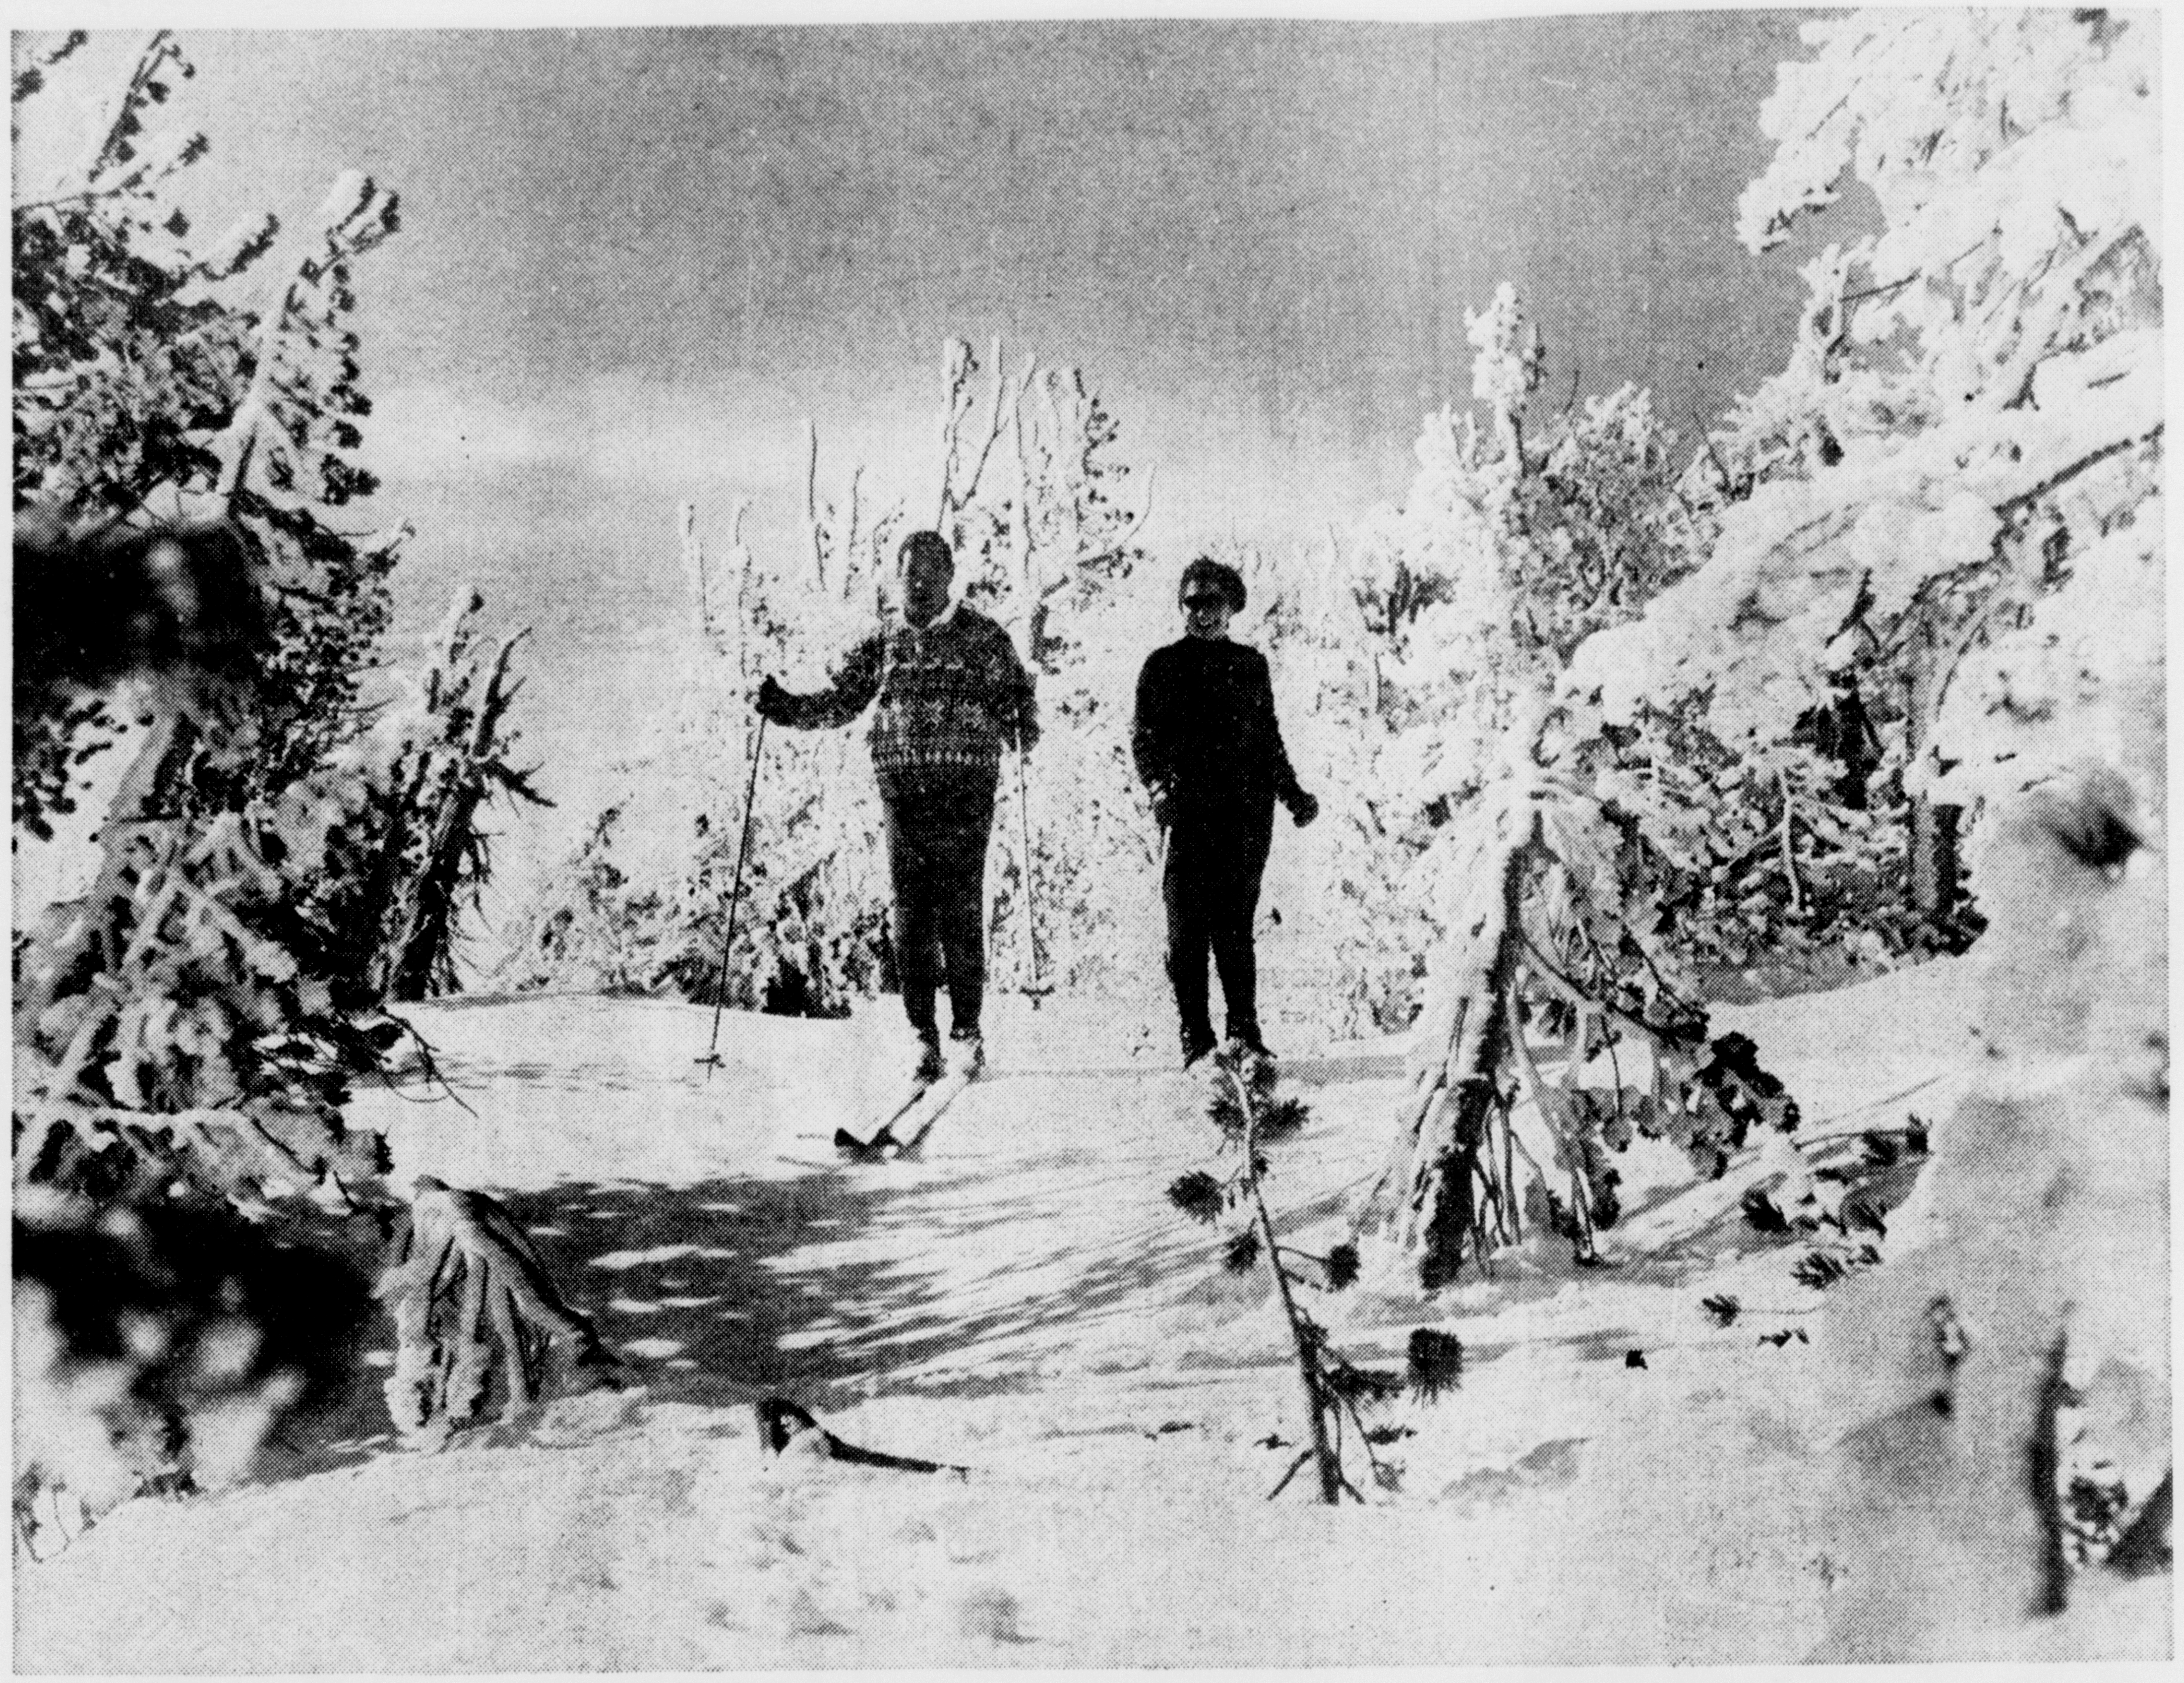
SIG HERZOG, right, of San Rafael, joins other skiers for a rest and refreshment on top of 9,000-foot Mount Baldy at Sun Valley, Idaho.



FROM THE top and looking down into Heavenly Valley, these two skiers find themselves in a veritable winter wonderland. Photographer Dr. Frank H. Howard was there, too.

RALPH BERNSON of Los Angeles pushes off for a run down Heavenly Valley, while his sister, Georgette, watches and awaits her own turn to follow him down the white slopes.

THE DOUBLE chair lift at Sun Valley, Idaho, nears the end of the line. Photo was taken by Dr. Frank H. Howard during an annual February gathering of a Northwest medical group in which a number of Marin doctors participate.

THE BROTHER AND SISTER skiing team of Ralph and Georgette Bernson from Los Angeles demonstrate the breathtaking excitement and satisfaction that comes from skiing over the snows of Heavenly Valley.

The Travel Pages

That's strong talk, but consider these qualifications:

It's the only ski place in America to offer skiing in two states. It's the only ski resort in the world where winter motel rates are lower than summer fares.

Its sloping trails add up to a longer total mileage area than any other ski resort in the West, and the ends of their runs are at the doorways to top Nevada casinos.

THE RESORT is not a new one. In fact, it has already hosted some of the greatest skiing competitions in ski world history, last year's World Cup finals among them. But what happened to it during the past summer, a drastic remodeling including new mountain-carved trails, promises to burst it full-blown into the world ski scene this winter.

The resort is Heavenly Valley. This dowager of California ski resorts sits atop a snow-crowned throne near the California-Nevada state line a few thousand feet before that line transverses Lake Tahoe.

By adding two new lifts (now there's a total of 16) on the Nevada flank of its Sierra Nevada perch, Heavenly can and now does send new runs spiraling down previously untouched Nevada snow.

THE ADDITONAL runs give the resort some 20 square miles of snow fun area (Squaw Valley, for comparison, encompasses 9.5 square miles). Several major skiing-oriented airlines, United and Western among them, claim the resort is the largest in America.

Skiing the Nevada side of the snow dome brings skiers coursing down into the Stateline, Nev., casino area. Stateline boasts Harvey's Wagon Wheel Casino, Harrah's Club, Sahara-Tahoe and a host of other all-night entertainment spas which feature apres ski fare.

Bountiful buffets, at low casino prices, and stars of the magnitude of Sammy Davis Jr., Johnny Carson and Buddy Hackett vie with free fondue parties for the skiers' sparetime.

LONG KNOWN AS a premiere summer resort, South Lake Tahoe lowers its motel rates when the snow flies. This brings the added windfall of lower lodging costs to skiers.

South Lake Tahoe, only 3 years old as a city, has tailored its coffers and its ordinances to entice and then keep visitors.

Laws prohibit promiscuous tree-cutting and limit the brassiness and size of outdoor signs to conserve the pristine loveliness of the meadow-studded mountain paradise. A progressive chamber of commerce, backed by the city government and the tourist industry, promotes the area through low cost ski packages.

In sum, it's one of the brightest ski areas in the country. And it is virtually at the doorstep of the Bay Area.

15-day fun ride

Here is perhaps the greatest fun ride ever invented. Especially in the spring when everybody's had enough of winter. It's Matson's 15-day, all-expense cruise to the four biggest islands of Hawaii. Sail from California aboard the beautiful SS Lurline. Live it up at a lot of parties, get a lot of attentive service, and eat sumptuously. Play the horses. Drive golf balls into the Pacific. Dance all night long. Wind leisurely around the islands before heading back to California. Visit Honolulu on Oahu. Stretch out on Waikiki Beach. And shop. And take some nice tours. Visit Nawiliwili on Kauai, the old whaling port of Lahaina on Maui, and Hilo on the island of Hawaii. Enter into the Polynesian festivals timed to coincide with the ride. And pack just once. The Lurline serves as your luxurious resort hotel at each port of call.

Tickets and more information are available through your travel agent. Or, mail us the coupon below.

Reviews Of New Reading

ZAPATA AND THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION by John Womack Jr.; Knopf, 387 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The history of modern Mexico is largely a history of its revolutions. A history of the revolutions is largely that of its revolutionary leaders. And a history of its revolutionary leaders discloses most of them to have been actuated at least as much by the quest for personal power and wealth as by any fervor to better the lot of their countrymen.

Through seven years that ended with his betrayal and assassination, he remained true to a single concept: that the people, individually and as communities, had a right to the lands that had been taken from them by various means during the long reign of President Porfirio Diaz.

The story of Zapata, and how he kept the state of Morelos in almost constant revolt against the federal government over those years, is told in fascinating detail by John Womack Jr., a professor of Latin American history at Harvard University, in "Zapata and the Mexican Revolution."

One must have much more than casual interest in the Mexican revolution — or series of revolutions — of 1910-17 to want as much detail on it as Professor Womack has included in this book. But one need care little about the tragic history of our neighboring country to appreciate the volume as the story of a most unusual hero, told with compassion and understanding.

The Children Of Israel From Pre-History To The Present

THE JEWS, Story of a People, by Howard Fast: Dial, 338 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

"We're all in history, that's sure, but some are in more than others. Jews more than some." So wrote Bernard Malamud.

As narrative, it is a miracle of lucidity. Out of the facts and myths, surmises and assumptions of the last 4,000 years he has woven together a story that is as fresh and moving as it appears to be justly reasoned.

He begins by examining the dusty fragments of pre history in the Mediterranean basin, when the children of Israel were one of many nomadic desert tribes, and makes a good case for his theory that Moses led the Jews out of Egypt under the command of a God who was far from omnipotent or metaphysical — a volcano, in fact (the burning bush that moved before them). This was Yahweh who developed into the vengeful Lord of the Old Testament and came to prevail over the gods of other tribes, as, for a time, the children of Israel came to prevail in Palestine.

From this crude beginning, one of man's highest achievements, the concept of monotheism, began to evolve and the Jews gradually moved from a priest-and-temple-centered religion to the highly civilized rabbinical ethic that stressed their close ties of family and community and the prime importance of charity.

When the first large numbers of ruling class Jews were sent into exile (the Babylonian captivity) the 2,000-year-old story of the wandering Jew was set in motion. This "Dispora" (Greek for dispersion) was to have a mighty influence on the world.

Ever pushed to the outer borders of the known world by the tides of war and conquest, the Jews came to dominate, for a time, the shipping industry of the ancient world; Fast presents convincing evidence that it was Jewish ships and money that pioneered trade with the Near East, India and China, and that the Jews were the first to develop cartography.

There is an overwhelming amount of material here, but Fast, as he goes back and forth from the drama of the Jews in Spain to that of the Jews who fled from Germany into Poland and later on to America, somehow manages to keep it all straight and clear, building to a controlled and almost unbearably intense account of the Nazi holocaust, and the birth of the state of Israel. An ending, as he says, that is another beginning.

During the 40 years he has studied Jewish history, Fast has come to some unorthodox conclusions that will not go unchallenged.

For example, he charges: "The Church from its very inception organized anti-Semitism . . . and spared no effort to innoculate the entire Catholic population with it, and gave it to the (German) pagan along with Christianity."

He is careful to explain that Paul did not invent anti-Semitism, but made use of the basic resentment that the Jews' separateness and what was seen as superiority had always caused. Since only Jews knew and followed Jesus during his lifetime, the tenets of the new religion, where it differed from Judaism, were Paul's later inventions, and hatred of his people because of their coolness to his "new Judaism" played a role in his fostering anti-Jewish sentiment in the Church he founded. ". . . for the first time in history a religion was created with built-in hate, holy incitement to murder and destroy."

Particularly during the long Middle Ages there appears to be no shortage of facts to bolster belief in the Church's anti-Jewish position.

However scholars evaluate this accusation and the rest of the book as history, it is unquestionably a masterful feat of narration that should be of enormous interest to people of all faiths. Seventy-eight pages of well-chosen illustrations are included.

Taking Full Advantage Of Those Precious Early Years

TEACHING MONTESSORI IN THE HOME by Elizabeth G. Hainstock; Random House, 117 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Can the educational methods devised by the late Maria Montessori be applied in the home as well as in the classroom?

In this book, Elizabeth G. Hainstock, both a teacher and a mother, answers in the affirmative. And she tells parents how to go about it.

Dr. Montessori died in 1952, but since her passing, there has been an increased interest in and acceptance of her ideas, rather than a fading of her influence.

Basically, her thesis was that education begins at birth and that the earliest years when the mental development potential is greatest should not be wasted. She believed, too, that the child has particular periods of sensitivity when he is particularly susceptible to learning, that the youngster progresses and flourishes very largely according to his environment, that he should be allowed to act freely toward self-development in that environment, and that emphasis should be placed upon the spiritual rather than the mechanical aspects of education.

In her book, Mrs. Hainstock tells how to set up a Montessori environment in the home, and how to utilize it, providing exercises and directions as well as the basic philosophy of the Montessori movement.

Montessori in the home should not be viewed as a substutute for formitive-year training by specially prepared experts in the classrooms. But the program outlined by Mrs. Hainstock will enable parents to give their offspring the very early start Dr. Montessori thought so important. And to continue with the pre-school education of the child if for some reason enrollment in a professionally staffed Montessori program or Montessori-oriented program is impossible.

Criticizing A Movie Critic: She Grapples With Ghost

THE PRIVATE EYE, THE COWBOY AND THE VERY NAKED GIRL: MOVIES FROM CLEO TO CLYDE by Judith Crist; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 292 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

Film criticism, especially of the daily newspaper variety, is at best a standardless profession most difficult to judge.

But it seems to me that it would require at the very least a certain kind of love and caring for films, a certain amount of intelligence and knowledge about the form.

Judith Crist, by some unfortunate quirk, is probably the best-known film critic in the United States, the one with access to the most people including the very people who most need some kind of valid film criticism — the average movie-goer. This through a TV Guide column and the Today show, and through fame or notoriety.

This collection of reviews by Miss Crist gives you the lady at her best and at her worst, and brings up some serious questions.

Miss Crist professes to love films because she has sat through so many. She mentions herself in the same breath as James Agee, a kind of audacious blasphemy, and professes to be a staunch defender of American films as opposed to obscure, art-for-art's sake foreign films. She sees herself as being some kind of a Lincoln Steffens among film critics, bravely firing away at Hollywood, which is at best a matter of grappling with ghosts.

Miss Crist, at her best, is clever and bitchy. She can take films like "Cleopatra," "Spencer's Mountain," "The Sandpiper" and "Hurry Sundown," and chop them down to a whimpering piece of trash. Unfortunately, she uses too many acid words in doing so. Faced with what she considers a good film, she is curiously out of breadth and depth. All the brave eloquence used in cheap shots against obvious targets is missing.

In the battle of Miss Crist vs. foreign films, she does not play quite fairly. True, she will tackle Alain Resnais and Michelangelo Antonini by deflating them like a Judy-come-lately, pricking pins into an overrated work, crying obscurity and boredom. But she is almost in awe of anything done by Federico Fellini, and the more obscure the better. Ditto for Ingmar Bergman. And when confronted with something like "Blowup," a film that befuddled any number of better critics, she concedes its brilliance but was disappointed that it didn't tell a story.

Miss Crist does have influence over many people. She seems much too concerned with herself, too little with films. It seems that in the end to turn a phrase is much more important than the film itself.

In her preface to the book, she points with pride to awards presented to her for negative reviews of bad films. If she really likes movies, then movies don't need enemies.

THE BOOK PAGES

Which Is Right, The Warren Commission Or Jim Garrison?

By DON KEOWN

The John F. Kennedy assassination is one of those events in history about which only those who know the barest minimum can afford fixed, certain opinions.

Those who have confined their knowledge to that acquired through a limited reading of the fragmentized newspaper accounts plus a few sensationalized television reports generally line up staunchly in one of two diametrically opposed groups:

1. Those who accept without doubt the Warren Commission's finding that the President was slain by Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone.
2. Those who endorse the theories of critics of the commission who contend that Oswald was the tool in a conspiracy. This group divides into two sub-categories. If you are a rightist, the plotters were leftists. If you are leftist-oriented, the conspirators were rightists.

Those who have delved more deeply into the facts of the assassination and its aftermath find themselves caught up in a welter of conflict, confusion and secrecy. More than five years after John F. Kennedy's death, the facts are less clear and more in dispute than ever.

Reading Paris Flammonde's "The Kennedy Conspiracy," subtitled "An Uncommissioned Report on the Jim Garrison Investigation," only adds to, rather than resolves, the uncertainty.

THE KENNEDY CONSPIRACY by Paris Flammonde; Meredith, 348 pages, $6.95.

Flammonde, a former television producer associated with the colorful Southern California personality, Long John Nebel, claims objectivity. But his book reads like an out-and-out defense of Garrison, the controversial New Orleans district attorney who claims to have uncovered a conspiracy against President Kennedy's life involving disgruntled anti-Castro Cuban exiles and ultra-conservative Americans with Central Intelligence Agency connections.

In many ways it is an impressively effective presentation, but it is not without its flaws.

For one thing, the book is often repetitive and disorganized. But as Flammonde explains, the situation was fast changing even as he wrote.

Flammonde's so obvious pro-Garrison bias is the most noticeable weakness. The reader gains the impression that Flammonde quite literally has swept up everything the least bit favorable to the Garrison cause and dumped it all into his book with little effort to differentiate between the substantial and the trivial, and with evaluations that are sometimes questionable.

Those who have read extensively from other sources note, too, certain glaring omissions of key points of evidence harmful to Garrison's conclusions.

Yet, on the whole, Flammonde strengthens the case for Garrison considerably and restores some balance to a picture that had become tilted. One must accept his argument that Garrison and his views have not been accorded fair coverage by the major news media.

True, Garrison has hurt himself with his garrulity and some of his wilder, unsupported accusations. But he is a lawyer and a politician, and a loose lip is an occupational trait of both professions. It should not prevent us from recognizing that the New Orleans D.A. has, indeed, turned up a considerable amount of solid evidence in support of his shocking theory — enough so that a panel of three judges, hearing only a part of it, ruled unhesitatingly that there was justification for holding Clay Shaw for trial.

The thought of CID involvement in a widespread, fascistic plot upon the life of our national executive is a monstrous idea. But history is replete with monstrous events.

Even if Flammonde doesn't persuade you that Garrison is on the right track, he should convince you that the district attorney deserves a better chance to pursue his investigations and any resulting prosecutions than he has been accorded by the courts and officials of some states, including California, that have refused to honor his requests for extraditions, and by federal authorities who have disrupted the probe and issued prejudicial statements on a par with Garrison's own verbosity.

In all those states, and on the federal level as well, you can bet that suspects are being questioned and men are being placed on trial in other cases in which the evidence is no more convincing than that assembled by Garrison and his staff in the face of immense difficulties.

"The Kennedy Conspiracy" is a fascinating record that should be read with considerable caution and discernment, and only after some advance preparation. But read, it should be. It may pose as many new questions as it answers old ones. But these are questions that should be recognized and confronted.

CENTRAL FIGURES in one of the most bewildering investigations in American history are Jim Garrison, right, the flamboyant district attorney, and Clay Shaw, New Orleans businessman accused by Garrison of being a key participant in a conspiracy that preceded the murder of President John F. Kennedy. Paris Flammonde reviews the case from a pro-Garrison point-of-view in his "The Kennedy Conspiracy."

DOVER PUBLICATIONS has launched a "The Great Masters of Drawing" series with two books containing 32 plates each. "Drawings by Botticelli" and "Drawings by Leonardo da Vinci."

While both are billed as "Dover originals," the material comes from the "I Grandi Maestri del Disegno" series published in Milan, Italy.

The drawings reproduced have been carefully chosen to demonstrate the particular styles and merits of the two great artists. There are introductions translated from the Italian for both books, by Giorgio Castelfranco for Da Vinci, by Aldo Bertini for Botticelli.

The books are paperback, but in Dover's patented high quality format and design. The inside pages are of a special lasting quality and are sewn rather than glued.

WARD RITCHIE Press of Los Angeles has published the second book in its paperback series, Exploring California Byways.

Whereas the first book covered the area from Kings Canyon to the Mexican border, book II takes up the region "in and around Los Angeles." Russ Leadabrand suggests 15 byways —"little roads that beckon, smaller roads that invite" — that lead motorists through scenery and past and to points of interest. It is particularly useful to the Los Angeles resident who is a weekend pleasure driver, but should also be helpful to the visitor to the Southlands who has sufficient time to do a bit of exploring. And eventually, it is to be hoped, the Ritchie Press series will reach our own area.

The book sells for $1.95.

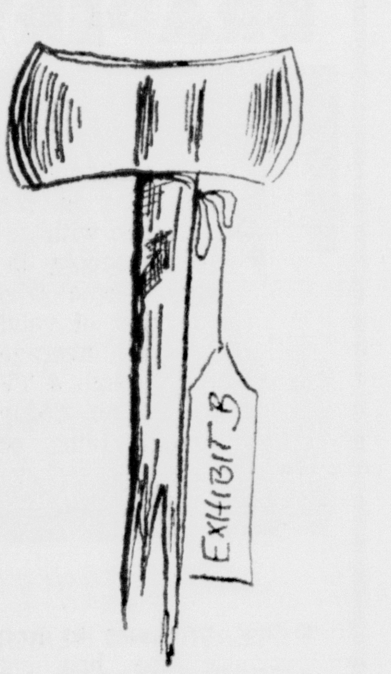
Take a young lawyer turned detective and add a couple of shapely airline stewardesses, a deposed Caribbean dictator in European exile and his current mistress, two former mercenary soldiers turned hoodlums, a shady black marketeer, a sinister servant and even a Scotland Yard inspector (in a secondary role).

Mix those characters with scenes in a trans-Atlantic jet, London, a drive across France and Switzerland and the Austrian Tyrol where the climax occurs. Season the novel with a plot centering around a disappearing stewardess, the dictator's situation and the persons pursuing them.

One then has the ingredients for "Merry Go Round," an entertaining, crisply written and somewhat violent and suspenseful novel by Richard Martin Stern, who has specialized in international intrigue fiction.



The author builds up the plot to the violent climax effectively arousing the reader's curiosity as the novel progresses. Particularly well done characterizations are those of New York attorney, Wilson Clark, and the dictator, Edouard Henriot.

"Should My Fur-Trimmed Coat Be Drycleaned?"

A fur-timmed coat can be drycleaned; however, it is better if the fur is detachable. That is something that should be looked into when the coat is purchased. Any garment that combines cloth with fur cleans better if the fur is detachable. Cleaning fur with the cloth dries out the fur and shortens its life. Genuine fur is, of course, hair grown in skin and demands special cleaning treatment if it is to give maximum service.

Some simulated furs appear so much like fur these days that it is difficult for the average person to tell them apart.

Simulated Persian Lamb fabrics appear like genuine fur and some will dryclean satisfactorily; but the Persian Lamb which is glued to a background fabric cannot, because the adhesive dissolves in drycleaning solvent. Other rich fur-type pile fabrics with woven or knit backings may be drycleaned but are subject to matting or tufting damage from excessive heat or wear. Discuss your cleaning problem with your professional drycleaner. He has the knowledge and the equipment to give best service.

Marin Poets' Corner

ODE TO THE MOON—1968-69 VERSION

Last night you wore a wrinkled frown
Upon your golden brow.
Your mouth was sad and pouting in—
I felt guilty looking this way at your skin.

Dust-laden, through eons of time—
Pumice-pocked, they described your worn old face,
As they whirled on through the great wild outer space
From lunar orbit back to earth.
Wiser men — perhaps —
With thoughts of even greater magnitude
To land upon your pocked old longitude!

I do not wish to see you eye-to-eye
Mine is the beauty beheld from earth to sky.
I love you, Moon, as you be — —
Tender light, loving me.

NOVATO DOROTHY HEFFINGTON

DREAM'S EPITAPH

To go inside
This other world
Where none but I
Can penetrate.

I, whose mind
But fashions these dreams
Behind this curtain drop.

You, who are the lost.
I am, but the safe.
Wherein I am the dreamer,
You, the undreamt.

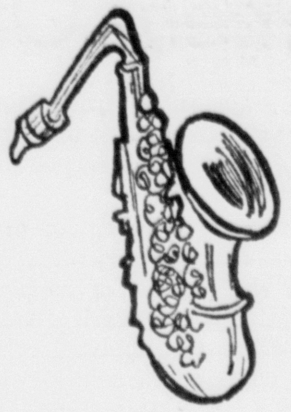
On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER



"THE PRIVATE SEA OF DREAMS" — Il Gruppo — RCA Victor LSP-3846:

Il Gruppo is an Italian group of instrumentalists who create improvised musical happenings with a close affinity to those of Ornette Coleman.

Post-Webern serial technique is their language, but this is not music that looks better on paper than heard. In fact it doesn't exist on paper.

The eight tracks, ranging from three to seven minutes long, all use different combinations of instruments. One uses only electronically filtered and distorted lip - smacking sounds. The results are fascinating listening and should be studied closely by all who strive for wider musical possibilities, whether in serious contemporary music, the new jazz or even rock.

THELONIOUS MONK—"Underground" — Columbia CS 9632:

Even if this wasn't one of Monk's best albums in years (which it is), the cover photo alone would be almost worth the price. It pictures Monk as a French resistance fighter during World War II, surrounded by the tools of his trade, including a Nazi officer tied to a chair in the background.

Anyway, the tunes are just great.

"Ugly Beauty" reminded me of Monk's superb film score to "Liaisons Dangereuse." "Thelonius" is a light and very indigenous track, and the jazz voice of Jon Hendricks swings through "In Walked Bud" at the conclusion of the LP.

Charlie Rouse's tenor sax is as much part of Monk's great sound as his unbelievable chordal structures and progressions which seems to threaten break down at any time—but never do.

DENNY ZEITLIN: "Zeitgeist" —Columbia CS 9548:

The most recent LP by our local jazz piano and medicine man. Several Zeitlin originals here, as well as unique improvisations on standards like "Put Your Little Foot," and "I Got Rhythm."

With Zeitlin's solid background in serious music but basic jazz stature, a greater variety of ideas and directions are open for extended improvisations. However, when elements of the classics appear, they are completely absorbed in mood or feeling — not quoted or tacked on as a gimmick. Even elements of the "new jazz" a la Archie Shepp can be heard and the long final track, "Mirage," delves into very complex time structures like Hindu music.

"FREBERG UNDERGROUND Introducing Pay Radio!" — Stan Freberg and cast—Capitol ST 2551:

This comedy LP has been out for ages, but I only just received my review copy, and it's still pretty funny.

"The Flackman and Reagan" is perhaps the most famous sketch on the disc in this area. Other targets include digit dialing, the death of radio as it used to be, Bobby Baker, and the difficulty nowadays of telling the boys from the girls.

Whereas some years ago Freberg seemed to be in a fairly radical area, today much of his humor seems to be killing a dead horse. However, he is still mighty hilarious at times and the big production his records always boast adds to their enjoyment. Stereo is well used, too.

There's A Moment Of Truth In Refinishing Furniture

The moment of truth comes when you stand back to admire that piece of furniture you have just refinished.

It looks pretty good, you think. Far better than it did before you began the process of removing the battered old finish, sanding the surface and applying two or three coats of varnish or other finishing material. Oh yes; much much better.

Then you take another look. And honesty overtakes you.

IT DIDN'T come out quite the way you expected. It may be a little too glossy. Or not smooth enough. Or it may bear a slight resemblance to the outside of an orange peel.

Whatever the irregularity which suddenly stares out at you, it may be possible to correct the condition with two products called pumice and rottenstone. Get the kind that comes in powdered form and do not tackle the project until a few days after the finish has been applied, so that it has hardened thoroughly.

The pumice is mixed with crude oil or water to form a semipaste. Using a felt rubbing pad or a piece cut from an old felt hat dipped into the mixture, rub with the grain with moderate pressure. Applying too much pressure may cause the pumice to cut too fast and too deeply. Also, as with all types of rubbing, lessen the pressure near the edges of the furniture.

YOU WILL soon notice that the surface of the wood begins to get smoother and duller, which is the effect you want.

Once you are satisfied that the wood is very smooth — which you can check by rubbing your fingers lightly over it, as well as by examining it under a bright light — make another mixture, this time with rottenstone. Use a fresh rubbing pad for this operation.

Once again, rub with the grain with moderate pressure after first wiping off any excess pumice.

THE ROTTENSTONE mixture will make the surface even smoother than before, even though you may not be able to detect the difference if the job with the pumice was well done. Additionally, it will begin to restore a gloss to the wood, although it will be a more subdued gloss than originally.

You will have to judge when the surface has attained the proper look, which is kind of satiny.

Wipe off the excess rottenstone, rub some more, this time with a clean pad, and apply paste wax, following the directions on the container as to the amount of rubbing.

A New And Safer Lawn Mower Blade

A new lawn mower blade made from a flexible material and reported to be safer than the conventional metal blade has been developed.

The manufacturer (Dayco) says its product will reduce a serious family hazard — considering that the U.S. Public Health Service says there are more than 100,000 lawnmower accidents annually.

The metal blade whirls at 2,500 to 3,600 revolutions per minute. Dr. William L. White of the University of Pittsburgh reports that it is virtually impossible to remove a hand or foot from the cutting zone before it has been struck, because of the high speed.

The more common accidents are to the operator's hands or feet.

The new blade is made of rubber and plastic. It was demonstrated recently in Central Park, New York. It will curve, flex, over solid objects, such as the feet, the designing engineers say.

During tests in the last three years, several workers accidentally caught their shoes under the new blade. The shoes were scuffed, but aside from the jolt or sting to the foot, no serious injuries were reported.

The manufacturer says the new blade, which fits popular sizes of rotary mowers, will cut grass as efficiently as does the metal blade.

PRETTY PANE

Cabins In The Snow

The ski buff's idea of heaven must be his own redwood ski house in the snow country.

One of the easiest ways to realize that dream, once the site has been selected, is the acquisition of one of the new "moveable module" vacation homes being marketed under the name, the Concept House.

A product of Concept Structures, Post Office Box 1436, Laguna Beach, the Concept House sells for $10 a square foot. While sold in varying lengths, it is a uniform 12 feet wide to meet road towage requirements. Units can be assembled into a rather simple cabin, or stacked and joined so as to create larger houses. Foundation requirements are minimum.

The Concept House is trucked to remote locations and there hoisted into place by crane, or erected by hand.

Redwood plywood has been used for both the exterior siding and the interior paneling. Deck, fascia and trim are also redwood, while Douglas fir has been used for the structural truss.

A single unit includes plumbing, fixtures, carpets, and kitchen range. Optional is the firehood. Sliding glass doors are extra. Decks vary in size.

If your "dream house" in the snow isn't the Concept House, then it still might be found in one of the many prefabricated redwood structures being sold as vacation homes.

The Callifornia Redwood Association, 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, 94111, which offers a special kit on redwood vacation houses plus fact sheets on the Concept House and a prefabricated mountain cabin plus a selection of colorfully illustrated booklets from its service library, all for 50 cents, says redwood is particularly suited to the snow country because of its durability and resistance to fire and decay. It also provides a natural insulation against the cold, according to the association.

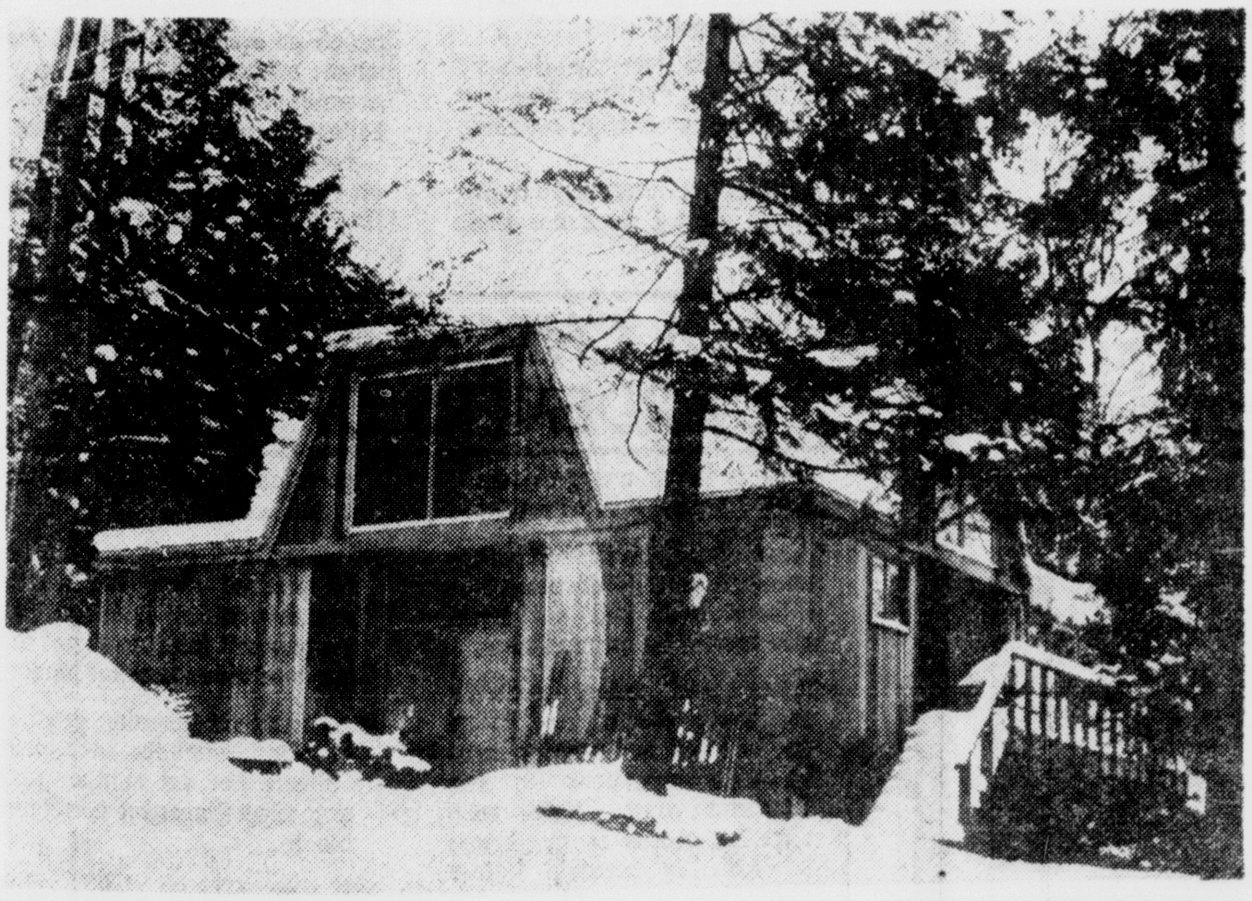
THIS ENLARGED version of the ski cabin is a two-story mountain home with expanded base area and a multiplicity of windows. Massive ceiling beams provide strength against heavy snow loads on the roof. Architects Peter McGowan and John Lord King are the designers. (Photo by Phil Palmer)



JUST ABOUT the ultimate as a year-around ski house is this redwood and glass structure designed by architects J. Leslie Halfpenny and Alvin Fontanese. It is three stories high and has five bedrooms, two baths, a kitchen, a family room, a two-story living room and a ceiling-height deck that encircles the living room. All windows are seven-foot sliding glass doors.

Buy Only The Best 'Glads'

In selecting your gladiolus bulbs, it pays to exercise some care.

The best bulb, or corm, is an inch and a half or more in diameter and an inch or more thick.

The diameter (across) measurement indicates the size and number of flower spikes you can expect. The thickness indicates how young and vigorous the bulb will prove.

THE BEST BULBS are those produced by the commercial growers by planting small stock (corms a half to a quarter inch in diameter) in his fields the previous season. The young, thick bulbs produced in this way assure you exhibition spikes and blooms the first season, and for many seasons to come.

If, besides being thick, the bulb is also large in diameter, you quite often get two full-size spikes of flowers from each bulb.

If a bulb is flat, even though it may be quite large in diameter, it is old and worn out. You may get a rather poor spike of flowers the first season, but very probably you will get nothing whatsoever thereafter.

Planted in stages, gladiolus will produce a continuing show of blooms for half the year or longer — in California from February through August.

THIS TOT gathers in a bouquet of one of the three new 1969 All-America Gladiolus Selections, the giant-spiked Frostee Pink, while admiring some examples of the two other honored "glads," the Grapejuice, left, and the Candy Doll, right foreground, both miniatures.

GLADIOLUS THRIVE in any good garden soil, planted four to six inches deep and four to six inches apart.

The new hybrid varieties are especially worthy of your consideration. Somewhat more expensive than the regular varieties, they pay off with magnificently tall spikes and a spectacular show of bloom. And they require no more attention than the standard varieties.

Not to be overlooked, either, are the new miniature "glads" — the Tiny Tots — that are so excellent for beds and borders.

Perennials Belong In Marin Garden — Plant Them Now

Marinites long ago discovered the special beauty that perennial bedding plants can add to their gardens.

In addition to that beauty, they also have the added advantage of permanence. They need only to be cut back after bloom or left alone to come on again another season.

The ideal garden is one in which both annuals and perennials have been used effectively so as to utilize their special characteristics.

MARIN GARDENERS these days should be planting such perennials as delphinium, penstemon, Shasta daisy, primrose, columbine, phlox, sweet William and bleeding heart. The planting of Transvaal daisies, however, should be delayed about another month.

The challenge is not so much in their culture, which is easy, as it is in putting them to their proper use.

Depending on the variety, they may be fitted into either the background or the foreground, spotted in the border, squeezed into pocket-sized beds, spilled over a retaining wall, hung in pots, featured in beds of their own or side by side with annuals, used as an edging, or used as a rock garden specialty.

SINCE PERENNIALS won't be uprooted after they bloom, as are annuals, it is wise to take a little time in their planting. Work the soil deeply and thoroughly, adding a soil improver to build up the humus.

The soil should be worked to a depth of at least one foot.

One of the advantages of planting perennial bedding plants now is that they will establish themselves during the winter months, and so be ready for a much earlier blooming than those set out in the spring months.

There's Nothing Like Homegrown Fruit

No gardener is more envied than the one who can claim a fruit-producing deciduous tree — or several — on his property.

And now, the bareroot planting season, is the time to put one in, if you want to be among the envied in the future.

Which one should you plant?

WELL, OF THE big five, the apple, the pear, the cherry, the peach and the apricot, all will thrive in Marin County's growing conditions.

But nurserymen, generally, especially recommend the peach and the apricot.

Not only do these two do very well in Marin, but they also pay off with an especially rewarding crop.

Somehow, a homegrown apple, pear or cherry does not taste greatly different from a good store-"boughten" fruit of the same kind and variety.

BUT HOMEGROWN peaches and apricots almost invariably are vastly superior to what you can buy at the market. It has to do with the picking time. You can wait until the peach or apricot is at its juiciest before plucking it from the limb. Commercially grown fruit must be picked at an earlier stage. And ripening off the tree just isn't the same as ripening on the tree.

Find out for yourself. Put in a peach or apricot tree now. And when picking time comes around, see if your own produce isn't the best you've ever eaten.

You might even wean the kids off candy with the luscious fruit that is far better for them.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✓Roses should be pruned sometime before mid-February. Deciduous fruit and nut trees also should be pruned now.

✓Roses and many other deciduous shrubs and trees are in stock in bareroot form in wide selections in the nurseries now. New rose varieties should be purchased as soon as possible before stocks are consumed.

✓Sweetpeas may be planted now from seed for spring bloom. They like an early start so that they can germinate while the weather is still cool.

✓Berries and grapes, also, can be planted now. Berries demand perfect drainage, but grapes will tolerate a soil that stays moist somewhat longer.

✓As weather permits, continue to plant annuals for spring bloom. Set out another planting of gladiolus for continuing bloom.

✓If your African violets refuse to bloom, experiment with slightly more and slightly less light until you find just the right amount needed to throw them into bloom.

Introducing The 1969 All-Americans

Seven Vegetables Earn Recognition This Year

The 1969 All-American vegetable awards mean that there will be new top-quality broccoli, two cabbages, a turnip, cauliflower and two squash available for your garden.

Here they are:

The gold medal winner announced following pre-introductory testing and comparative rating of seed varieties of North America, is the First Generation hybrid broccoli, Green Comet.

GREEN COMET is an extra-early variety with large heads of fairly small tight beads or buds of fine quality. It is uniform and vigorous. Late side shoots are of good size.

Stonehead, which has a small core, also offers closer spacing, more heads to the row, good flavor and quality. It has rich blue-green outer leaves. Stonehead won a silver medal.

A bronze medal cabbage winner is the F1 Harvester Queen, with large global heads and medium-early maturity. The size is uniform and it holds well at ripeness without bursting. Depending on the location, soil and planting time, heads weigh up to five pounds — and more. The diameter is six to eight inches.

It is believed 100 per cent yellows resistant.

THE F1 HYBRID turnip Tokyo Cross also won a bronze medal. It has an early, very white, medium-sized, semi-globe smooth root. The greens are short but of very satisfactory flavor, tenderness and yield.

It has early and larger roots than the Just Right.

The F1 hybrid cauliflower Snow King, another bronze medal winner, is 10 to 24 days earlier than other snowball types. The plants are shorter, the heads of fair size, and the curds creamy white. The growth is very uniform for harvesting and the plant is heat resistant.

A great advantage is the earliness.

THE TWO bronze medal squash are the F1 hybrid summer bush variety St. Pat Scallop, and the winter-type, Kindred.

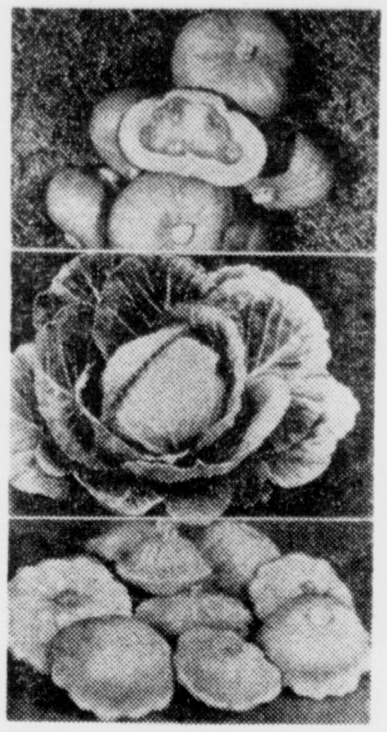
St. Pat Scallop is an improved, bell-shape, greenish-white version of the Patty Pan. It is very early, prolific and uniform. The fruit should be used when very young and tender. When it ages, the color turns from pale green to white. The bell shape with smooth scallop margins provides more tender flesh and less waste than other varieties.

The plant is compact and provides more fruit over a long season and heavier yields if kept picked.

KINDRED IS a semi-vine type of Buttercup shape. The flesh is deep orange in color and the thin skin gold. It has developed by Ben Gilbertson of Kindred, N.D.

Home and market growers will appreciate the more concentrated yield on vigorous short vines. The fruit is about three and a half inches thick, six to seven inches wide and weights about four and a quarter pounds.

The plant remains bush type until half way through the season, when short runners appear.



VEGETABLES accorded All-American recognition for 1969 include, top to bottom, the Kindred winter squash, a semi-vining buttercup-type; the Harvester Queen, a big-headed hybrid cabbage; and the St. Pat Scallop, a bell-shaped, green-white bush summer hybrid squash.

Five Flowers Are Listed For Horticultural Honors

Garden Pages

Three zinnias, one appropriately named Rosy Future, a vinca rosea and a dwarf cornflower have carried off honors in the 1969 All-America flower selections.

The top award given a flower this year, the silver medal, went to the buttons type zinnia, Cherry Buttons.

Bronze medals were given to two first generation (Fl) cactus type zinnias, Rosy Future and Torch.

BRONZE MEDALS also went to vinca rosea Polka Dot and dwarf cornflower Snow Ball.

Cherry Buttons begins to bloom at 10 to 12 inches in height, a bit shorter than Pink Buttons. It produces many double one and a half-inch flowers on wiry stems. The foliage is mint green and the plant compact.

Zinnia Rosy Future is bright rose-pink and grows two feet or taller. It has many strong-stemmed quilled flowers five to six inches wide, excellent for cutting and garden display.

Torch also is a giant zinnia, rich orange, two to two and-a-half-feet tall, vigorous and sturdy. Quilled double blooms are five to six-inches across and true to color. It joins Zeniths Firecracker, yellow Zenith and Rosy Future.

VINCA ROSEA procumbens Polka Dot is a ground cover similar to Rose Carpet. The disease-resistant plants seem to grow erect for about three inches, then creep to about 24-inch mats. The abundant flowers seem to lie flat on the foliage. The single, white flowers have bright red eyes.

The plant is adaptable to sun or light shade. Try it as an overhang in window boxes and hanging baskets and in rockeries.

Centaurea cyanus. Snow Ball grows 12 to 16 inches tall and has one-and-a-half-inch white, ball-shape double cornflowers. This early bloomer is a white running mate for the dwarf blue Jubilee Gem, which won All-American honors in 1937. The round plant has silvery green foliage, and has strong heat and disease resistance.

GOOD COMPANIONS to the 1969 winners are 1968 choices Fl hybrid giant cactus zinnia Wild Cherry; geraniums Carefree Scarlet, Deep Salmon and Bright Pink; marigold Orange Jubilee, which won two All-Britain bronze medals; Celosia plumosa Orange Jubilee, which won two All-Britain bronze medals; Celoisa plumosa Orange Triumph, and Verbena Blaze.

Others well worth planting are 1967 All-America winners Fl hybrid giant hedge-type marigold Golden Jubill; Knee-Hi sweetpea San Francisco in rose pink.

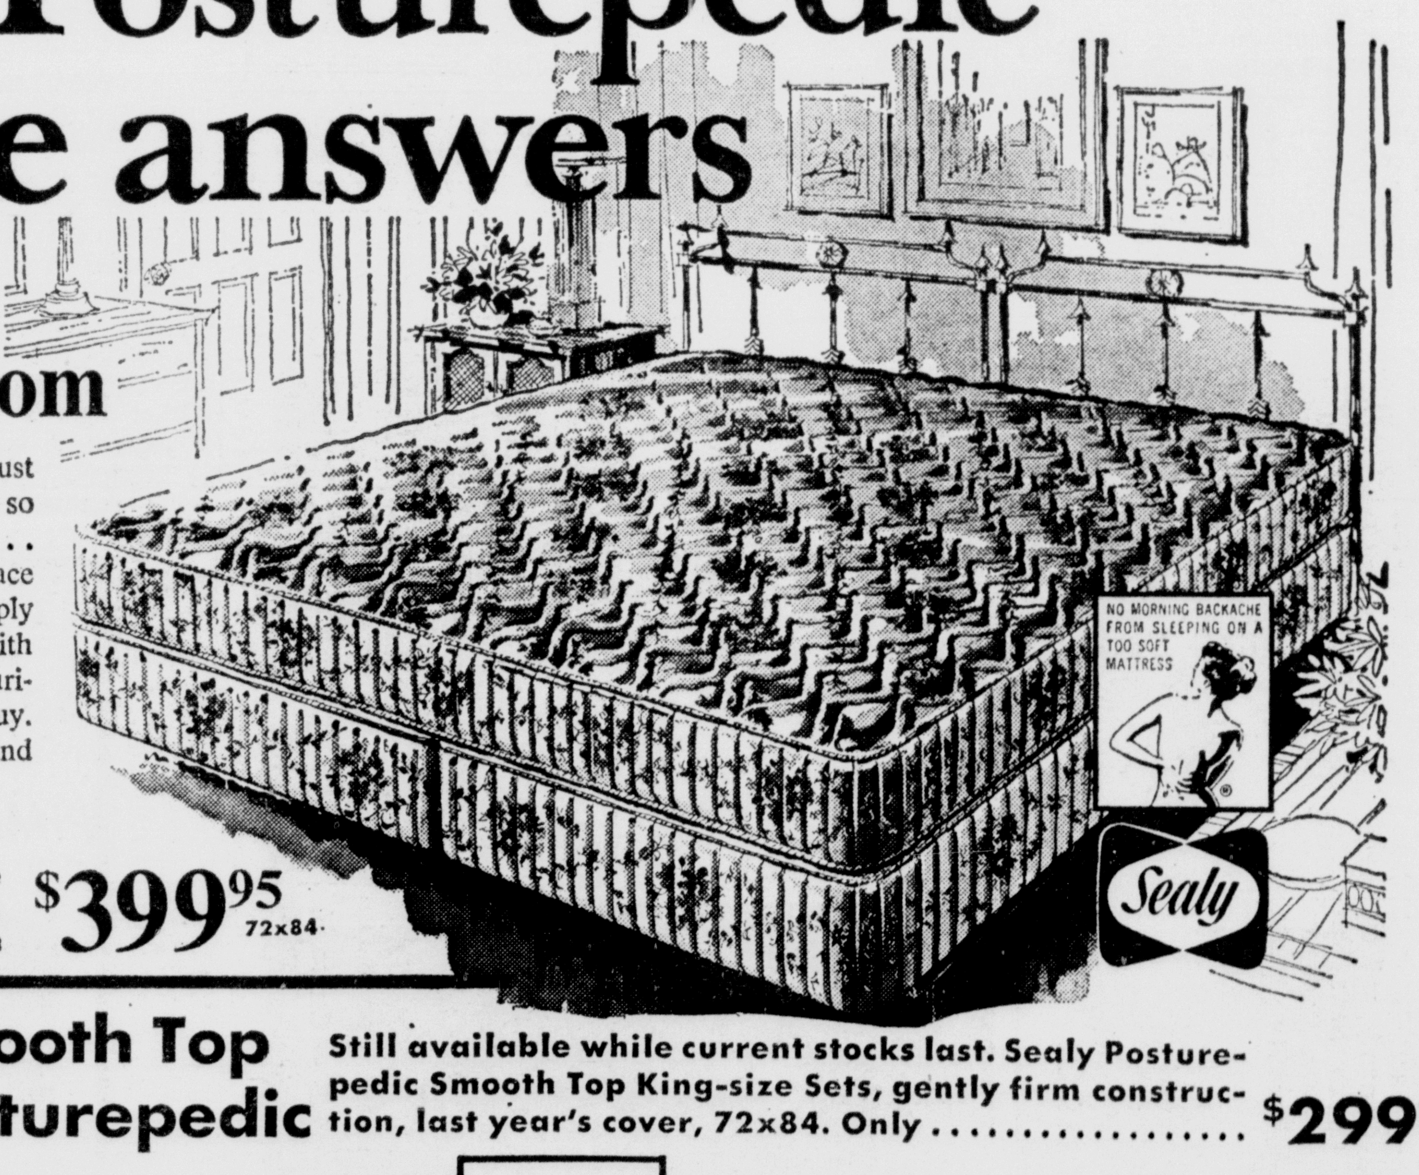
Sealy Posturepedic® has the answers



NO MORNING BACKACHE FROM SLEEPING ON A TOO SOFT MATTRESS
Sealy

It makes the rest of the room

Exciting, isn't it? A new bedroom just waiting for your personal touch. And so much more than just a place to sleep . . . it's your own quiet, private retreat. A place to watch TV, to write letters, to simply get away from it all. But it all starts with Sealy Posturepedic Prestige. Most luxurious and fashionable mattress you can buy. With a Pamper-Quilt* top that looks and feels like a rich comforter. Try it.

*DACRON fibercoil and urethane foam

Persistence Pays Off In Approval For Authentic Movie On Skiing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Robert Redford proposed a movie about skiing, he was told by a film executive: "Two hours of all that snow? It'll never sell. The audience would get too cold."

As Hollywood has learned, Redford is a strong-willed actor, and he wouldn't be dissuaded. He started production in Switzerland this month on "Downhill," which he says will be the first authentic view of the skiing life.

Redford told about the inception of the project:

"I'VE ALWAYS wanted to make a picture about the life of a professional athlete. I don't think there ever has been one that really depicted the mean, hard life that most athletes must lead. 'The Hustler' came close, but then, pool isn't really very athletic, is it?

"I was an athlete myself, and I saw what went on. Like when a football coach is under pressure from the alumni to have a fourth winning season after he's already had three. And he produces — or else."

The actor naturally turned to skiing for a film subject. He owns a home in the ski country of Utah, recently bought a ski lodge in Colorado, and spends as much of his non-working, non-sleeping time as possible on skis.

HE TURNED down an offer to star in "Ski Bum" because "it wasn't about skiing." Instead he decided to develop his own story.

But in trying to sell his project to Paramount, he ran into snowblocks, such as the one from the bigwig who worried about frigid audiences. Redford persisted. But then he fell out with Paramount by walking out on a Western, "Blue." He claimed he gave the studio plenty of notice; Paramount claimed he didn't and filed suit for a few hundred thousand.

"Blue" turned out to be one of the larger bombs of 1968, and Redford figures that was the turning point for him. His judgment was vindicated, and corporation head Charles Bludhorn sent for him.

"WHY MAKE all those pictures about the poor economy of England or problems in Czechoslovakia?" the actor argued. "Why not make some pictures about what's going on in America? That's what audiences want to see."

Redford's pitch succeeded, and Bludhorn gave him the go-ahead on "Downhill" — for a price. The price was a million dollars, which is pretty small change for a major movie nowadays.

"We had to pinch pennies," said Redford. "I couldn't send a big camera crew over to the Olympics at Grenoble. I got a half-dozen of my friends together—ski bums and photographers — told them the situation and they agreed to help me out."

REDFORD AND his illicit band spent two weeks dodging gendarmes and Olympic officials while they unofficially photographed the action on the French Alps. He himself posed as a reporter for Sports Illustrated, and one of his photographers, Dick Fairbanks, wore a fake nose as a disguise. They came home with the footage Redford needed.

Now he has returned to Europe to finish the major scenes for "Downhill"; he began the picture the day after he finished "Butch Cassidy and Sundance Kid," in which he plays the latter to Paul Newman's Butch.
